VIRTUALLY CLEAN BILL IS GIVEN BY NAVAL COURT TO MARINES IN HAITI

Report of Inquiry Body Headed by Rear Admiral Mayo States That Charges by Brigadier-General Barnett Were Thoroughly Unwarranted.

SECRETARY DANIELS APPROVES FINDINGS

For First Time in More Than 100 Years Tranquillity and Security of Life and Property Are Declared to Prevail in the Island.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The naval court of inquiry which investigated the conduct of marines in Haiti reported to Secretary Daniels today that there "had been no proper grounds" for the statement of Brigadier-General George Barnett, former commandant of the Marine Corps, that the American occupation forces had been guilty or "practically indiscriminate killings" of Haitians.

After careful survey of conditions, the court, presided over by Rear Admiral Henry T. Mayo, found that Gen. Barnett's charges were "ill considered, regrettable and thoroughly unwarranted reflections" on the work of the Marine Corps in Haiti, adding that the corps had performed difficult, dangerous and delicate duty worthy of the highest commendation.

Virtually Clean Bill Given.

The Marines virtually were given a clean bill by the court, which declined to recommend trial by courtmartial for Freeman Lang of Los Angeles, and Dora's Williams, of Birmingham, Ala., charged by native witnesses at the Port Au Prince hearing with the murder of Haitians. Indeed, the Lang and Williams cases were not mentioned, and naval officials explained that this meant that evidence against them was not deemed sufficient to demand criminal prosecution.

In all "isolated" cases of unjustifiable conduct by marines the court found that disciplinary action already had been taken.

The findings as made public were approved by Secretary Daniels and Major-General John A. LeJene, commandant of the Marine Corps.

The full text of the court's findings follows:

"The court finds that two unjustifiable homicides have been committed, one each by two of the personnel of the United States Naval Service which has served in Haiti since July 28, 1915, and that 16 other serious acts of violence have been perpetrated against citizens of Haiti during the same period by individuals of such personnel.

Offenses Isolated Acts.

"The court finds that these offenses were all isolated acts of individuals and that in every case the responsible party was duly brought to trial before a general courtmartial, convicted and sentenced.

"The court has found no evidence of the commission of any other unjustifiable homicides or other serious unjustifiable acts of oppression or of violence against any of the citizens of Haiti or unjustifiable damage or destruction of their property caused by any of the personnel in question.

"In view of the fact that the only unjustifiable acts found by the court to have been committed are those wherein disciplinary action has already been taken and where no further proceedings could be had in the matter, the court has not deemed it necessary to report further upon the question of responsibility.

Conclusions of Court.

"Referring to paragraph 2 of the precept, it is the conclusion of the court that there have been no proper grounds for the statement that 'practically indiscriminate killing or natives has been going on for some time' as alleged in the letter from Brig. Gen. George Barnett, U. S. Marine Corps, to Col. John H. Russell, U. S. Marine Corps.

"Referring to the amendment to the precept, calling for the conclusions of the court as to the general conduct of the personnel of the naval service in Haiti since July 28, 1915, the court does not consider that the small number of isolated crimes, or offenses that have been committed by a few individuals of the service during the period in question are entitled to any considable weight, in forming a conclusion as to the general conduct of such personnel. It was inevitable that some offenses would be committed. However, considering the

ALLIED MINISTERS NOT TO WITHDRAW FROM ATHENS

British, French and Italian Envoys, However, Will Abstain From Any Ceremony to Constantine.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 18.—The Franco-British proposal for withdrawal of the allied Ministers from Athens just before the arrival there of Constantine, says an officially inspired note tonight, not having received the same welcome in Rome as in London and Paris, will be dropped.

The British, French and Italian Ministers, however, it is added, will abstain from any ceremonies connected with the arrival of Constantine and from official relations with him.

Allied warships have been ordered to quit Greek waters to avoid rendering honors to the cruiser Averoff on which Constantine is journeying to Greece.

Arrival of Constantine at Athens Delayed by Rough Seas.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Dec. 17.—The Cabinet today received a wireless from the cruiser Averoff, on which Constantine is returning to Athens, saying that rough seas had been encountered and that all members of the Royal family, including Constantine, were seasick. Because of this, the message said, the vessel had slackened speed and the arrival at Phaleron would be delayed. Constantine sent a personal message saying he was anxious to land.

Prince George, the Crown Prince, has already arrived on the island of Poros, from Kustendje, Rumania.

Greek officers in Thrace and Constantinople, unless they return to the colors, will be declared deserters, it was announced today.

SHEEP QUOTED $3.50 A HUNDRED POUNDS, LOWEST IN 16 YEARS

Liquidation, Wool Market Condition and Mutton Imports Credited With Stock Yards Price.

Sheep prices are the lowest in 16 years.

At the National Stock Yards in East St. Louis yesterday, sheep were quoted $3.50 a hundred pounds, and it was said no fat sheep have sold here on that basis since 1904. Prices at other Western markets are said to be on a par with local quotations.

The low price is ascribed to Western liquidation and the conditions in the wool market, while reported large imports of New Zealand and South American frozen mutton also have exerted influence on the market.

PRIZE LEMONS AT WORKHOUSE

Specimens Weighing Up to Two Pounds in City Hothouse.

Lemons weighing from one to two pounds each are now maturing on 15 lemon trees in the hothouse of the city workhouse. Superintendent Huse N. Morgan said yesterday that each tree bears about 25 lemons, ranging from the size of a crab apple to the 2-pound ones, which, he says, compete favorably with prize lemons raised in California and other states.

Two lemons weighing one pound three ounces and one pound 11 ounces, were cut from trees in the hothouse yesterday.

The hothouse, where bananas are also grown, together with plants, is cared for by the inmates of the prison under the direction of a paid gardener.

FIREMEN REPORT FINDING LIGHTED CANDLES AT FIRE

Damage Estimated at $15,000, Principally From Water, in a Loft Building at 810-12 Lucas Avenue.

BLAZE CONFINED TO FIFTH FLOOR

Firemen Reach Scene in Time to See Four Small Explosions in Different Parts of the Room.

Four large cardboard cartons, each containing a burning candle, bundles of tissue paper and an explosive substance, were found by firemen in the Kiddy Shoe Company, on the fifth floor of a loft building at 810-12 Lucas avenue, at 7:15 o'clock last night when they responded to an alarm of fire from that address.

A work bench and a lot of paper and shoes had taken fire from one of the cartons and set off the sprinkler system, which also automatically turned in the fire alarm.

Engine Company No. 41, at Eleventh street and Lucas avenue, two and a half blocks away, was first to reach the building, and men of this company extinguished the contents of the cartons and the fire around one of them that had not had time to spread. The firemen took the cartons and contents to their engine house and notified the police. Damage, chiefly from water, to contents of the building was estimated at $15,000.

Officials of Company.

Morris Goldwasser, 50 years old, of 5943A Wells avenue, president, and Frederick Dubinsky, 45, of 1395A Shawmut place, secretary-treasurer of the Kiddy Shoe Co., reached their place of business several hours after the fire had been extinguished. They then went with Police Lieut. Connelly to Carr Street Station.

Goldwasser and Dubinsky said they had left the building between 3 and 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and were the last persons connected with the firm in the place. They said they had operated an open shop; had no labor trouble or enemies that they knew of, and had no idea how the fire originated. They said they carried insurance of about $65,000, and that any loss they had suffered in the fire would be fully covered.

After giving this information they left the police station.

The building is situated in the heart of the wholesale district, between Broadway and Twelfth street, and the buildings on Lucas avenue between Eighth and Ninth streets are nearly all loft buildings occupied by jobbers.

The building in which the fire occurred is occupied by the Orblitt & Singer Mercantile Co., clothing, shoes and underwear, first floor; Chesterfield Cap Co. and Weinberg Mercantile Co., bindings and belts, second floor; G. Cepparulo, artificial flowers, third floor, and the Kiddy Shoe Co., fourth and fifth floors.

Firemen Describe Situation.

Firemen of Engine Co. No. 41 described the situation as they entered the Kiddy Shoe Company's fifth floor department. They encountered the first smoke on the fourth floor and while some searched there for the fire, others went above, where the sprinkler system was sending down a heavy shower of water. Through the water with their flashlamps they saw a smoldering heap of material at far end of the room and turned their extinguishers upon it. Then there came a bright flash of light and sudden blaze from another part of the room to which they hastened, and as they reached it with the extinguishers a flash and blaze occurred in still another part of the room, and then a fourth flash and blaze from under a work bench.

After extinguishing the four blazes, three of which occurred suddenly in their presence, the firemen removed the four objects from which the flashes came and found them to be paper cartons about 20 inches square in size, in each of which was a candle almost burned out, tissue paper, and in separate smaller cardboard boxes in each carton a substance of the consistency of ordinary syrup that smelt of ether and gasoline. The boxes containing this substance were so placed that when the tissue paper took fire from the candles it would ignite the contents, flare up into a blaze and ignite other paper and waste material near which the cartons were found, according to the firemen.

The cartons and their contents are in a good state of preservation and are being held for disposition by Fire Chief Panzer.

HOUSE APPROVES BILL TO REVIVE WAR FINANCE BODY

Senate Measure for Relief of Farmers Now Will Go to Conference for Adjustment.

SECTION ON BANK CREDITS STRUCK OUT

Chairman McFadden Opposes Plan as Class Legislation in 5-Hour Debate—Vote 212 to 61.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The Senate resolution to revive the war finance corporation as a measure of relief for farmers was adopted by the House late today in amended form and by a vote of 212 to 61. It now goes to conference for adjustment with the Senate measure.

The House struck out section two of the Senate resolution stating the opinion of Congress that Federal Reserve banks should allow liberal credits to farmers. The vote was 132 in favor to 20 against on the motion to strike out.

The final vote came after five hours of debate, Chairman McFadden of the Banking Committee, leading the opposition. He characterized it as class legislation which would lead to inflation, and charged that its proponents had deluded the farmers into believing it would help them.

"The farmers have been deceived," McFadden said. "They have been told this resolution will help them. No advance to farmers has been made by the corporation for more than a year and could not be authorized under this measure. Instead, the corporation has made loans to such institutions as the International Harvester, the Bethlehem Steel and the Baldwin Locomotive Works."

Mann Supports Bill.

Representative Mann, Republican, Illinois, supporting the bill, said he did not see how it could do harm and probably would do some good. Representative Mondell, Wyoming, majority leader, said the bottom had fallen out of business because private institutions had not been able to extend the required relief. Revival of the Finance Corporation would help the situation and could not, under any circumstances, have a harmful effect, he said.

Representative Stevenson, Democrat, South Carolina, denied that the measure was class legislation.

"The banks have gone the limit," he said, "and they cannot extend credits further. We must do it by selling stock of the corporation to the investing public."

Representative McFadden said the project was "nothing elst than putting the hand in the public treasury for the benefit of special interest."

Doubts Merits of Measure.

"I don't believe honestly it is going to help the farmer in the way he expects," he said. "You will be called upon to revive the grain corporation and other government was agencies.

"Until the consuming public gets the full benefit of these declining prices, I think nothing should be done to interfere."

Representative Madden, Republican, Illinois, said the measure would add another billion dollar burden to the backs of the people.

"Already Europe owes us $12,000,000,000," he said.

"This would add another billion to that debt. It moreover sustains high prices and does not aid the working people whose wages are being reduced all over the country."

Other speakers supporting the resolution were Representative Strong, Republican, Kansas, Tincher, Republican, Kansas, and Wingo, Democrat, Arkansas.

SENATE DEFERS RECESS ACTION

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The question of a recess during the Christmas holidays came up today in the Senate, but action was deferred until Monday to await disposition by the House of the resolution to revive the War Finance Corporation.

The House has decided to curtail its recess to Friday and Saturday of next week, but it has taken no action as to a recess at New Year's.

Christmas Gift for Debs.

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Dec. 18.—A collection to send a Christmas gift and greeting to Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist candidate for president in the last election, now in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, was taken today at a mass meeting of the amalgamated textile workers of America. Cigars and oranges will form a large part of the gift, it was said. The greeting was not announced.

Wilson Informed of Result of Armenian Inquiry by League

GENEVA, Dec. 18.

PRESIDENT WILSON is informed of the results of the inquiry made by the alleged High Commission in Turkey concerning the Armenian situation, in a message which has been forwarded to him by the League of Nations Council. Although the contents of the message is withheld, it is understood the President has been told that negotiations with the Turkish Nationalists present no insurmountable difficulties.

The message is believed to contain the "avenues of approach" which the President asked the council to indicate to him.

51 CITIES SHOWED FOOD PRICE DECLINE DURING NOVEMBER

Decrease Amounted to 2½ Per Cent on Retail Quotations as Compared With October.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—A further decrease of 2½ per cent in retail food prices in November as compared with October was reported today by the Department of Labor's bureau of statistics. Decreases were noted in all of the 51 cities for which monthly prices were tabulated, with the greatest decrease, 5 per cent, shown in Memphis.

In Birmingham and Seattle the decrease was 4 per cent; in Dallas, Houston, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Little Rock, Louisville, Minneapolis and St. Louis the decrease was 3 per cent; Chicago, Dencer, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Omaha and Philadelhpia the decrease was 2 per cent; in Boston, Bridgeport, New York, Pittsburg, Rochester and San Francisco the decrease was 1 per cent. In Springfield, Ill., the decline was less than five-tenths of 1 per cent.

WILSONS CELEBRATE THEIR FIFTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

President Takes Ride in Open Touring Car on One of Coldest Days of the Winter.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—President and Mrs. Wilson today celebrated the fifth anniversary of their marriage. Several relatives are at the White House and Miss Margaret Wilson and Dr. and Mrs. Sayre and Mrs. McAdoo are expected.

This is the second anniversary that the President has not personally selected some gift for Mrs. Wilson after a tour of the shopping district. The first two anniversaries the President walked downtown unaccompanied and made the selection. In 1918 he was in Paris and selected a gift there. Last year he was confined to his bed, and this year it was not thought advisable for him to go downtown.

The President and Mrs. Wilson and their guests left the White House shortly after 11 o'clock this morning in an open touring car for a ride about the city and to show their guests the home which they have just purchased and will occupy after March.

Mr. Wilson looked in unusually good spirits and appeared stronger than at any time since he was taken ill. His decided improvement is shown by the fact that despite the day is one of the coldest of the winter, the ride was taken in an open touring car.

FRENCH PRESIDENT TO DO HIS OFFICIAL TRAVELING BY AIR

Millerand Reported to Have Ordered Airplane Limousine Against Wife's Advice.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 18.—President Millerand, despite the earnest contrary advice of Madame Millerand, is reported to have ordered an airplane limousine for the purpose of making official visits to foreign capitals and cities in the provinces.

Should the report prove to be founded it will mean a departure in the mode of traveling of Presidents in France and the permanent sidetracking of the presidential train. A regular squadron will have to be provided for the presidential suite and the 50 or so journalists who accompany the President on all his trips from Paris.

Some newspapers call the President's attention to the fact that a fall from the window of his aerial limousine would have more terrible results than leaning too far out of the train window, referring to the accident to the former President Paul Deschanel.

BANDITS ROB VILLA OF HORSES

Farmer "Terror" Asks Obregon for Redress and Better Protection.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Gen. Francisco Villa, long "Terror of the North," but now a peaceable rancher on an extensive estate at Canutillo, State of Durango, given to him by the De la Huerta Government, has been robbed of 200 horses by Mexican bandits.

Villa has appealed to President Obregon for redress. In his complaint he asks for more adequate protection from marauding bands.

FIRST ASSEMBLY HAS PROVED LEAGUE IS ALIVE, SAYS HYMANS

SATISFACTION WITH WORK DONE SHOWN WHEN SESSION IS ENDED

Final Day Marked by Encounter Between English Delegates and Dominion Representatives Over the Recommendations Concerning Mandates.

COUNCIL CRITICISED IN REPORT ADOPTED

"Through Setting Up International Court of Justice, Assembly Has Established House of Rights and Palace of Peace."

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Dec. 18.—The first meeting of the assembly of the League of Nations closed this evening in a burst of eloquence after passing through one of the fullest days of its existence in a rather agitated and not always clear debate.

In farewell speeches, Paul Hymans, president of the assembly, and Dr. Guiseppe Motta, president of Switzerland, told the delegates the first assembly had proved the league was a living organism and a success. The opinion expressed by the delegates who have participated most actively in the work of the assembly is that it has done all that could be expected of it, if not more.

A number of pet projects have met with disaster. Yet these are few, if any, delegates who remained for the entire assembly that will leave dissatisfied with the work of that body.

The final day was marked by another encounter between the English delegates and the representatives of the British dominions. Lord Robert Cecil, acting for South Africa, and C. J. Doherty for Canada, provoked an aggressive and significant declaration by Arthur J. Balfour to the effect that, if the assembly adopted any recommendations concerning mandates, he and his successor on the league council would pay no attention to them.

Council Is Criticised.

Lord Robert Cecil and Doherty criticised the council for holding back information about mandates and supported the recommendations of the Mandates Committee, the most important of which were that the assembly express the opinion that the resources of the territories under mandates should not be exploited by the mandatories for their own profit or for the profit of the allies and that the recruiting of troops should not be allowed in such territories.

The recommendations were adopted unanimously, Balfour contenting himself by saying they would have no effect, instead of voting against them.

Develops Consciousness.

M. Hymans, in his closing speech, dwelt upon the fact that the session of the assembly demonstrated to all the value of the League of Nations.

"The League has developed consciousness," he said, "and now resolves to live, and will live. Through the setting up of an international court of justice, the assembly has established a house of rights and a palace of peace."

The activities of the assembly respecting typhus he declared to be a magnificent demonstration of human solidarity.

When the assembly spoke of disarmament, M. Hymans said, the members of that body displayed keen anxiety to lift the weight of armaments from the shoulders of the world but at the same time realize that in the present unsettled condition of Europe nothing better could be done than had been.

He referred to the fraternal spirit shown by the assembly, the members of which were separated only by shades of opinion, not by princi-

Use of Cider With 'Kick' in Home Lawful, Palmer Says

Attorney-General's Opinion to Secretary Houston in Direct Conflict With Regulations of Internal Revenue Bureau.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Use of cider in the home, by its manufacturer, even after it has become intoxicating by fermentation, is lawful and without the bounds of the prohibition enforcement act, according to an opinion submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury, by Attorney-General Palmer, made public today.

The opinion is in direct conflict with the regulations of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which state that home-made cider must be 'nonintoxicating in fact," although not necessarily containing less than one-half of one per cent of alcohol.

Secretary Houston asked for an opinion as to whether the term "nonintoxicating cider and fruit juices" means nonintoxicating in fact or containing less than one-half of one per cent of alcohol. The phrase occurs in section 29 of the prohibition act, which permits the manufacture of nonintoxicating cider for use in the home without a permit.

Attorney-General's Answer.

In answer, the Attorney-General held that the expression meant containing less than one-half of one per cent, but added:

"In view, however, of what I understand section 29 to mean, I am sure it would be misleading for me to content myself with this direct answer to your question."

Congress intended by section 29 to prohibit the sale but not the manufacture of intoxicating cider for use in the home, the opinion said.

"Congress seems to have recognized the peculiar nature of cider," the Attorney-General declared. "When the juice of apples is pressed out the immediate result is cider. When this is done an intoxicating liquor, even within the definition of the prohibition act, has not been produced. But fermentation very shortly sets in, producing alcohol, and all that is necessary to convert the cider into an intoxicating liquor is the lapse of a short time.

"Broadly speaking, one who has manufactured cider which has not yet had time to ferment has not manufactured intoxicating liquor."

Section 29 has manifestly sought to make it clear that it was not intended that one who manufactured cider and kept it in his home for beverage purposes until it fermented would be guilty of possessing intoxicating liquors unlawfully, the opinion stated.

"Section 29 says that to manufacture this cider for use in the home shall not be unlawful," Palmer asserted. "Obviously it does not mean for immediate use or necessarily for use before it has had time to ferment. I think clearly the provision means that after being manufactured as sweet or non-intoxicating cider, it may be kept in the home for future use without violating the statute."

Liquor Possession Not Unlawful.

Possession of intoxicating liquor is not prohibited by the eighteenth amendment, the Attorney-General explained, and the only offense against the enforcement act which a manufacturer of cider for use in the home could be guilty of would be of having it in his possession after it ferments and produces alcohol.

"By the provision above quoted," he said, "I think Congress has, at least by necessary implication, provided that the possession by the manufacturer of cider, even after it has by fermentaation become intoxicating, shall not be unlawful so long as he holds it exclusively for use in the home or for sale to those having permits to make vinegar."

While the opinion is binding on the treasury, prohibition enforcement officials intimated tonight that Palmer might be asked to reconsider his decision in view of the conflict between his contention and the existing regulations.

7 ST. PAUL STORES USE PARCEL POST TO MAKE CITY DELIVERIES

Utilization of Mail Service Has Cut Cost 6 to 9 Cents on Handling Each Package.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 18.—Seven St. Paul stores, including the largest department store in the city, now make all their city deliveries by parcel post and have discontinued their separate delivery systems.

In March, 1919, the venture was made by one department store and gradually other concerns have taken it up, until now a majority of the St. Paul department store purchases for city delivery are distributed to the homes in United States mail wagons and trucks.

Utilization of the mail service for this work has cut the delivery cost to stores from 6 to 9 cents for each package. Under individual deliveries, the cost was from 12 to 18 cents, whereas now it is from 6 to 9 cents.

The Postoffice Department has been able to handle the additional work by adding seven trucks and 30 men to its force, and is handling 7000 packages daily, according to Postmaster Ott N. Raths, who originally proposed the plan.

$100,000 RAISED IN CHICAGO FOR FAMILIES OF SLAIN POLICE

50 Business Men Who Create Fund Will Maintain It for Two Years.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—A fund of $100,000 to be used in aiding the families of Chicago policemen who are killed in the performance of their duty was turned over to the Police Department today by a committee representing 50 business men, who contributed the money.

The fund is to be maintained for at least two years, and a committee will administer it. It will go into effect tomorrow.

The movement to raise the fund was started by Chief of Police Charles Fitzmorris when he recently took office.

Heeds Conscience, Pays $2250 Taxes.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 18.—A troubled conscience today resulted in the sending of an anonymous note to the receiver of taxes with $2250 in cash. "For back personal taxes improperly made out, due the city and State," the note read. This is the equivalent of taxes at four mills on an excess of $500,000 of personal property.

SCHOOL BOND ISSUE CARRIES IN KIRKWOOD

Vote More Than 7 to 1 for $205,000 for New High School Building.

The proposed $225,000 bond issue in the Kirkwood school district, $205,000 of it for a new high school, and $20,000 for a new negro school, was carried in yesterday's special election by a vote of more than 7 to 1.

The vote for the high school item was 1317 to 177, and the vote for the negro school was 1334 to 176.

Women, working through the League of Women Voters, are credited with the large majority for the school proposal. At two previous elections, proposals to increase the tax rate for school purposes have been voted down, the women not voting in those elections. The bond issue will bring about an increase in the tax rate for school and municipal purposes of 20 cents on the $100 valuation; namely, from $1.21 on the $100 to $1.41.

Mrs. Robert C. Powell, chairman of the Education Committee of the Kirkwood branch of the league, directed the campaign. A precinct chairman was named in each of the seven precincts of the Kirkwood district, and a block patrol was arranged, with all voters card-indexed by houses. Automobiles, carrying buglers, went about during the day to remind voters of the election, and to take aged or infirm ones to the polling places.

The Kirkwood school district includes Glendale, Oakland and Meacham Park. There are 1476 white children in the schools, and 16 0negro children. Graduates of the high school are admitted without examination to colleges of the North Central Association. There has been some question whether the colleges would continue to recognize the Kirkwood schools, but the vote for a new high school building is expected to insure continued recognition.

BOMBS AND RIFLES USED IN ATTACK ON IRISH BARRACKS

Band of Seventy Men Fight With Police at Foulkesmill, County Wexford, for 25 Minutes.

RAIDERS ARRIVE IN MOTOR CARS

Attackers Repulsed With Loss of One Car and Quantity of Arms; No Police Casualties.

By the Associated Press.

WEXFORD, Ireland, Dec. 18.—The barracks at Foulkesmill, County Wexford, was attacked early this morning with bombs and rifle fire by 70 men who arrived in three motor cars. A 25-minute battle resulted. The police occupying the barracks finally repulsed the raiders, who lost one motor car and a quantity of arms.

The police, according to the authorities, sustained no casualties.

Commons Amends Lords' Irish Time Limit Proposal.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—When the amended Irish home rule bill reached the House of Commons from the House of Lords this afternoon it was announced by Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, for the ministry, that the Government accepted the proposal framed by the upper house regarding the Irish Council. This removed the only outstanding difference between the houses and indicated the speedy adoption of the bill. The House of Lords last night agreed to virtually all the amendments to the bill made by the House of Commons, changing them only to provide that the Irish Council should not be elected by proportional representation and that the Lord Lieutenant should retain the right of nominating the President of the Council.

The Lower House today amended the House of Lords' proposal that if either area in Ireland refused to set up a Parliament the executive could not make the offer a second time unless within two years both Houses of the British Parliament adopted a resolution asking for it. On motion of the Government the House passed an amendment by a vote of 175 to 12, making the time limit three years after June 1, next. The bill this afternoon was returned to the House of Lords, which will consider it Monday.

Lloyd George Replies to Father O'Flanagan's Last Letter.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—The correspondence which has been going on between Prime Minister Lloyd George and Father Michael O'Flanagan, "Vice President of the Irish republic," in an effort to bring about a truce between England and the Sinn Fein organization, apparently has been brought to an end.

Father O'Flanagan, in his last message to Lloyd George, declared the only way to reconciliation was by "direct negotiations with the official head of the Irish nation—President de Valera."

In his reply sent today the Prime Minister said: "This attitude closes the door to those counsels of good will which you invoked by beginning this correspondence."

Father O'Flanagan's Letter.

Father O'Flanagan's message read: "While sending, through a message, peace and good will to the people of Ireland, your Government has intensified its fiendish attacks upon our lives, our liberty and our property.

"How hollow your fair words read in the newspapers sandwiched in between the burning of Cork and the murder of Canon Magner and Timothy Crowley.

"If you really wish for peace, allow the constitution adopted by the Irish people at the last general election to perform its legitimate functions and acts of violence will soon become as rare in Ireland as in any of the most peaceful nations of the world. Then arrange the terms of a treaty by direct negotiations with the official head of the Irish nation—President de Valera. This is the only possible road to that reconciliation which vitally interests both nations."

Lloyd George's Reply.

Lloyd George replied as follows:

"I had hoped that with moderation and common sense on both sides it might have been possible to reach an understanding which would put a stop to strife in Ireland and pave the way to a reconciliation. You now imply that in your judgment the only road to peace is the recognition of an Irish republic and the negotiation of a treaty with someone you designate as the official head of that republic.

"I have never failed to make it clear that there is no possibility of a settlement so long as the Sinn Fein demands an Irish republic and that, though I am willing to explore every avenue toward an honorable, constitutional settlement, there is no road to peace so long as the Sinn Fein persists in trying to compel any settlement by means of assassination and violence. The only way to peace is that the leaders of the Sinn Fein should recognize these fundamental facts; their present policy is only leading Ireland ever nearer to chaos and ruin.

"I deeply regret that you should close the door to those counsels of good will which you invoked at the beginning of this correspondence."

Cadet Who Had Been Drinking Killed Irish Priest.

CORK, Dec. 18.—It was brought out by an auxiliary policeman at the military court which is holding an inquiry into the shooting of Canon Magner and Timothy Crowley at Dunmanway, that Cadet Harte, who fired the shots, had been drinking steadily, and that he was "absolutely mad" at the time. The auxiliary policeman who was in the car of which Harte was in charge, said Harte had stopped the car, got out and accosted Crowley.. After searching the man's pockets, the witness, said, Harte assaulted him and then shot and killed him.

Harte next went to the priest. Meanwhile two other cadets stepped out of the car, but were waved away by Harte, who is declared to have snatched the priest's hat from his head and made him kneel. Then he fired twice, killing the clergyman, after which he went through Canon Magner's pockets and scattered the contents on the road. Harte finally was prevailed upon by the district inspector to re-enter the car.

Other auxiliaries who were in the party led by Cadet Harte cvorroborated this testimony. The result of the inquiry is to be announced later.

"Martial Law Circular No. 1" Issued in Dublin.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Dec. 18.—Intensified warfare—the usual accompaniment of peace parleys—marked the close of an eventual week in Ireland, but the optimistic predictions of the principal intermediaries are fulfilled, a truce is near at hand.

"Martial Law Circular No. 1," issued over the signature of Gen. Sir Nevil Macready today, says that all the forces of the crown may rest assured that so long as, in trying to restore order they do not exceed what is reasonably necessary for the purpose they will have full approval and support. But all are warned against the commission of offenses against the person or property of any resident, the breaking into any house in search of plunder or the molesting of a sentry protecting a person or property.

"Any person subject to military or martial law committing any of these offenses will be liable to courtmartial and sentence of death.

Lory Carrying Soldiers and Police Ambushed; Six Wounded.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Dec. 18.—A lory with military and police was ambushed this morning a mile from Ennistimon, County Clare. Fierce fighting ensued, lasting several hours. Four soldiers and two policemen were wounded.

Constable Killed, Sergeant Shot, When on Patrol.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, Dec. 18.—Constable Shannon was killed and a Sergeant was wounded by armed men who attacked the Constables while they were on patrol last evening at Swanlinbar Village, County Cavan. Another Constable was wounded when armed men visited his home. The military later made three arrests.

Two Soldiers Killed in Ambushing of Two Military Lorries.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Dec. 18.—The ambushing of two military lorries yesterday between Mitchelliston, County Cork, and Galbally, County Limerick, was officially announced today. Two soldiers were killed and two others wounded in these affairs.

Fixing of German Reparation Necessary to World Business Normality, Baruch Says

Resumption of Economic Functioning of Central Europe Pointed Out as of Vital Importance.

Until Central Europe Is Going Full Speed Ahead, the Rest of the World Will Lag, He Declares.

BERNARD M. BARUCH

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—For the grave situation in which the world finds itself there are remedies. In the first place, the malady will largely generate its own antitoxin, as so often happens in the natural body. As abnormally high prices stimulated production and reduced consumption, so low prices will stimulate consumption and reduce production. Thus in turn will come about an equilibrium between supply and demand that will restore the bases of stable prosperity.

But, as an international process, the beneficient tendency will be delayed, if not stopped, unless the wounded members of the world body be restored to function—and, of the wounded members that are not now on the way to renewal of commercial vitality, Germany is the most important and the very one for whose wounds there is a remedy that can be applied consciously by the rest of the world body.

Germany precipitated the political distress of the world by quitting work to go to war. She can only undo the evils she has done by returning to work. The supreme need of troubled mankind is to go back to work, and yet, so complex and delicate is the machinery of modern production and distribution that it is not possible for all the world to work normally and effectively until all resume their places in the organization.

We will not have peace in the fullest sense until a revived Germany again takes her part in the economic system and reopens the sources of production and distribution and the channels of trade that formerly so effectively complemented those of other commercial nations.

Without Central Europe, the world is incomplete and cannot work to its maximum. Yet to pay those staggering war debts, meet oppressive current budgets, and have a margin for savings and new capital, the world must work and work and save as never before.

Liable for Heavy Damages.

By the terms of the Treaty of Versailles, Germany was adjudged liable to payment for a large part of the damages she had wrought by her wanton upsetting of the peace of the world. And, parenthetically, I wish to say that never was there a more insensate act than that of the rulers who plunged Germany and the world into the abyss from which we are now trying to climb. Her industrial progress was the feature of our age and her commercial penetration of neighboring States, and, indeed, of the world, was rapidly giving her the substance, if not the form, of all that she could hope to gain by victorious arms.

Now, the bill against Germany was left indeterminate, but it can be definitely fixed by the reparation commission, in which there is a place reserved for the United States. What Germany must pay is beyond anything in the way of indemnities or reparations that the world has ever known, just as the offense and its ruinous consequences were likewise exceptional.

Germany is like a debtor who owes more than he can possibly pay, but yet does not know even approximately how much, and, therefore, declines to resume business. She will not work hard to fill a bottomless pit.

I am firmly of the opinion that the one great obstacle to her early return to her place in what you might call the industrial concert of the world, with the helpful effect to her former associates, is the dismaying uncertainty of the amount of the colossal reparations she must make. At the same time, there is nothing else so important to the whole world's return to business normality and prosperity as the resumption of economic functioning by Germany. Hence, it is not too much to say that the crux of the world industrial and commercial problem lies in the fixing of the reparations that Germany must produce.

France Most Interested.

The Allies must eventually come to see this, for they are under heavy burdens and are looking to the German reparations for their own rehabilitation. Germany must work to produce the wealth with which to pay reparation. In helping herself, she will do what is more important —she will be helping us all. Until central Europe is again going full speed ahead, the rest of the world will lag. We may not like it, but that is the cold fact. The question of the inter-indebtedness of the Allies, and even the sane rehabilitation of our own taxation, cannot be disposed of until the world is again humming with industry and every route and channel of commerce is reopened.

France, which is more interested in the early settlement of this question than any other nation, is also the stumbling block to its realization. Nevertheless, the attitude of France is not unreasonable. Remember that France, through the agony of four years defense of civilization, sacrificed 1,350,000 of her sons and endured the sufferings of 1,700,000 of wounded. Her northern provinces were ravaged and their wealth wiped out, terrible gaps were blown in her industrial life, her social life was upset and broken, and she was overwhelmed with the enormous debt of defense.

Above all things else France is determined, and, we must all agree, justly so, that she shall not again be put in peril of felonious assault by Germany. She trusts not in Germany and is even dubious about some of her former allies. The Poilu on the Rhine and a demoralized and powerless Germany seem to France, under present conditions, to be the only way out. France must first be guaranteed that Germany shall keep the peace. Then the question will be open to settlement, with due regard to economic conditions.

Although no part of the reparations may be ours, our interest in the sealing of the peace by terminating this open question is profound and vital. Much as other nations will gain, none will gain more than ourselves from taking this step toward peace and ending the present disintegrating uncertainty. The present moving call for help for the poor starving children of the Central empires, with which we are all in deepest sympathy, is a case in point. How much better for them, and for us, it would be if we could assist them by giving their fathers an opportunity to work. Humanitarian considerations, as well as enlightened selfishness, demand the industrial rehabilitation of the former enemy countries.

Fixing of Reparations.

The fixing of the reparation amount should be followed by a gradual re-establishment of German credit, by an immediate rise in world exchange, by an increase in the purchasing power of the nations and in a world-wide resumption of commerce.

The balance of the German obligation should be put in the form of bonds, the interest on and gradual amortization of which Germany could promptly pay, thus establishing their value. The French and other recipients of these bonds could use them as the basis of credit for their much needed purchases of raw materials and other things in foreign lands. Thus the settlement of the reparation question would favorably affect the whole world through the financial and commercial channels that radiate from the allied nations.

conditions of service in Haiti, it is remarkable that the offenses were so few in number and that they all may be chargeable to the ordinary defects of human character, such defects as result in the commission of similar offenses in the United States and elsewhere in the best regulated communities.

"The general conduct of the troops of occupation can be fairly judged by the results of that occupation.

Tranquillity in Island.

"Now for the first time in more than a hundred years tranquillity and security of life and property may be said to prevail in Haiti.

"The Haitian people themselves welcomed the coming of our men and are unwilling to have them depart.

"The establishment and maintenance of tranquil conditions and then of security of life and property all over the republic of Haiti has been arduous and a dangerous and thankless task. That task our marines have performed with fidelity and great gallantry.

"The court cannot refrain from recording its opinion of such, and that the most serious part, of the reflections which have been made upon the officers who have served in Haiti.

Officers Sympathetic.

"The outstanding characteristics of those officers, from the brigade commander down, has been their sympathetic attitude toward every step that would lead to a betterment of the country and to improvement in the physical, mental and moral conditions of the population.

"With slender resources and inadequate administrative authority, they have accomplished much, where anything more than suppression of organized insurrection seemed impossible.

"The above remarks apply with particular force to those officers and enlisted men of the marine corps who have been serving as officers of the gendarmerie of Haiti.

Criticism "Unwarranted."

"After a careful study of the matters in issue, based not only on the evidence in the record, but also upon other original and reliable sources of information, and the court's own observations while in Haiti, the court regards the charges which have been published, as all considered, regrettable and thoroughly unwarranted reflections on a portion of the United States marine corps which has performed difficult, dangerous and delicate duty in Haiti in a manner which, instead of calling for adverse criticism, is entitled to the highest commendation.

"The record of the proceedings of this twenty-first day of the inquiry was read and approved and the court having finished the inquiry, then, at 11 o'clock a. m., adjourned to await the action of the convening authority.

BODIES CREMATED UNDER BOILER

Supervisor to Try to Stop Practice at Baltimore Asylum.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 18.—The practice of cremating unclaimed bodies under the boilers in the engine room at Bayview Asylum was brought to light today by Dr. Charles W. Wood, a member of the Board of Supervisors of City Charities. He said it was one of the practices at the institution he set out to stop after becoming a member of the board.

Boy Held on Arson Charge.

FULTON, Mo., Dec. 18.—Louis Rence, 17 years old, was arrested today in school at New Bloomfield on a warrant charging him with attempted arson. It is alleged Renoe attempted to fire the home of Richard Hamlin, near Carrington. He denied the charge and his father has employed counsel. Four attempts were made the past several weeks to destroy the Hamlin home.

DISARMAMENT AS MEANS TO END WAR SUGGESTED BY NEW

Indiana Senator in Conference With President-elect Harding on Association of Nations Plan.

DR. BUTLER, REED, DAUGHERTY THERE

Columbia University President Predicts Trade Ties Will Prove More Binding Than Peace Covenants.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, O., Dec. 18.—President-elect Harding heard suggestions for his association of nations' plan from widely divergent viewpoints today, in a succession of conferences with Senator Harry S. New of Indiana, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University.

Each indicated that he thought the President-elect was working along hopeful lines, but each had his own idea of what sholud be made the basis and form of any international agreement to promote peace.

Senator New, a Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee, was inclined to favor a disarmament agreement, if one could be made, as the most effective means of ending wars. He indicated that he would not be adverse to taking such machinery of the Versailles League of Nations as might be found practicable, but told Harding that in his opinion a covenant mutually pledging the leading nations of the world to reduce armaments wolud be vastly superior to any complicated international peace structure.

Reed Counsels Non-Acceptance.

As a Democrat who has made a bitter fight for flat rejection of the Versailles treaty, Senator Reed counseled the President-elect against acceptance of league membership on any basis and recommended modification of international law as the best hope of averting misunderstandings. To go into a league in the face of the people's verdict at the nation-world to reduce armaments would be a breach of faith and a costly blunder. He evidenced little faith that wars could be abolished, but conceded that a plan for more deliberate diplomatic parleys might prevent some of them.

Economic considerations were advanced by Dr. Butler as the determining factor of the international situation. He prophesied that in the end trade and commercial ties would be found more binding and more practically useful than peace covenants in rehabilitating civilization and guaranteeing its security. He suggested that Germany's burden of war indemnity be definitely fixed as soon as possible and that markets be stabilized by establishing credits among consumers abroad.

New Reserves Judgment.

Both Senator Reed and Dr. Butler indicated that they considered the war referendum proposal impracticable and Senator New reserved judgment regarding it.

Another caller today was Harry M. Daugherty, who is one of the President-elect's most trusted advisers in the construction of his administration. It is understood that both Daugherty and Senator New talked with Harding about Cabinet appointments.

VOTE OF NEGROES IN SOUTH TO BE TAKEN UP IN THE HOUSE

Census Committee to Hear Testimony in Connection With Reapportionment Bill.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Charges that many negroes in the Southern states are not permitted to vote will be aired by the House Census Committee in considering the reapportionment bill, it was announced today by Chairman Siegel.

House Republicans in caucus last night refused to approve the Tinkham resolution, providing for an investigation of alleged disfranchisement of negroes, with a view to cutting down the representation of Southern states.

A meeting of the committee has been called for Monday, at which, it is expected, a decision will be reached as to the extent of the increase in House membership. A bill already introduced by Siegel calls for 483 members, an increase of over the present membership.

League Leaders Say First Session Proves It Is a World Factor

ples. He appealed to the youth of the world, the men of tomorrow, those who fought in the great war, to construct a moral world indispensable to the future of mankind, and concluded:

Mandate Report.

Tthe report of the Mandate Committee adopted declared the council had adopted such a policy regarding mandates that there was no opportunity to discuss them publicly before they went into force.

The attack upon the council was led by Lord Robert Cecil, who criticised the council's refusal to communicate to the assembly the text of the various mandates for the administration of former German colonies.

Doherty warned the council of the gravity of the responsibility it had assumed in withholding the mandates from publicity.

Balfour came to the defense of the council. The danger, as he saw it, was not in the terms or the manner of execution of the mandates, but in the liability of the assembly to come into conflict with the council which alone, he held, was intended by the framers of the covenant to have jurisdiction over mandates.

"I shall not feel bound, nor will my successor in the council feel bound, by anything this assembly or any other assembly shall do," he cried.

Many of the delegates appeared nonplussed by Balfour's defiant attitude toward the assembly, particularly when he referred to "the jealous spirit shown by some of the speakers," and when he declared that the recommendations of the Mandates Committee amounted to coercive measures as regarded the council.

Cecil Cites Declaration.

Lord Robert Cecil retorted that the assembly had adopted the report on the relations of the council and the assembly, in which it was declared the assembly could examine any question that came within the competence of the league.

Leon Bourgeois, French member of the council, supported the viewpoint of Balfour.

Lord Robert Cecil suggested that at least one woman should be appointed a member of the Mandate Commission since that body will have much to do regarding women and children in mandated territories.

Representatives of Austria, Bulgaria, Luxemburg, Albania, Costa Rica and Finland, which have been made members of the league, had seats in today's meeting, but did not participate in the proceedings. It was impossible to obtain the proper credentials in the short space of time which has intervened since membership was accorded to these nations.

Certain questions affecting international relations coming within the jurisdiction of the League of Nations have been reserved by China for a more opportune occasion for bringing them to the attention of the council or assembly of the league, Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese delegate to the assembly, declared at this morning's session of the assembly.

The council of the league yesterday afternoon officially approved the draft of the mandates for the former German colonies, submitted for approval by New Zealand, Australia, England, the Union of South Africa and Japan.

The island of Samoa was officially allotted to New Zealand, New Guinea and other islands south of the Equator were alloted to Australia and Nauru, or Pleasant Island, in the Pacific, a short distance south of the Equator and just within the old German sphere of influence, to England. German Southwest Africa was alloted to the Union of South Africa and the Pacific Islands north of the Equator were given to Japan.

The council defined the terms of these mandates and laid down rules under which the mandatories are to administer the territories. The consent of the council will be required for any modification in the terms. In the case of dispute between a mandatory and another member of the League of Nations relating to interpretation of the provision of the mandates, the dispute will be submitted to the International Court of Justice, provided it cannot be settled by direct negotiations.

No Intoxicants for Natives.

Under the provisions of the mandates the supplying of intoxicating spirits or beverages to natives shall be prohibited, and likewise military training of natives, unless for police purposes or the defense of territory, is not to be allowed. No military or naval bases are to be permitted on mandated territories. The mandatories are to make a report to the council of the League of Nations annually.

Freedom of religious worship is to be permitted, according to the stipulations. Mandatories will have full power of administration and legislation over territories, subject to certain conditions. They must see to it that slave trade is prohibited and that no forced labor is permitted.

Japan Foregoes Request.

The Japanese delegation made the statement in the afternoon that it would not press the racial equality question with reference to mandated territories, in order to permit acceptance of the "C" mandate as presented by the Powers to the League Council. This removes one of the obstacles to completion of the report of the Committee on Mandates.

Nine nations, led by Japan, yesterday signed a protocol giving executive approval to the international court of justice set up by the League of Nations. Portugal signed a provision for obligatory jurisdiction, while the other nations simply gave their consent to the court plan without the obligatory provision. The latter nations were Greece, Paraguay, Uruguay, Siam, New Zealand, Norway and Sweden.

Brigadier-General Sir Richard C B. Haking, who has served under the administration of Sir Reginald Tower at Danzig, has been appointed permanent High Commissioner at Danzig by the council.

League Has Proved Vitality by Action, Says Viviani.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Dec. 18.—M. Viviani of the French delegation said to the Associated Press respecting the work of the assembly:

"The league cannot but congratulate itself on its action. Evidently it has not been able to regenerate and revolutionize the world. Only the silly formed such hopes for it. It has cleared the ground before it of many questions and can next year in the shortest space of time accomplish its labors. It has proved its vitality by action."

Speaking of the United States, M. Viviani said that country showed a sympathy which made it evident that a closer union was possible.

N. W. Rowell of the Canadian delegation, who has been prominent in the sessions of the assembly, said:

"The first assembly of the League of Nations has satisfied its friends and disappointed its enemies. Its most significant feature is the fact that for five weeks representatives from 41 different nations have found it possible to co-operate on a great variety of matters and international concerns, and that as the assembly progressed it had developed in an increasing measure a corporate consciousness, a sense of power and authority and the conviction that it serves a great purpose. That guarantees its future.

"Its greatest achievement was a permanent court of international justice. This was in itself a great step, substituting reason for the sword and as a means of setting international suits. In the space of five weeks the assembly has accomplished more business than any parliament of any one of the nations represented in the same space of time.

"The league has become more truly a world organization by the admission of former enemy and neutral states. The league will live because humanity needs it."

TENTATIVE SYSTEM OF MAIN ROADWAYS FOR STATE MAPPED

Superintendent of State Highway Department Suggests Plans for Arteries of Traffic.

SECONDARY ROUTES ALSO PROVIDED FOR Five Concrete Roads Designed With Connecting Links of Gravel Construction From Every County.

Following the adoption at the November election of the constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to issue bonds to a total amount of $60,000,000 for the construction of hard surfaced roads in the State, attention of road experts and members of good roads organizations has been directed to the working out of a road system which would meet the requirements of the constitutional amendment, which would meet the approval of a majority of the members of the Legislature, which would provide a practical system of highways connecting with State highways of adjoining states and which would meet the requirements of the Federal Government in the rules governing the allotment of Federal aid in the construction of State highways.

John M. Malang, superintendent of the State Highway Department, after conferences with officers of the Federated Roads Council in St. Louis and road organizations in Kansas City and other parts of the State, has completed a map of a tentative system of highways which, he says, will meet all these requirements, and which will be fair not alone to the larger cities, from which will come the greater part of the money to pay for the roads, but which also will be fair to the outlying and poorer counties. The Malang map accompanies this article.

Five Main Roads Planned.

The general idea of the plan is for five main highways to be built of concrete, two east and west through the more thickly settled portions of the State: two north and south, one following generally the bank of the Mississippi River and the other generally the western border of the State, with a fifth road extending from St. Louis southwesterly to the Kansas line, generally following the route of the Frisco railroad.

In addition to these primary or main roads the plan contemplates the construction of secondary roads of gravel with a generous mileage in every county in the State.

Under the provisions of the constitutional amendment the road bond money must be expended in every county and cannot be used only for main highways connecting the larger cities.

Malang said that in preparing his map he gave consideration to the Federal requirements with a view to obtaining Federal aid which he believes will be continued by Congress, and also consideration to the fact that of the money to pay the bonds, which will come from automobile licenses, the larger cities will contribute more than 75 per cent, giving them a particular interest. St. Louis and Kansas City are the hubs of the system, the main highways for the most part leading to and from them, with the secondary roads so planned that they will lead to these main highways at various points throughout the State.

The main highway proposed in the Malang plan are particularly described as follows:

From St. Louis to Kansas City—Road runs through St. Louis County, taking advantage of the road construction provided for there, to St. Charles, and in a general westerly direction through Wentzville, Warrenton, Danville, Fulton, Jefferson City, California, Sedalia, Warrensburg, Lee's Summit and into Kansas City over the excellent roads of Jackson County. In addition to providing a reasonable direct route between the two large cities, this road gives direct connections between those cities and the State Capital. It also utilizes the existing bridges over the Missouri River at St. Charles and Jefferson City, and avoids the expense of the construction of a new bridge, which would be necessary at Rocheport or some other point if the road was run in a more direct line to Kansas City instead of turning south at Fulton to Jefferson City.

Serves Farming Districts.

From Hannibal to Kansas City and St. Joseph—This road is particularly serviceable to the agricultural districts in the northern part of the State. It runs almost a direct line west from Hannibal to Chillicothe, passing through Monroe City, Macon, and Brookfield. Just outside of Chillicothe it divides, one branch going on west through Cameron to St. Joseph, and the other southwesterly through Excelsior Springs to Kansas City.

From St. Louis Southwest—In a general way this road follows the route of the Frisco railroad. It goes through St. Louis County to Union, and then southwesterly through St. Clair, Rolla, Waynesville, Lebanon, Marshfield, Springfield, Republic, Mount Vernon, Carthage and Joplin and ends at the Kansas line, where it connects with a Kansas State road.

North and South at the Eastern Edge of the State—This road extends north and south from St. Louis. Northerly it uses the St. Louis-Kansas City road to Wentzville, where it branches north to Troy, Louisiana, Hannibal, Canton and Wayland, where it turns east to the Mississippi River. Opposite Quincy, which is the terminus of an Illinois State road. Southerly it runs from St. Louis to Festus, Ste. Genevieve, Perryville, Jackson, Cape Girardeau, Morley, New Madrid, Hayti, and ending at the Arkansas line.

North and South at Western Edge of State—This road extends from Kansas City in two directions. Northerly it runs to St. Joseph, Albany, and Bethany to the Iowa State line, where it connects with a State road in Iowa. Southerly it passes through Harrisonville, Butler, Nevada, Lamar, Carthage, Joplin and Neosho, ending at the Arkansas line. It connects with other main highways at Kansas City, St. Joseph and Carthage, using the route of the main southwesterly road between Carthage and Joplin.

These main or primary roads, represented on the map by heavy unbroken lines, form the main arteries of the system. Reference to the map will show that the secondary roads, represented by the broken lines, reach each county and connect at intervals with the main arteries, and that by using the two together every section of the State is made reasonably accessible by road to every other section.

Malang, in working out his plan, gave practical consideration to the political phases of the situation to be met in the Legislature which will have the final approval of the road plans. Consequently, there are 18 of the 34 State Senators who live in cities or towns on the primary roads, a majority of one, and 81 members of the House from counties through which the primary roads pass, a majority in the House of 10. This would seem to meet the objection which invariably arises in the Legislature in considering road questions that the money will not be expended in the rural counties.

Malang estimates that the primary road system alone will cost $60,000,000 and that the secondary system will cost $29,000,000, but it is not his idea that the primary system should be constructed before work is begun on the secondary roads.

"Work should in my opinion proceed simultaneously on both primary and secondary roads," he said. "Primary roads should cost slightly less than $40,000 a mile, and the secondary roads approximately $10,000 a mile. It is my idea that when work on primary roads to cost say $10,000,000 is laid out work on secondary roads to cost about $5,000,000 should be laid out.

"This not only would be playing fair with all sections of the State, but it also would be improving the roads as a whole.

Favors Working From End.

"I also believe that on the primary roads work should be begun at one end of the road and extended as rapidly as possible to the other terminus, instead of beginning work in a large number of places on the same road at the same time, and practically taking away from use such roads as the people have available. To begin at one end would leave the road or most of it open for use all the time.

"In working out my suggestions, which I hope will meet with the approval of the Federated Road's Council and the other organizations which have done so much for and which are so greatly interested in proper road improvements, I have tried to be absolutely fair and to present a concrete plan which will be practically free from serious objections. I believe I have such a plan, though, of course, I do not mean to say that it cannot be improved in some respects. Those things can be worked out by conferences.

"However, the plan adopted must be such that we can get Federal money in the future to aid us, because the bond issue alone will not provide enough money, and by all means the legislation must set out exactly the route to be traversed by the various roads to remove the influence of local politicians here, there and everywhere in the location of the roads. If the Legislature does not locate the roads exactly, the Highway Commission, or whatever authority is to have their location, will put in most of its time listening to the fighting delegations instead of building roads. That must be avoided."

Projects for the building of roads which will be a part of the primary system already have been approved by the State Highway Board providing for an expenditure of $3,677,425. Federal aid is available for this work.

Malang has found from an examination of the automobile license records for 1919, the 1920 records not being complete or available, that 73.16 per cent of the automobiles owned in the State are in counties through which the primary roads pass, that 77.59 per cent of the money received by the State for automobile licenses comes from those counties, and that 70.82 per cent of the population of the State is in those counties. Of the total expenditure proposed in his plan only 66 per cent is for the primary roads passing through those counties.

Mileage Plan Is Outlined.

The total mileage of the primary road system outlined by him is 1667.4 miles, and of the secondary road system, 2918.3 miles, a total combined mileage of 4585.7 miles.

The proposed mileage by counties is:

Primary roads — Andrew, 24 miles; Bates, 34; Barton, 23; Buchanan, 31.6; Caldwell, 48; Callaway, 47; Cape Girardeau, 31; Cass, 28; Clark, 20; Clay, 60; Clinton, 15; Cole, 14.8; Cooper, 14; Crawford, 30; De Kalb, 15; Franklin, 44; Gentry, 32.5; Greene, 41.5; Harrison, 35; Jackson, 34; Jasper, 55; Jefferson, 30; Johnson, 42.5; Laclede, 38; Lawrence, 27.2; Lewis, 26; Lincoln, 33; Linn, 25; Livingston, 43; McDonald, 25; Macon, 34.5; Marion, 60.7; Moniteau, 30; Montgomery, 25; New Madrid, 35; Newton, 25; Pemiscot, 45.3; Perry, 26; Pettis, 25; Phelps, 36.4; Pike, 42; Platte, 9; Pulaski, 28; Ralls, 16; Ray, 15; St. Charles, 42; Ste. BLODGETT ELECTED TO SENATE, 4514 TO 1657

Landslide Victory of Republican Candidate in St. Louis District Was on Light Vote.

Another Republican landslide was recorded yesterday in the special election for State Senator in the Thirty-second (St. Louis) District, when Henry W. Blodgett of 5428 Delmar boulevard, a member of the law firm of Blodgett & Fisher and former United States District Attorney here, was elected to succeed Judge-elect Conway Elder, by a vote nearly three times that of his Democratic opponent, Lawrence C. Kingsland of 5869 Cates avenue, Democratic City committeeman from the Twenty-eighth Ward.

Blodgett received 4514 votes, Kingsland polled 1657, and Jacob Grimm of 4507 McKinley avenue, Socialist candidate, received 191 votes. The total vote was 6362, in a district having a registration of 73,475 and in which the vote for a representative State office in the November election was about 66,800. The Republican majority at that time was about two to one, but there were 41 of the 130 precincts in the district counted as Democratic.

Kingsland carried only fire precincts yesterday, three of these being in the Sixteenth Ward. He tied one precinct in this ward with Blodgett, 15 to 15, with one vote for Grimm.

Belated Resignation Costly.

Elder resigned following his electoin to the State Supreme Court bench. Had he resigned before the general election the special election yesterday would have been unnecessary and the cost of the contest, estimated at $5350, would have been saved. The cost per vote for conducting the election was about 85 cents.

The returns were quickly received last night at the office of the Board of Election Commissioners in the City Hall. The first precincts made their returns at 7:10 p. m. and by 8:20, 128, or all but two precincts, had been reecived. These two came in at 8:50 p. m. and the election was over. The polls had been open the usual period, 6 a. m. to 7 p. m.

1353 Precinct Votes 101.

The vote in the precinct having the largest registration of any in the city was light. This is the seventh precinct of the Twenty-eighth Ward, which has 1353 registered voters, but 101 of whom voted yesterday. Sixty-six of the votes went to Blodgett and 35 to Kingsland. The polling place is near Union boulevard and Pershing avenue, the majority of the voters living in apartment houses.

The vote in the candidates' home precincts was: Kingsland's—Blodgett 48, Kingsland 25, Grimm 1. Blodget's—Blodget 40, Kingsland 33, Grimm 1. Grimm's—Blodgett 36, Kingsland 23, Grimm 7. The campaign was of a mild nature. Blodgett's election gives the Republicans a majority of four seats in the Senate.

HEARING ON SERVICE MEN BILL

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The Senate Finance Committee decided today that before taking action on the House bill proposing adjusted compensation for former service men, it would seek the views of Secretary Houston as to the condition of Federal finances.

The committee also may hear other witnesses as to taxes or other sources of revenue to provide funds for carrying out the terms of the measure.

MAIL TRUCK USED TO CHASE ALLEGED ROBBER

Negro, Accused of Holdup, Who Jumps on Street Car, Trailed by Victim and Caught.

Harry Zeller of 1321 January avenue, a driver for the Beck Feed Co., 5701 Manchester avenue, after being robbed of $42 at 6 o'clock last night by a negro who had boarded his wagon, jumped on a mail truck and pursued the alleged robber, who had taken a street car, to Vandeventer avenue, where he caused his arrest.

Zeller had recognized the negro, he said, as John Saunders, 35 years old, of 2723 Chouteau avenue, a former employe of the feed company, and addressed him by name when the negro flourished a knife and ordered him to hand over his money at Knox and Manchester avenues.

Zeller saw Saunders get on an eastbound Manchester car and hailed a mail truck driven by Robert Hynek of 1900 South Twelfth street. Hynek kept up with the car and Zeller told the conductor not to let the negro off unitl they found a policeman.

At Vandeventer, and Manchester avenues, a mile from where the chase started, Zeller saw Capt. Hoffman of the Newstead Avenue District and Patrolman Zeller (no relation of the driver), of the Magnolia Avenue District, and told them of the robbery. They boarded the car and arrested Saunders. The patrolman found $32 on the floor of the car near the seat Saunders had occupied.

"It wasn't me," was the only statement the prisoner would make.

Detectives Lally and Ryan, searching customers in a saloon at Seventh and Walnut streets at 8 p. m. for concealed weapons, reported they found a loaded revolver and 11 extra cartridges in the pockets of Harry Winkowski, 16, of 612 Walnut street, employed as a dishwasher in a lunch room on Market street.

Winskowski told the detectives, they say, he purchased the weapon on Market street Friday and that he had intended to hold up a lunchroom at Fourth and Walnut streets last night, that he had tired of working for $10 a week. He was sent to the House of Detention.

ONE MAN ARRESTED AFTER FIVE HOLD UP JEWELRY STORE

William Mauch and Son Bound and $5000 in Gems, and $500 Taken at 1436 South Broadway.

PRISONER CAUGHT AFTER LONG CHASE

Was in Company With Escaped Workhouse Prisoner, Who Succeeded in Eluding the Police.

Benjamin Gilbreath Jr., 5623 Pennsylvania avenue, is held by the police on suspicion of being one of five men who at 9:35 o'clock yesterday morning robbed William Mauch, 63 years old, and his son, William Mauch, 26, in their jewelry store at 1436 South Broadway of jewelry valued at $4500 and $500 cash. The jeweler and his son were bound hand and foot by the robbers, who escaped in an automobile.

A rogue's gallery picture of Gilbreath was shown the Mauchs shortly after the robbery, after it had been reported that Gilbreath had been seen in the vicinity of the store, and they are said to have pronounced it a likeness of one of the robbers.

Acting on this clue Special Officers Eichelberger and McCarthy, working under Detective Sergeant Sherman of the Wyoming Street Station, were assigned to watch Gilbreath's home.

Chased by Policemen.

About 1 p. m. they saw Gilbreath and Albert Lee McEwan, who escaped in a bread truck from the workhouse Friday, leave Gilbreath's home and start eastward on King's highway boulevard. Commandeering an automobile the policemen started in the direction of the men, who were a block distant.

Gilbreath and McEwan saw the officers and ran toward Pennsylvania avenue and through an alley, the officers pursuing on foot and shooting at Gilbreath and McEwan as they ran. McEwan was seen to fall, but quickly regained his feet and vaulted over a fence. Gilbreath jumped a fence on the opposite side of the alley.

The officers separated, each going for one of the men. McEwan escaped, but Gilbreath was taken from an outhouse of a residence.

It was Gilbreath who informed the police that McEwan was his companion, but he denied that he had participated in the robbery of the jewelry store. He was unarmed when caught.

Prisoner Taken to Store.

After being booked at the Wyoming Street Station, Gilbreath was taken to the jewelry store where Mauch and his son said he resembled one of the robbers, according to the police, but the store was crowded with customers at the time and the jeweler and his son said they would view Gilbreath again today at the police station to make certain of the identification.

Gilbreath has been arrested numerous times in the last few years, and was convicted of manslaughter Feb. 17 last, and sentenced to six months in the city jail. He shot and killed Andrew Heidinger, of 606 Hickory street, the night of June 3, 1919, while riding in an automobile with Heidinger and others, by accident, he claimed at his trial. The case had been amended from a charge of murder in the first degree.

Record of McEwan.

McEwan, who is being sought both for escaping from the workhouse and on suspicion of the jewelry store robbery, is 23 years old and an ex-convict. He was charged with possession of burglar tools and grand larceny, but was permitted to plead guilty to "malicious mischief," and was sentenced last Tuesday to six months to the workhouse. Mauch, the son, told the following story of the robbery yesterday:

A man entered the store at 9:30 a. m. and asked to be shown some watch chains. The elder Mauch was behind the counter and the son was arranging a display in the front show window. Several trays containing chains were placed before the visitor by the elder Mauch. The supposed customer appeared nervous. A few minutes later four other men ran into the store. Each carried a revolver and as they entered the man at the counter also drew a revolver and commanded the Mauches to put up their hands.

Bound With Clotheslines.

The robbers then marched the jewelers into a back room, made them lie down in a corner and tied their hands and feet with clotheslines. The elder Mauch walked with the aid of a crutch and as he hobbled along to the back room one of the robbers pressed a revolver against his back and said gruffly, "Get a move on or we'll kill you."

The outer door of the safe, which was in the back part of the store behind the counter, was open and as he passed it the elder Mauch reached for a pistol which was inside. A robber detected him and giving him a shove, said, "Make another move and I'll blow your head off."

After tying their victims the robbers went into the store proper and took a sack of unset diamonds valued at $1900, the cash and the pistol from the safe, "jimmying" an inner door to get into the compartment where the valuables were kept. They also took from the show window several diamond rings and other articles of jewelry valued at $2600. They took only expensive articles, throwing the cheaper ones aside.

Fired to Attract Police.

A few minutes later the Mauches heard the engine of an automobile starting and concluding that the robbers had departed, freed themselves. The son got a revolver from behind a counter and fired three shots in the air to attract the police.

Telephone linemen who were at work in the neighborhood informed the police that a few minutes before Mauch fired the shots they saw a large touring car occupied by five men turn into Miller street from Broadway and disappear north on Third street.

Mauch Jr. said he believed the robbery was planned Friday night when two men, posing as Government agents, entered the store just before closing time and said they wanted to inspect the stock to see how it compared with tax returns. They looked about the place, paying particular attention to the safe.

WOMAN ENDS LIFE WITH POISON, MAN KILLS SELF WITH PISTOL

Second Man Stabs Self With Fork, Ribs Saving Heart, and His Condition Is Serious.

A woman was found unconscious last night, and later died, and a man was found dead, circumstances in both cases indicating self-destruction, and another man attempted to kill himself and is in the City Hospital in a serious condition.

Pearl S. Campbell, 34 years old, housekeeper for Joseph Conners at 1217 South Third street, was found lying unconscious in bed when Conners returned home from work last evening. Beside her was a note saying, "Don't blame anyone for this; sickness and disheartened." She died at the City Hospital at 8:30, physicians attributing her death to poison.

The body of a man thought to be S. H. McLaren of Pittsburg, Pa., was found in a room at the Edison Hotel, 107 North Eighteenth street, at 9 p. m. He had a bullet wound in his head, the pillow was powder-burned, and in his hand was a new .32-caliber revolver with one exploded and three unused shells. In his pocket was a card issued to S. H. McLaren, authorizing him to solicit subscriptions for the Pittsburg Dispatch. He was about 35 years old.

William H. Miller, 31, of -846B South Twelfth street, stuck a table fork into his left side yesterday afternoon because his wife refused to live with him since he has been out of work and unable to support her. He is in a serious condition at the City Hospital. Physicians say the fork probably struck ribs, and thus missed the heart.

MAN SOUGHT IN FARM STOCK SALE HERE HELD IN MARION, O.

Circuit Attorney to Investigate Charges—Woman Says She Lost $2000.

James A. Steele, who has been sought by the St. Louis police on complaints growing out of the payment of money for "farm certificates," is under arrest in Marion, O., according to a telegram from Marion to the St. Louis police.

Complainants against Steele were George C. Klein of 3311 Minnesota avenue and Mrs. Ida Wells of 4334 Lindell boulevard, both of whom said they paid money to Steele for farm certificates, or in farming in Missouri, but did not receive the stock. Mrs. Wells said she paid Steele $2000. The case was placed in the hands of the Circuit Attorney's office.

UNION TREASURER REPORTS LOSS OF $1084 IN HOLDUP

Louis J. Schweider Robbed of Iron Moulders' Fund on Way Home After Meeting.

Louis J. Schweider, 43 years old, of 6822 West Park avenue, treasuer of Iron Moulders' Union, Local No. 59, reported to the police that he was robbed of $1084 of the union's funds by two highwaymen at 11:30 o'clock last night near West Park and McCausland avenues.

Schweider left the union meeting with the funds, which consisted of dues and assessments, in the automobile of Charles Dorst, the recording secretary, who drove Schweider to within one block of his home, which was on Dorst's way home.

Schweider had walked only about 25 feet east when he said the two armed men sprang out from behind a dwelling and compelled him to put up his hands while they robbed him.

He said the union has no office or safe and he always took the funds home for safekeeping. He said he is under a bond of $1000 and carries an $800 insurance policy against robbery.

BUTCHER KNIFE FOUND NEAR BODY OF SLAIN CHINESE

Jung York Robbed and Stabbed to Death in His Laundry at 1505 Olive Street.

CRIME DISCOVERED BY A NEGRO GIRL

Belt Around Victim's Waist Held $55; He Was Known to Have $200, His Brother Says.

Jung York, 59 years old, a Chinese, was robbed and slain with a knife yesterday morning in his laundry at 1505 Olive street, where he had lived and been known in that neighborhood for 16 years as Charles Sing. He had been in the United States 30 years.

That the motive for the crime was robbery was indicated by the cash drawer having been broken from its fastenings in the counter and rummaged, part of its contents being strewn on the floor where the drawer was found.

The crime was discovered by Fitzhura Smith, 17 years old, a negress, of 309 North Fifteenth street, who found the body underneath Jung's bed in a partitioned enclosure in the laundry when she reported for work at 9 o'clock. She notified the police.

Stab Wound Killed Him.

Death was caused by a deep stab wound through the skull above the right eye which penetrated the brain. There were six other cuts on the head and face. Beside the body was found a butcher knife, said by the Smith girl to have belonged to Jung, and which the police believe was used by the robber. In a belt around Jung's waist was $55 which had not been disturbed.

The Chinese had evidently been at breakfast when attacked by the assassin, for the remains of a meal were on a table near the entrance to his bedroom.

The body had been thrust under the bed with only the feet and part of the legs, which were entangled in the rungs of a chair, protruding from the partitioned enclosure.

Negro Girl Discovers Crime.

When the negro girl appeared for work she found the front door ajar and not seeing her employer at work as usual called his name. Becoming alarmed at receiving no response, she glanced over the counter and saw the dead man's legs and blood on the floor. She then notified the police, and they found the body warm when they arrived, indicating that the murder had been committed within the hour. The body was taken to the morgue and will be given to Sam Sing, a brother, who has a laundry at 3728 West Florissant avenue, for burial.

Jung was fully clothed in the conventional Chinese garb when found. He is reported to have been seen returning from a meat shop about 8 o'clock but no one in the neighborhood seemed to have seen anybody enter or leave the place.

The dead man had been married and is survived by two sons in Canada and one in China. His brother said he was known to have about $200 cash.

NEW YORK ARTIST HERE TO INSTALL MUSEUM EXHIBIT

39 Paintings of Robert Winthrop Chanler for Household Decorations to Be Shown for Month.

ONE DEALS WITH HIS UNHAPPY MARRIAGE

Visitor, Known as "Sheriff Bob", Wed Opera Singer Who Later Was Granted Divorce.

Robert Winthrop Chanler, artist, arrived yesterday from New York City to supervise the setting up of 19 decorative screens and 20 paintings and sketchings by him which will be on exhibit during the ensuing month in gallery 30 of the Municipal Art Museum.

Chanler, who has spent 14 years studying art in Paris, has devoted his talent to the development of decorative schemes composed wholly of highly colored, imaginary subjects.

These decorations are intended solely to be used as backgrounds to set off furnishings in a well appointed household, Chanler explained yesterday to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

"My idea has been to be a decorater who will do colorful work, rather than the usual," he explained. "My work is done on wood, canvas and cement."

Chanler, who is over six feet tall, stout, with short curly grayed hair and a bold profile, was very reticent and sought to avoid discussion of his work.

R. A. Holland, director of the Museum, declared that Chanler is the only American artist devoting his time to decorative screens.

Work Refreshingly Different.

"Chanler's work is novel and refreshingly different," Holland said. "In my opinion he has a true decorative sense. He may be regarded as the Edgar Allen Poe and the Walt Whitman of painting, because of the wierdly fantastic pictures he offers."

Perhaps the most interesting painting to the casual visitor is No. 9 which hangs over a doorway on the right as one enters the exhibition room. The title of this screen, which was lent by Mrs. Harry Paine Whitney of New York, is "The Death of the White Hart."

It is intended by the artist to represent a chapter of his life. During the time when Chanler had returned to this country and was devoting the major part of his time to political life and had been sheriff of Westchester County of New York, he married Lina Cavalieri, the opera singer. Shortly after the marriage she divorced him. Chanler is a great-great-grandson of the first John Jacob Astor.

At the time of the divorce, his brother, John Armstrong Chaloner—who had changed the spelling of his name because he did not like his brothers, and who had then fled from a State Institution for the Insane where he had been confined to Virginia, where he was adjudged sane by courts—wired Sheriff Bob, as the painter is familiarly known; "Who's looney now?"

The picture dealing with this episode in Chanler's life is frankly exaggerated and highly colored. It shows a white deer stricken by a black leopardess which is sinking its gleaming fangs into the unshielded throat of the deer.

Civilizations Portrayed.

Typical of his mystic work is "The Dance of Death." It portrays the civilizations of Buddha, ancient Greece, and Christanity. Tiny floating figures rise around the winding paths that portray the civilizations and serve to symbolize human inventions. Death, as a skeleton, pipes at one side predicting the end of all earthly progress. Gazing at the civilizations and serve to symbolize human inventions. Death, as a skeleton, pipes at one side predicting the end of all earthly progress. Gazing at the civilizations are monstrous figures, terrifying, loathsome in form. These depict disease germs. The whole thing is fascinatingly repulsive.

Many of the screens deal with themes revolving about the Everglades of Florida, and animal and plant life in the tropics. Several deal with fantastic scenes of plant and animal life in the ocean. Typical of these are: "Under the Sea," "Deep Sea Fantasy," "The Everglades," Flying Fish" and "Deer in Glen." These are all screens.

Chanler explained that he obtains an iridescent effect in all of his work by first painting the entire background with aluminum, gold or other metallic colors. He then paints over this, obtaining startling but pleasing effects.

Chanler will return to his home tomorrow upon completion of the arranging of the exhibition.

Address on Election Law Changes.

Attorney-General-elect Jesse W. Barrett and Dr. John H. Simon, twice Democratic nominee for Mayor of St. Louis, will address the members of the Tenth Ward Improvement Association this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Held's Hall, Broadway and Chippewa street. The subject of both addresses will be "Needed Changes of Our Present Election Laws." General discussion will be held on the "Repeal of Our Parole System of Criminals," "Our Police Board's Record," and other subjects.

"A CHINESE FANTASY"

GOODYEAR COMPANY SUED BY STOCKHOLDER

Tire and Rubber Concern Officials Charged With Making Enormous Individual Profits.

By the Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 18.—Asking for appointment of a receiver and an accounting, Frank S. Monnett, Columbus attorney and former Attorney-General of Ohio, today filed suit here against the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Akron.

Monnett, who is a stockholder in the company, charges the directors of the company with malfeasance in office, charges that the directors and members of the Executive Committee of the company organized the Goodyear Investment Co., which he charged has been used by them as a means of making enormous profits.

The petition alleges that through this investment company the Ohio corporation had made extravagant purchases, among them being that of the Ford Motor Co. building in Long Island City, which was bought for $2,000,000, the investment company assuming a mortgage of $1,750,000.

Monnett, who alleges that the company, in a financial statement last summer, stated that its assets were $176,410,000 and later admitted that this was $18,000,000 too high, charges that it was $32,000,000 too high.

Company President Issues Statement on Suit by Monnett.

By the Associated Press.

AKRON, O., Dec. 18.—F. A. Seiberling, president of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., in a statement on the suit filed today at Columbus, by Frank S. Monnett, asking for a receivership and accounting, tonight declared that the company is absolutely solvent. He added that steps will be taken immediately to obtain a hearing in court on a motion for dismissal of the suit. Seiberling's statement follows: "Neither the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., nor its attorneys have as yet received a copy of the petition or complaint filed by Mr. Monnett of Columbus, and consequently do not know the nature of the averments made by him as a basis for his suit.

"I understand that Mr. Monnett is the owner of 45 shares of the preferred stock of the company, and that it is as such stockholder that he brings this suit.

The company is absolutely solvent, having not only sufficient assets to pay every dollar of its indebtedness, but enough to cover its entire outstanding preferred stock, leaving many millions of dollars for the common stockholders.

"True, like many other of the country's large industrial concerns, the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. has felt the need for ready cash, because of the present curtailment of credit and a temporary depression affecting business generally. As a means of meeting this present situation, and with the purpose of caring for its permanent financing, a plan has been worked out to the entire satisfaction of its officers, which will be presented at a meeting of the stockholders already called for Dec. 24, 1920.

"If this plan be adopted by the stockholders, as we fully expect it will, the officers and directors believe the future stability and prosperity of the company will be assured and the interests of all its stockholders, both common and preferred, fully protected.

"It seems to us that the instigators of this action had a deliberate purpose in view to embarrass the company in its efforts now being made, as above stated, to protect the stockholders.

"The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., by its counsel, will, as soon as the court can hear the same and at the earliest possible time, move for a dismissal of this unwarranted action."

13 DROWNED WHEN U. S. LAUNCH SINKS

Craft Springs Leak in Ohio River Near Augusta, KY.; Nine Escape.

By the Associated Press.

AUGUSTA, Ky., Dec. 18.—Thirteen persons were drowned in the Ohio River when the United States launch Margaret sprang a leak and sank three miles below Augusta at 6 o'clock tonight. Among those who perished are: The wife and two baby daughters of Maj. H. B. Pittman, in charge of the Government dam at Chilo, O., all trapped in the upper cabin; Capt. George Hart, of the Margaret; Capt. Hart's daughter, Mrs. James Coffee, and her husband, James Coffee, also in the upper cabin. All three are residents of Augusta.

The boat, which was used at the Government dam at Chilo, was bringing 21 persons to Augusta. The launch was in sight of Augusta when the engineer, Dan Dykes, discovered a leak in the side of the craft. He started the pumps to working, but the water came in too fast.

Within less than five minutes, and before the passengers were aware of their peril, it was said the boat listed and went under.

Nine men survived the disaster by jumping into the water. Seven swam ashore and two were picked up by fishermen.

The boat sank in midriver. There was no panic among the passengers, it was said, owing to the fact that they did not realize their danger.

INAUGURATION TO BE SIMPLE

No Ball to Be Held When Len Small Takes Office.

By the Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 18.—Plans for the inauguration of Governor-elect Len Small here Jan. 10, announced by Adjutant-General Frank S. Dickson, call for a simple ceremony. No inaugural ball will be held.

There will be an inaugural parade and the usual reception in the executive mansion, accompanying the inaugural exercises. Admission to the actual inaugfluration in the House of Representatives, Adjutant-General Dickson said, will be by ticket only, and distribution of the invitations, as has been past custom, will be by the joint legislative committee arranging for the program at the inauguration.

LUTHERAN CONGREGATION TO OBSERVE 60TH ANNIVERSARY

Three Festival Services Will Be Held Today at Zion Evangelical Church.

The members of the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, Twenty-first and Benton streets, of which the Rev. Dr. Louis J. Sieck is pastor, will hold three festival services today in celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the organization of the congregation and also the twenty-fifth anniversary of dedication of its present church building. These services will be held at 9:30 a. m., 10:45 a. m., and 7:30 p. m. The speakers will be former members of the church who have entered the ministry and will address the meetings as follows: The Rev. Theodore Stiegemeyer, Belleville, at 9:30 a. m., the Rev. Walter C. Obermeyer, Baltimore, Md., at 10:45 a. m., and the Rev. G. Beiderwieden, Carlinville, Ill., at 7:30 p. m.

Zion Church was organized in 1860 and during the 60 years of its existence has had five pastors. The present pastor, the Rev. Dr. Louis Sieck, was installed as assistant pastor in 1905 and upon the death of the Rev. Dr. Obermeyer in 1914 was called to the pastorate. The present church structure was dedicated on Dec. 22, 1895, after an expenditure of $83,725.

WHISPERS TO JUDGE; IS FINED

Charles W. de Largy, 5315 North King's highway, a real estate dealer, appeared in Police Court yesterday to answer to a charge of speeding, and attempted to whisper to Judge Ittner, but the Judge whispered back at him in a stagy voice, "$30 and costs."

A policeman had testified that De Largy was going 30 miles an hour when he arrested him on Florissant avenue near Warno avenue. Then De Largy leaned forward and whispered something which Judge Ittner could not understand. The Judge's repeated requests that De Largy talk louder had no effect, and finally the Judge asserted "there would be no whispering in his court" and assessed the fine.

De Largy explained later that he did not like to hurt the feelings of the policeman by contradicting him, so whispered so that the policeman could not hear what he said.

PRINCIPALS OPPOSE GRADE TEACHERS' TENURE PROPOSAL

Proposed Amendment Would Unduly Curtail Powers of Superintendent, Resolution Declares.

The Elementary School Principals' Association of St. Louis, meeting yesterday in the Board of Education assembly room, passed a resolution opposing the proposal of the Grade Teachers' Association for new legislation on the subject of appointment, promotion, transfer and removal of teachers. The matter is likely to be before the Legislature at its coming session.

The principals' organization declares, in its resolution, that it sympathises with the desire of the grade teachers for more secure tenure of their positions, but that the amending of the statute, in the manner proposed by the grade teachers, would go far beyond this single purpose, and would strike at the powers of the superintendent.

William P. Evans, president of the principals' organization, who is principal of the Blow School, furnished to the Post-Dispatch yesterday a comparative outline of the present statute, which is Section 7 of the 1897 charter of the Board of Education, and the section which the grade teachers propose, to take the place of that section.

Appointment of Assistants.

The present statute provides that assistant superintendents shall be named by the Board of Education on the nomination of the Superintendent, and may be removed by the Superintendent with the board's approval. The proposed amendment provides that the board shall appoint assistant superintendents and fix their salaries, and that an assistant superintendent shall not be reduced in rank, or fail of reappointment, unless a majority of the full board shall so decide after a full investigation.

The present statute says that all appointments, promotions and transfers of teachers, and introduction and changes of text books and apparatus, shall be made only upon recommendation of the superintendent, and the approval of the board. The proposed amendment provides that appointments, promotions and transfers of principals, supervisors, teachers and clerks, and introduction and changes of text books and apparatus, "may be made on the recommendation of the superintendent; subject to the rules and approval of the board."

The present statute says that the superintendent shall have power to suspend any teacher for any cause deemed by him sufficient, and that the board shall take such action on the restoration or removal of such teachers as it may deem proper. The proposed amendment has the same provision, substituting for the word "teacher" the words "employe in the department of instruction." It then adds, "No assistant superintendent, principal, supervisor, teacher or clerk shall fail of reappointment or be reduced in rank unless the board, sitting as a committee of the whole, shall, after full investigation and by a majority vote of its full membership approve such nonreappointment or reduction in rank." This is the permanent tenure feature of the proposal.

The present statute says that all appointments and promotions of teachers shall be made upon the basis of merit, to be ascertained, so far as practicable, in cases of appointment, by examination, and in case of promotion, by length and character of service. The proposed amendment changes this to read "in cases of appointments, in the manner prescribed by the board, and in case of promotion by length and character of service." It then adds, "claim to promotion by principals, supervisors, teachers and clerks shall be heard and determined by the board sitting as a committee of the whole."

Would Change Regulations.

The present statute provides that examinations for appointment shall be conducted by the superintendent, under regulations to be made by the board. This is eliminated in the proposed amendment. The present statute says that the superintendent shall exercise a general supervision over the schools. The proposed amendment qualifies this by adding the words, "subject to the control of the board."

In the resolution adopted yesterday, the Elementary School Principals' Association says:

"The Grade Teachers' Association is seeking more permanent tenure of positions, and has decided to ask the Legislature to amend the charter of the Board of Education in such a way as to make this possible. With such a purpose the members of the Elementary School Principals' Association have much sympathy; but the amendment as proposed strikes at the statutory powers of the Superintendent of Schools. These powers giving the Superintendent the initiative in professional matters have so far proven a great protection to the best interests of our schools, and have been the principal means in establishing them in their enviable position. The members of this association believe that the enactment of the proposed legislation would be a calamity, and we are convinced that the members of the Grade Teachers' Association did not fully understand all the effects of their action. We urge them, therefore, to reconsider their proposal and to choose some procedure upon which all the friends of the St. Louis schools may unite to aid them in worthy plans."

President Evans of the principals' organization said to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"Examination of the proposal indorsed by the grade teachers shows that it goes very much farther than the avowed purpose of making their tenure more secure. The principals believe this should be made clear to the Legislature, and that the exact purport and effect of the proposed amendment should be realized. We think the public will wish to know why these limitations on the Superintendent's power have been proposed, and from whom the proposal has come."

RUMELY AND TWO OTHERS CONVICTED ON TWO COUNTS

Verdict of Guilty on Charge of Borrowing Money From German Sources to Conduct Evening Mail.

PRISON TERM AND FINE MAY BE PENALTY

Acquittal on Charge German Government Owned Actual Shares of Stock of the Newspaper.

PUBLISHER CONVICTED OF SEEKING GERMAN FUNDS FOR PAPER

© by Underwood & Underwood

DR EDWARD A RUMELY....

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Dr. Edward A. Rumely, former publisher of the New York Evening Mail, and S. Walter Kaufman and Norvin Lindheim, his co-defendant, were acquitted by a jury here today on three counts of an indictment charging conspiracy to withhold from the Government knowledge of the alleged German ownership of the paper, and found guilty on two counts.

The finding of not guilty was on counts alleging that the German Government owned actual shares of the newspaper's stock, while the verdict of guilty was on that part of the indictment which alleged the defendants had borrowed money from German sources with which to conduct the paper.

The maximum penalty for violation of section 37 of the United States Criminal Code, with which the defendants were charged, is two years' imprisonment, a fine of $10,000 or both.

MEMORIAL FOR WASHINGTON U. MEN KILLED IN WAR PLANNED

Association to Provide Bronze Tablet and Compile Records of Service of 23.

Activity in the direction af an adequate memorial to the 23 men at one time or another enrolled as students at Washington University who lost their lives in the recent war has been begun by the memorial association of that institution. Friends of the university are invited to join. The annual membership fee is $1.

A circular letter sent out the past week by Secretary Holmes Smith gives these as the purposes of the organization: To provide a suitable bronze tablet which will commemorate those members of Washington University who lost their lives in the great war, and to secure as full a record as possible of service, of whatever character, devoted to the successful prosecution of the late war by each past and present member of the university.

The tablet will be of a permanent type, but probably will remain on one of the buildings of the campus only until a fitting memorial building has been erected. The record of service to be prepared is to have a permanent place in the proposed memorial building.

REPUBLICAN HOUSE MEMBERS DISCUSS LEGISLATIVE NEEDS

40 Out of 104 Respond to Invitation of Hiram Lloyd to Meet Here and Frame Organization.

SPEAKERS PLEDGE SUPPORT TO HYDE

Speakership Not Formally Discussed, but Talk in Groups Indicates O'Fallon Has Lead.

Due principally to the fact that less than half the Republican members of the House of Representatives of the next Legislature attended the meeting arranged for yesterday at the Planters Hotel by Hiram Lloyd, Lieutenant-Governor-elect, the affair was changed from a political caucus to frame an organization, which it originally was expected to be, into a get-acquainted meeting for the new members.

Lloyd, who organized the Republican majority in the Senate a month ago, sent invitations to all the 104 Republican members of the House to be in St. Louis yesterday as his guests. Lloyd's purpose was construed to be an attempt to control the election of a speaker of the House to obtain an organization there which would work with the Lloyd Senate organization, and thus keep within a small group, controlled by Lloyd, complete control of legislation.

The House organization is not necessary to the Lloyd control, as any measure can be defeated in the Senate, and all confirmations are controlled by the Senate. It would have aided him in any plans he may have to dominate Gov.-elect Hyde in patronage matters, but the Senate control usually is considered sufficient.

Aid to Hyde Pledged.

Only 40 of the Republicans, including the 16 members from St. Louis, attended the meeting, which Lloyd opened to newspaper representatives. Each was called upon for a statement of his views on proposed legislation, and virtually all, including Lloyd, pledged themselves to support Gov.-elect Hyde in carrying out the campaign pledges and in enacting into law the Hyde legislative program.

In many respects the meeting differed from the meeting of legislators held in St. Louis shortly before the opening of the Legislature in 1919. Then J. L. Babler, Republican National Committeeman, and John Schmoll, then chairman of the Republican City Committee, with many supporters were on hand in an effort to control the organization of the House. Neither appeared at the hotel at which the meeting was held yesterday, and there was no indication of any effort on their part to participate in the organization.

After a luncheon Lloyd, who presided, announced that he had "no ulterior" motive in calling the meeting. He said its only purpose was to enable the new members to become acquainted, that they might get to work more quickly when the Legislature convened, and to enable them to exchange views regarding legislation.

He said he conferred with Hyde regarding the meeting before he called it and obtained Hyde's approval. He said it was his purpose to aid Hyde in every way possible in giving the State the kind of legislation it long had been needing. "I will back up the Governor," he said.

Hyde was not present, being in Texas on a vacation trip, but his secretary, T. N. Ormiston of Kansas City, and Don C. McVay, an intimate friend, were on hand to watch proceedings. They had not been invited formally and did not attend the luncheon, but entered the room when the speaking began.

Members Tell Their Views.

After Lloyd's opening address, members briefly explained their views.

Walter E. Bailey of Carthage, speaker pro tem of the last House and a candidate for Speaker of the next House, said that among the important questions to come before the Legislature were an equitable distribution of the $60,000,000 of money voted at the November election for good roads, and a redistricting bill. He advised that the redistricting should be left to the Governor, Attorney-General and Secretary of State, to avoid possible interference by the Democrats through the referendum.

He said that if the Legislature passed a redistricting bill the Democrats could prevent it from going into effect by circulating petitions to refer it to a vote of the people, while if the redistricting was done by three State officers the matter could not be referred. He also said that the Hyde program should be carried out. "We are in control of all State offices and both branches of the Legislature," he said, "and if we don't make good we will have no alibi."

E. G. Davidson of St. Louis, also a candidate for speaker, declared in favor of supporting Hyde, of practicing economy and of having an advisory committee to the Republican floor leader. He said that each Republican member should have the right to appoint one clerk, but that the 104 thus selected should constitute the entire clerical force of the House. He advocated abolishing the custom of appointing 15 or 16 pages, small sons of members usually, and in their places appointing four or five young men. "The children should be in school," Davidson said. He also pleaded for co-operation between city and country members.

John C. Dyott of Willow Springs, floor leader of the last House and a candidate for Speaker of the next, advocated legislation relieving the counties of the burden of caring for their criminals and insane patients, and having the expense met by the State. He said nearly all the rural counties were on the verge of bankruptcy.

W. R. Lay of Steeleville, another candidate for Speaker, demanded united support for the Governor in his legislative program.

Only Negro Member Talks.

Walthall M. Moore of St. Louis, the first and only negro member of the House, was the next speaker. He had remained away from the luncheon, but afterward entered the room. He spoke very briefly, saying:

"I am placed in a peculiar, but distinguished position, being the first one of color ever to sit in the Missouri Legislature, a distinction I appreciate. I thought at first that I could not be here, but for fear that the occasion might not have the proper color, I decided to come.

"I have received a great deal of advice, probably more than any other member. I have been advised not to say very much in the Legislature, and I don't think I will, but to sit quiet and look on. I think that

MISS LOLITA ARMOUR.

LOLITA ARMOUR TO WED SON OF BANKER

Only Child of Multimillionaire Packer Saved by "Incubator" and Restored to Health by Science.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—The engagement of Miss Lolita Armour, only child of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour of Chicago, to John Mitchell Jr., son of the president of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, is announced.

Miss Armour, who was born 24 years ago, weighed slightly more than three pounds at birth. The "incubator" for the care of prematurely children had just been invented and it was largely due to this that the baby lived, doctors said. It was then discovered that the bones of both hips were dislocated, the thigh bones failing to reach their sockets so that the child's legs dangled helplessly.

When she was 3 years old, Dr. John Ridlon was called to perform an operation. For five months the frail body was kept in a plaster cast, but when this was removed it was found that only one of the hips had healed properly.

In 1902 the parents heard of the work of a Viennese physician, Dr. Adolf Lorenz, who had perfected a "bloodless method" of curing congenital hip diseases. Dr. Lorenz was brought twice to America, and was said to have been paid fees of $100,000 by Armour for curing the child. By manipulation Dr. Lorenz tore the ligaments and muscles and forced the thigh bone into the socket. Then for many more months the leg and hip were encased in plaster.

Six months after the first operation Dr. Lorenz returned to remove the cast and learn the result. Unqualified success had been obtained, for as soon as the plaster had been removed the child was able to take a few halting steps unassisted for the first time in her life. For several more years the girl had a rather noticeable limp, but gradually as the unaccustomed muscles regained their normal freedom of play even this disappeared.

The heiress is devoted to athletics and is a splendid equestrienne. Since she has come of age her father has presented her with more than $1,000,000 worth of real estate.

Mitchell's father is also many times a millionaire.

LEAGUE OPPOSES SHORTENING WORKING PERIOD OF PRINTERS

St. Louis Committee Directing Nation-Wide Movement Against the 44-Hour Week.

The Printers' League of America, composed of employing printers, which has a branch in St. Louis, has started a nation-wide movement, through special committees of the organization in different cities, against the 44-hour week or any movement by the employes for shorter hours that would tend to decrease production.

The St. Louis committee is composed of R. T. Deacon, E. J. Schuster, F. W. Gorley, Albert von Hoffman, D. J. Kerwin and G. B. Gannett.

In a statement, the employers say their duty to the trade and the public in general is to give the greatest production for the least cost, and it was the hope that all branches of the industry, including the employes, would realize the necessity of increased production and general efficiency in order to replenish the diminished stores of the world.

good advice, even here.

"However, I want to say that I will co-operate with you. I am interested in seeing the Republican policies carried out. I am particularly interested in educational legislation."

Samuel F. O'Fallon of Oregon, Holt County, Speaker of the last House and a candidate for re-election, declared that there should be a reduction in the clerical force. He said that an attempt to reduce the number of clerks in the last House had not been very successful, but that he thought the number in the next House could be kept below 150. He said he hoped the negro member would not "feel out of place among the white Republicans," and that he was glad Moore had been elected and would be a member.

Referring to remarks by other speakers in favor of reduction of taxation, O'Fallon said that reduced taxes were not so greatly to be desired as efficiency in the expenditure of the State's money, and the getting of a dollar value for each dollar expended.

Groups Discuss Speakership.

The Speakership was not formally considered, but it was discussed in many small groups of members in the lobbies. All the announced candidates except O. B. Whitaker of Weaubleau, were present.

It appeared probable that O'Fallon has the greatest individual strength, due to his following among members of the last House, and that he probably will win unless other candidates are able to agree upon one of their number and combine their support.

Bailey and Lay are considered the next strongest, and there were indications during the day that negotiations were under way between them. Bailey has a strong following in southern and southwestern Missouri and a scattered support throughout the remainder of the State. Lay is strong in the central section, but probably has not as much individual support as Bailey.

An agreement which would put Bailey forward as the man to defeat O'Fallon in the caucus early in January, appeared a probability, with the Speaker pro tem or the floor leadership going to Lay if Bailey should be successful. Davidson's candidacy was not taken very seriously by the country members, even some of the St. Louis members saying they would not be for him unless it appeared he could win. He has some following, however, probably enough to get for him a choice committee chairmanship.

"PAT" O'BRIEN KILLS SELF IN LOS ANGELES

Wife Says Mind of Aviator, Who Escaped From Germans, Was Unbalanced.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—A report setting forth that Lieut. Pat O'Brien, officer of the Canadian Flying Corps in the war, found dead last night in a downtown hotel, had commited suicide was filed today by detectives. O'Brien was found with a bullet wound in his forehead and an army pistol at his side. Police said he had failed to effect a reconciliation with his wife, a motion picture actress.

O'Brien, the detectives said, came here from Oakland, yesterday. Mrs. O'Brien is said to have told him she was too ill to see him. A few minutes later attendants heard a shot fired. O'Brien was found dead.

Note found in Room.

A note in O'Brien's handwriting was discovered in the room, addressed to his wife, saying:

"Only a coward would do what I am doing, but I guess I am one. * * * And may the just God that answered my prayers in those days I spent in making my escape from Germany once more answer them. * * * and curse forever that awful woman,—— that has broken up my home and taken you from me. * * *

"Please send what you find back to my dear mother in Momence, Ill.

"To the five armies I have been in; the birds, the animals I love so well, to my friends; to all the world of adventure—I say good-by."

O'Brien was a native of Richmond, Cal., where he was born 33 years ago. Prior to the war he was a fireman on the Santa Fe Railroad.

In August, 1917, O'Brien fell several thousand feet after an aerial battle with a German flier and landed behind the German lines. When he regained consciousness he found himself in a German hospital. Later he was put on a prison train and started for a prison camp. He jumped from the train while it was going at a rate of 35 miles an hour, and for 72 hours wandered through Germany and Luxemburg, finally arriving in Holland and made his way into Belgium.

Statement by Wife.

Mrs. O'Brien said through friends today she was convinced her husband was unbalanced mentally and that his act was due to that condition. She denied that any third person had interfered in their family affairs and said the woman named by O'Brien as responsible had been introduced to her by her husband, and had joined her at her request because she did not wish to live unprotected.

Mrs. O'Brien was a bride of a few months. She declined to give her former name, or any facts concerning herself, last night, and today she was secluded under a physician's care. Friends of O'Brien said his wife was formerly a newspaper woman in Washington, where he met her and that she wrote under the name of "Virginia Dale," or "Virginia Dare." While O'Brien was engaged in motion picture work here last summer, she did some studio work, but she was said to be unemployed at present.

NEW SUBPENAS FOR POLICE OFFICIALS

Aloe Says Investigation Is for Welfare of City and Not for Embarrassing Police.

In spite of opposition, the Public Safety Committee of the Board of Aldermen yesterday decided to issue subpenas again calling on the four members of the Board of Police Commissioners, their secretary, the Chief of Police and the Chief of Detectives to appear before the committee next Tuesday evening and testify under oath regarding the size and efficiency of the Police Department and efforts in the suppression of crime.

Members of the Board of Police Commissioners and their secretary, James C. Espy, have refused to honor the subpoenas and failed to appear at yesterday's committee session. Their contention is that being State officials, under the system of control of the St. Louis Police Department, they are not liable to the process of the Aldermaic Committee.

Daues Advises Committee.

City Counselor Daues has told the committee, of which Alderman Kralemann is chairman, that it has authority, in his opinion, to subpena police officials or any other persons to testify regarding legislation affecting crime suppression in the city. He and President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen, who introduced the resolution causing the investigation of the crime situation, urged the committee yesterday not to issue new subpenas, but to accept the offer of the Police Commissioners to inspect records at police headquarters in the search for facts.

Several Aldermen at the board meeting Friday expressed similar opposition. Counselor Daues told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that he would not advise arrest of officials failing to respond to subpenas.

"If the police officials want to resist these processes," Daues said, "they can sue out writs of habeas corpus in the Circuit Court, Court of Appeals or State Supreme Court and drag the matter through legal channels for months. Or supposing Chief of Police O'Brien, to make a test case, should refuse to sue out such a writ and be subject to arrest. I certainly would not advise going that far; that approaches too close the danger line of the statute regarding interference with police officers.

"The present commissioners will be going out of office soon and I feel sure the new commissioners will be glad to answer subpenas, but that would probably be useless, for they could throw no light on the situation."

Political Aspect.

There is a political aspect to the fight on summoning the police board members, who are Democratic appointees of Democratic adminstrations. President Mansur of the Police Board and Commissioner Giraldin leave office early in January and Commissioners Sheehan and Fouke follow later. Gov. Hyde's appointees are naturally expected to be Republicans. The aldermen and city administration are Republican.

The matter of police efficiency and crime investigation was referred to the Public Safety Committee on Dec 10. Their deliberations so far have been confined to discussion of obtaining the testimony of the commissioners and the reading of letters relative to police forces and efficiency in a number of cities of size approaching that of St. Louis.

The committee will meet tomorrow evening at 7:30, however, and expects to hear then the testimony of the Judges of the Courts of Criminal Correction and the police courts and of the clerks of the city courts. the Courts of Criminal Correction and the criminal division of the Circuit Court. Subpenas were to be issued in this connection for Judges Krueger, Miller, Ittner and Mix, and for the clerks of the three court groups dealing with felonies and misdemeanors.

The subpenas of the committee are served by the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Board of Aldermen.

Questions for Judges.

Questions such as the following will be asked the judges and clerks by Chairman Kralemann and the members of the committee:

"How do you account for the rapidity with which bond is furnished to persons placed under arrest?

"Why do policemen, in some instances, present insufficient evidence to warrant convictions when they testify in court?

"Why do some informations against accused persons, made out by the police, prove to be made out wrong, resulting in dismissals?"

These questions relate to facts which have been recent subjects of news accounts. The effort will be to learn from the judges and clerks if there is any truth in the frequent charge that the increase in crime is due to lack of co-operation between the courts and the Police Department, and to learn the opinion of these officials regarding the suppression of crime.

The committee members are preparing lists of questions which they plan to put to the witnesses. City Counselor Daues, or a representative, and President Aloe, who is ex-officio a committee member, wll be present. The meeting, which will be in the chambers of the Board of Aldermen, city hall, will be public.

"Inquiry for City's Welfare."

Aloe, addressing the committee yesterday, said: "It seems to me that the day should soon come when the Police Department will no longer consider itself isolated and part of the State, instead of the city, and I believe that day is about to come. I would like to tell the Board of Police Commissioners that our investigation is intended for the welfare of the city and not to embarrass them nor to seek to learn things which should remain in secrecy to avoid harming the efficiency of the department.

Aloe was asked by Chief of Police O'Brien to prepare an ordinance regulating the closing hours of saloons, dance halls and pool halls. He had such an ordinance prepared two weeks ago, providing that places of the type mentioned should close between midnight and 5 a. m., at least. Aloe said he did not remember any special request relative to Sunday closing. He said he delayed introduction of the ordinance because he considered its provisions too drastic. Counselor Daues assured the committee that the Board of Aldermen may make such regulations provided they do not enter the realm of class legislation.

The Police Departments of the three largest Missouri cities—St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph—are controlled by commissions appointed by the Governor, and as such approach the status of State forces. The St. Louis police are organized along quasi-military lines. The police of these State-controlled forces may make arrests anywhere in the State while Sheriffs and other law enforcement officers in the counties have power only within their own counties.

TWO CONVICTS WHO ESCAPED FROM PENITENTIARY CAPTURED

St. Louis and Kansas City Robbers Caught by Station Agent at Bonnot's Mill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 18.—Roy L. Cunningham and Dan M. Hogan, the convicts who escaped from the penitentiary Wednesday by crawling through the sewer to the river, were captured at Bonnot's Mill last night by the railroad agent there. Cunningham is from St. Louis, Hogan from Kansas City.

The agent telephoned to Warden Gilvin last night and described two men, who, he said, were asleep in the waiting room at the station. The warden replied there was a reward of $100 for their return and asked him to hold them.

"They'll be here when you come," said the agent. "But whether they'll be alive or not is up to them."

The men were hungry and exhausted because of lack of sleep and food. Cunningham had less than six months to serve of a 2-year sentence for robbery when he escaped. Hogan was serving a 10-year sentence for burglary and larceny. Both will receive a sentence of 2 years additional for jail breaking.

LABOR REPORT SHOWS CUT IN EMPLOYMENT

Clothing Industry With 17 Per Cent Decrease in November, Leads; Salaries Also Shrink.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Reports made public today by the Department of Labor show that virtually all of the larger industries reduced their force of employes during November as compared with October. Of 14 industries on which reports have been received, 11 show a decrease in the volume of employment and three an increase. Increases in employment ranged only from 1 to 3 per cent, while the decrease ranged up to 17 per cent.

Industries reducing volume of employment during November and the percentage of decreases are as follows: Iron and steel, 3.2; automobiles, 11.2; cotton manufacturing, 4.8; cotton finishing, 2.7; hosiery and underwear, 12.1; woolen, 12.5; silk, 3.5; men's clothing, 17; leather, 7.5; boots and shoes, 5.4; paper, 2.8.

The reports also show that during the same period 13 of the 14 largest industries show a decrease in the amount of the payroll, and officials consider it significant that in almost every instance the amount of reduction in payroll was larger than the decrease in volume of employment. The reduction of 17 per cent in the volume of employment in men's clothing was followed by a decrease of 23 per cent in the payroll, and in automobiles the reduction in the working force was only 11.2, but in payroll 31.2.

Comparison of employment and amount of payroll in these industries between November of this year and November, 1919, shows that in 10 there was a decrease in employment and in eight a decrease in the payroll. The decrease in employment ranged from 4 per cent in cotton manufacturing to 39.4 in woolen.

The most radical change is shown in the bituminous coal mining industry. The volume of employment last month was 130.3 per cent greater than in 1919, and the amount of payroll was 348.5 per cent greater. This was due to the fact that in 1919 the industry was virtually paralyzed by a strike.

TRACTION CO. PAYS $10,000 TO END ST. LOUISAN'S INJURY SUIT

Brakeman Given One of Largest Settlements Ever Made by Illinois System.

The Illinois Traction System, it was reported in the District Federal Court at Springfield, Ill., yesterday, has settled the $75,000 personal injury suit brought by Grover B. Lemmon of St. Louis, one of the biggest personal injury settlements, it is said, ever made in Illinois.

Lemmon lost his left hand and suffered injuries to his right hand while working as brakeman last February.

Missouri Women Employ Legislative Agent to Work for Measures They Are Interested In

Miss Marie Ames to Watch Sessions of Assembly and Send Out "S. O. S." Call if Help Is Needed.

HAS HAD EXPERIENCE IN THAT WORK

Was Successful in Fight fo Passage of Suffrage Measures at Two Previous Sessions.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

MISS MARIE AMES.

Missouri will not have any women legislators in the coming genera assembly as will so many othe States, but important State organizations of women have combined forces and engaged Miss Marie Ames to remain at Jefferson City during the entire session to watch and report and warn women all over the State as to just what is happening to bills in which they are especially interested.

In many respects the discrepancy of having no women representatives with actual votes is made up for in the peculiar well-tried qualifications of Miss Ames for her job. Where too many women elected legislatures in other States were rolled into their new offices almost unawares by the landslide, will be unprepared, possibly somewhat dazzled, surely needing some training and adjustment to a new order of things, to Miss Ames legislative procedure will be perfectly familiar and the State House environment at Jefferson City will fit her like an old shoe.

Worked for Suffrage.

Nothing that transpires in the open will be without its due significance to her and if she lives up to a reputation already established, the mysteries of political finesse, those subtle maneuvers which take place outside legislative halls to produce sometimes unaccountable results at critical moments in the chambers, will rarely find her unequal to the emergency either.

For it was Miss Marie Ames as the only woman constantly on the job during the last session of the Legislature in 1919, who looked after the interests of suffrage during that period of its severest trial unto final victory.

It was she, who, with her finger constantly on the pulse of the situation, used to send out those S. O. S. calls for the specialists, the suffrage leaders of the State, at any critical period when the suffrage bill showed signs of a sinking spell. There were many of these crises in those days and none of them found the watchful nurse napping.

Although it is ancient history now and women are inclined to forget and begin with a clean slate there was even one of these crises in the middle of the night, if memory serves, at which men in an eleventh hour secret conference would have upset plans and promises made to the women in the daytime. It was believed that women were off watch at this time, but Miss Ames was awake. She it was who got wind of the situation in time to apply the drastic measures of resuscitation which again saved the suffrage bill.

There were two critical periods for suffrage during that session, the first which resulted in presidential suffrage and then the special session when the Federal amendment was ratified, all of which involved considerable work for the legislative secretary of what was then the Equal Suffrage League.

Task This Session.

This coming session, what would seem to be the far bigger task of working on behalf of many bills, will engage the legislative agent, as she will be known.

"There is a lot of work to be done," said Miss Ames in an interview in her apartment at the Buckingham Annex yesterday, "but it will be very different working for women who are now constituents rather than mere supplicants for legislative favor.

"There are the children's code bills to be watched. The State Federation of Women's Clubs is backing these measures. At the recent conference in the children's code at Sedalia the women succeeded in convincing the commission that they should reinstate those measures which it had decided to abandon as being most difficult to pass. These measures are those regarding the inheritance of illegitimate children, establishing the parentage of illegitimate children, regarding children in street trades, regarding intention to marry with the five days' notice clause and permitting the marriage of insane, epileptics and imbeciles. It is acknowledged that they are the most difficult measures to get through, but to the women they seem among the most important of the children's code, and they hold that principle should not be sacrificed to expediency.

Favor Blanket Ballot.

"Presumably there will be many election reform bills introduced," she continued. "The League of Women Voters will get behind these bills. It wants the Australian ballot really effective. Blanket ballot rather than the ribbon ballot is favored, because the latter is unwieldy and influences toward a straight party vote. The Massachusetts ballot is being favored by the women as a good model. According to this system the office and the candidate rather than the political party are emphasized. The name of the office is placed first, the name of the candidate next, and the party to which he belongs, last in order of importance.

"The league also will seek and work for some method by which women may be delegates to the convention to draw up a new Constitution. This will necessitate the elimination of the word male from the present Constitution and incidentally make women eligible to all State offices. Such an act will have to come about through an amendment to the Constitution.

"Other measures for which women will work will be a minimum wage commission with women represtented on it and revision of the industrial inspection law to change inspection from fee to a salary basis. The Women's Christian Temperance Union is backing this bill.

"One of my duties," continued Miss Ames, "will be to keep women constantly informed and in touch with what is happening at Jefferson City. First, I will get out some sort of document explaining the processes and the various steps through which a bill goes to its enactment. Then each week I shall make a definite report of exactly what has happened with regard to any bill in which women are especially interested. This bulletin will be sent to a mailing list, as complete as possible, of women's organizations all over the State.

To Have Publicity Committee.

"A publicity committee of seven members representing as many organizations is being formed, with Miss Irene Loeb at its head, to put through this program.

"Important details of my work, of course, will depend on future developments. It will be necessary to keep a close watch upon each bill and should an emergency seem to require the presence of other representatives of the groups of women interested it will be my duty to summon them to the scene."

The services of Miss Ames are obtained from the National League of Women Voters of which she has been for a number of years, a field organizer. Through the influences of Mrs. George Gellhorn, a vice chairman of the national organiza-

GREEKS HERE TO CELEBRATE CONSTANTINE'S RETURN TODAY

Legation Request Local Colony to Suspend Mourning for King Alexander, Three Days.

Services will be held today at St. Nicholas' Greek Church, Garrison and St. Louis avenues, in honor of the arrival at Athens of Constantine, who has been recalled to the throne of Greece. The celebration will consist of singing by the congregation and a brief sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Petrakis.

The services were arranged by Hector M. Pasmezoglu, Greek Consul in St. Louis, at the request of the Greek Legation. The Legation, in a telegram to the local Consul, informed him that Constantine is expected to enter Athens today.

Pasmezoglu was instructed to inform the local Greek colony of the event and to suspend for three days the period of mourning for King Alexander, whose death resulted in the return of Constantine. The three day period begins today. After it is completed, mourning will be resumed in local Greek homes for several months. The flag of Greece will fly from the Consulate, at 302 Chestnut street, during the three-day period.

WOMEN VOTERS TO HAVE LEGISLATIVE AGENT AT JEFFERSON CITY

tion, Miss Ames has been assigned to work in Missouri. Her appointment was confirmed by a conference meeting Thursday of representatives of the W. C. T. U., Y. W. C. A., Missouri Parent-Teachers' Association, Consumers' League, Council of Jewish Women, League of Women Voters, Women's Trade Union League, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs and the Missouri Tuberculosis Society.

Hands Always Employed.

Miss Ames did effective work among the men at Jefferson City as results have shown, but notwithstanding, indeed, it may be, partly accounting for this fact, she is a person of distinctly feminine charm and grace. Not her least attractive attribute is a melodious speaking voice, and clear enunciation though rapid delivery. She is an Eastern young woman, coming originally from Springfield, Mass. Her father was a surgeon-general in the U. S. Marine Hospital and her mother who has been active in philanthropic work accompanies the daughter on her travels.

As she sat stitching on fine linen handkerchiefs, in a room in which there was much evidence of feminine fuss and feathers, an elaborate new ball gown, presumably the inaugural ball gown, hanging disclosed in the wardrobe trunk, the Legislative Agent seemed far removed from the type tradition associates with political activity. They say that when she used to sit in the galleries watching weighty affairs of state, her hands were always employed at needlework and she says she got a lot of sewing off her hands in those long winded sessions.

"I shall know personally most of the legislators in the new assembly," she remarked, "but shall miss the presence of some very dear friends. Especially shall I miss the wives of many of the defeated ones. It was always with the wives of the legislators that I worked most effectively, and who were undoubtedly the greatest factor in getting the suffrage bills passed.

BOOKBINDERS IN 16 SHOPS OUT

Workers Are Seeking to Collect Back Pay From Sept. 1.

Bookbinders employed in 16 shops in St. Louis have been on strike since Wednesday morning to enforce the payment of back pay to Sept. 1, incident to the signing of a new contract with the employers. About 40 men and 105 women and girls are affected by the strike. The differences of the 1000 or more other bookbinders employed in St. Louis have been adjusted as to back pay and they did not join the strike.

It was said yesterday at headquarters of Union Local No. 18 that all but 16 of the employing binders who renewed the old union contract, which expired Sept. 1 last, and was ratified Nov. 12, had given the retroactive pay, but the 16 against whom the strike was called, wanted to give back pay for only one month.

The strikers meet daily at Druids Hall, Ninth and Market streets.

YALE MUSIC CLUBS TO APPEAR AT ODEON CHRISTMAS NIGHT

Program to Include Selections Sung on Campus by Many Generations of Students.

Songs which have been handed down as part of Yale's tradition and have been sung by one generation after another on the campus, will be heard at the concert of the Yale University Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs, on Christmas night at the Odeon. The aim is to create the real spirit and atmosphere of the alma mater.

There are 45 men on the tour, traveling in their own special cars. Among the numbers promised by the various clubs are "Mother of Men," "Old Black Joe," "Yale Medley," "Southern Nights," "Homing," "Reminiscences," "Plantation Symphony," "Bright College Years," and two choruses by Horatio W. Parker, "Lamp in the West," and "Valentine."

St. Louis graduates of Yale will, as uusal, join the visitors on the platform at the end of the concert, to sing the college anthem.

'CRITERION' OPENS NEXT SUNDAY

The Criterion Theater, a moving picture house on Broadway, south of Olive street, will be opened Sunday, Dec. 26. The standard price of admission will be 50 cents, and the theater will run most of the day and up to 11 p. m. It will strive especially for shoppers' patronage, and will maintain rest rooms and reading parlors.

The first week's film attraction will be "The Jucklins," a version of the novel of that name.

TORCHES AND TANKS USED ON ILLINOIS SAFE STOLEN HERE

Evidence That Burglars Who Robbed Collinsville Postoffice Took Implements From American Welding Co.

The burglars who looted the Collinsville (Ill.) postoffice early yesterday obtained the torches and acetylene gas tankes they used to burn through the vault and safe doors in a burglary last Wednesday night of the American Welding Co., at 2301 Olive street, it was disclosed yesterday.

Postmaster James E. Simpson has declined to state the loss in the postoffice robbery. However, it is believed to have been approximately $9000, chiefly in stamps, a few hundred dollars being cash and a small amount in registered mail and parcel post Christmas packages, many of which were opened but left behind.

Persons connected with the American Welding Co. called the postmaster by telephone yesterday, giving him the numbers on acetylene tanks stolen from their company Wednesday. These numbers were found to be the same as on two tanks left by the burglars at the postoffice vault doors. Torches also were taken from the welding company, and goggles used by workmen in manipulating them. Two pairs of goggles were found yesterday in the vicinity of the postoffice.

It appears that the burglars were in the postoffice about three hours. The last interurban car passes the postoffice door at 1:30 a. m., after which there is little traffic on the street on which the postoffice is located, the main street being a block distant. An explosion was heard by residents in the vicinity of the postoffice about 3 a. m., though no alarm was given. This was the explosion that opened the vault.

The second explosion, that which opened the safe, was at 4:30 o'clock. The flash and detonation were seen and heard by the postoffice janitor, Joun E. Cox, who was approaching the building. He observed a lookout at the postoffice window and an automobile with engine running and a man at the wheel in front of the building. Apparently he was unobserved by either of these, for he continued on toward the police station to give an alarm. He found no one at the station, and it was 30 minutes before he located the lone policeman on duty at that hour. Meanwhile the burglars had escaped.

Burglars on Sept. 14 blew the vault in the postoffice, but overcharged the safe with nitroglycerin and jammed its doors. Dynamite was used in Wednesday's job.

RED CROSS CHRISTMAS BOXES BEING PACKED FOR SOLDIERS

Committee of Volunteer Workers Will See That All Service Men Are Cared For.

Preparations are being made by the St. Louis Chapter of the Red Cross to see that every soldier, wounded or able-bodied, in St. Louis is taken care of Christmas.

For the last week a "Christmas cheer" committee of volunteer workers has been packing Christmas boxes at Red Cross headquarters, 802 Equitable Building, that will be distributed to the doughboys at the various hospitals about the city. A Christmas program of entertainment is in preparation. A round of holiday parties, dances and get-together affairs is assured.

The Christmas program opens Christmas eve at Jefferson Barracks where a negro community chorus of 50 voices with a string band of 20 accompanists will serenade the wounded soldiers. The men at the post will be entertained by the chorus at the Red Cross recreation hut later in the evening.

On Christmas morning the Christmas packages, containing a fountain pen, candy, cigarettes, chewing gum, handkerchiefs and a personally addressed Christmas card bearing the compliments of the St. Louis Chapter of the Red Cross will be given to each man. The wards will be decorated with holly, mistletoe and Christmas trees.

Special boxes, containing similar articles to those in the soldiers' packages, are being prepared for the nurses. Nurses and soldiers at the U. S. Public Health Hospital, 5800 Arsenal street, at the Marine Hospital and Mount St. Rose Hospital will be remembered by the Red Cross. At the Barracks and at the various institutions turkey dinners are being planned for Christmas day.

YOUTH PAROLED TO PARENTS, WHO MADE HIM "TELL IT ALL"

Granite City Lad Marched to Police Station by Father and Mother on Hearing of Robbery.

Ray Meacham, 17, of Granite City, son of former Justice of the Peace, will be paroled tomorrow to his parents, because of the position they took when he got in trouble recently. He was convicted yesterday in the Circuit Court at Edwardsville of holding up Byron Haven, son of Dr. W. W. Haven, of Granite City, on Oct. 4. A gold watch and some money was secured from Haven.

With Meacham was Paul Vaughn, who was jointly indicted. Meacham's parents, when they heard of the matter, marched him to the police station and instructed him to "tell it all," which he did. This won clemency for him, as it was the first time he had been in trouble.

PULLIAM FUNERAL TOMORROW

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow for Miss Anne C. Pulliam, 78 years old, of the Buckingham Hotel, eldest sister of Mrs. David R. Francis of the St. Regis Apartments, who died suddenly on a train bound for San Diego, Cal., at 6 p. m., Thursday. The body is en route to the home of Miss Pulliam's nephew, J. D. Perry Francis, 4510 Maryland avenue, where the services will be held.

Miss Pulliam, accompanied by her half-sisters, Misses Laura and Mary Perry, and her half-brother, Lewis Perry, was on her way to California where she intended to spend the winter. As the train was approaching Pedro, Ariz., Miss Pulliam suffered a heart attack and fainted. A physician was summoned but he was unable to restore her to consciousness. She died a few minutes later.

The body was taken from the train at Douglas and Lewis Perry arranged to accompany it to St. Louis. The Misses Perry continued the journey.

Garment Association to Meet.

ST. LOUIS BRANCH OF SERBIAN RELIEF ORGANIZATION FORMED

Speakers, Telling of Conditions, Say 500,000 Orphans Need Medical and Hospital Attention.

A St. Louis branch of the Serbian Child Welfare Association was formed yesterday in the home of Miss Mary Lionberger, 30 Westmoreland place, with the following committee: Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. Lon V. Hocker, Mrs. Hayward Gatch, Mrs. John W. Day, Mrs. George Gellhorn, Mrs. J. Lionberger Davis, Mrs. I. A. Stevens, Mrs. E. B. Adams, Miss Mary Lionberger, Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. Fred Taussig and Mrs. D. S. Brown.

Miss Annie Christitch, a native of Serbia, and Miss Matilda Spence of New York told of the need of relief of Serbian children at this time. They said that the children there no longer need food, but they virtually all need medical and hospital attention after their sufferings of the last five years, during which they were undernourished. There are virtually 500,000 orphans in Serbia and their plight still is such that help from America will be needed for another 18 months, they said.

The St. Louis branch will endeavor to raise money for the relief work.

Chinese Rescue Japanese From Koreans.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Dec. 18.—Korean insurgents in the Chentao District on the Korean-Manchurian border, recently attacked and surrounded a Japanese detachment, killing 18 and wounding 35 of the Japanese troops, according to a Pekin dispatch. The Japanese, it is added, were extricated by Chinese troops.

EMERGENCY TARIFF BILL TO PROTECT 20 FARM PRODUCTS

Draft Agreed Upon by Ways and Means Committee Likely to Go to House Monday.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Framing of an emergency tariff designed to protect 20 farm products was completed late today by the House Ways and Means Committee. The measure probably will be presented to the House Monday with a request for action on it the following day.

The bill was designated as the Fordney emergency tariff. As drawn, it would be effective for one year from date of passage.

The measure was agreed to after six hours of discussion by the full membership of the committee which elected to honor its chairman by giving the bill his name. Fordney will prepare and introduce the formal draft.

Original Draft Broadened.

The committee broadened the original project of Senate and House leaders in joint conference. The bill was said to have been planned as a comprehensive measure to shield agriculturists from further price decline. Representative Young, Republican, North Dakota, chairman of the Agriculture Subcommittee, indicated that Ways and Means Committee members would urge its passage before the Christmas recess.

Products to which tariff protection would apply and the rates agreed upon under the committee bill were as follows:

Wheat, 30 cents a bushel; wool in the grease, 15 cents a pound; skirted, 20 cents a pound; mutton and lamb, 2½ cents a pound; cattle, 30 per cent ad valorem; wheat flour, 20 per cent ad valorem; corn, 15 cents a bushel; sheep, $1 a head if under one year old and $2 a head if over one year; onions, 40 cents a bushel; peanuts, 2 cents a pound; rice 2 cents a pound if cleaned, and 1¼ cents a pound if uncleaned; potatoes, 25 cents a bushel; long staple cotton, 7 cents a pound; and cottonseed, cocoanut, peanut and soybean oils, 20 cents a gallon.

The committee asked the Treasury Department to compile a schedule of rates on wool products, which would be equal to the rates applied to wool. This schedule is expected to be ready early Monday for inclusion in the bill when introduced, Fordney announced.

Proposals Voted Down.

Proposals to include sugar, hogs, frozen beef, vegetables, seeds, barley, flax, butter and potato flour and potato starch in the list were voted down.

For the most part, according to members, the committee voting showed five opponents to the protectionist measure and never less than three. Representative Rainey, Democrat, Illinois, was understood to have informed the committee that he would lead a floor fight against it.

Demands for inclusion of many manufactured products were made by several committee members, but leaders said these probably would vote for the bill on final passage.

Wool Manufacturers Want Protection on Mill Products.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 18.—The National Association of Wool Manufacturers today made public a telegram sent to Chairman Fordney of the congressional Committee on Ways and Means and to Acting Chairman McCumber of the Senate Committee on Finance. The message said:

"If any temporary legislation is enacted imposing a duty on wool, fully compensatory and protective duties on products of wools would be absolutely necessary if mills of this country are to be started up and kept running. The stoppage of our mills would destroy the market in this country for domestic wools, in addition to bringing great hardship on mill operators and owners. Some provision for equalizing exchange should also be adopted.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA AND CHORAL SOCIETY IN CONCERT

Christmas Festival at Coliseum Next Sunday—Popular Numbers From "The Messiah" to Be Sung.

A Christmas festival concert will be given by the Symphony Orchestra and the Pageant Choral Society at 3:15 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, at the Coliseum. Under the direction of Frederick Fischer, the organizations will give two of the most popular numbers from "The Messiah," the "Hallelujah Chorus" and another chorus, "And the Glory of God;" the orchestra will also play the famous Pastoral Symphony from the same work.

Under Director Zach, the orchestra will play the overture to Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," Luigini's "Egyptian Ballet," the symphonic poem, "Finlandia," by Sibelius; three dances from Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite," and the overture to Wagner's "Rienzi."

THREE WOMEN IDENTIFY SMITH

Each Says Alleged "Special Delivery" Man Got $20 From Her.

R. D. Smith, 35 years old, a salesman, of Sedalia, Mo., arrested in East St. Louis Friday on a charge of obtaining money from three merchants by use of the "special delivery letter" swindle, was yesterday identified by three St. Louis women storekeepers as the man who obtained $20 from each of them by the same kind of a game.

McMullen Floored By Charley White In Practice Bout

Chicago Lightweight Makes Good Showing Against Local Boy in Four Rounds.

HERE TO MEET SHANNON

Former Title-Fight Principal Demonstrates He Is in Perfect Shape.

Armory Boxing Car[illegible]

CHARLEY WHITE, Chicago, vs. Eddie Shannon, Portland; 8 rounds, 137 pounds, 3 p. m.

JIMMY KERNS, East St. Louis, vs. Johnny Lucas, St. Louis.

TOMMY DARCY vs. Bobby Weiss.

GRUB WHALEN vs. Soldier Paxton.

PAUL BARBATA vs. Willie Ramsey.

EDDIE TAYLOR, St. Louis, vs. Jack Hemple, Philadelphia.

By John E. Wray.

That Charley White, who ranks in prestige with the eminent lightweight fighters of the world, will be able to give his best tomorrow night at the First Regiment Armory when he meets Eddie Shannon of Portland in an eight-round boxing feature, was apparent to half a hundred curious critics who gathered at Harry Cook's Business Men's gymnasium, yesterday afternoon.

The news had spread that White, title aspirant still, and twice a defeated candidate for the crown in bouts with Freddie Welsh and Benny Leonard, would work out had spread and the cognoscenti flocked to see him exhibit. The thought was that if White were out of condition the bout with Shannon might not be worth while.

Among the onlookers was Walter Heisner, who is to referee the contest.

When White came out in ring attire all doubt about his physical fitness vanished. White may not be conditioned for a title bout, but he certainly looked fit. Normally large in torso and slim of underpinning, White showed not a pound of adipose anywhere. He was within a very few pounds of his condition at Benton Harbor, and for this bout he had to weigh 135 pounds. For tomorrow night's event he will be permitted to scale 137 pounds at 3 p. m., which means perhaps 140 pounds ringside.

Local Stars Sidestep White.

White went through a few warming-up stunts with the weights and other appliances, and then called for volunteers to spar with him. Kid Bandy, Billy Cole and other local lightweights were on hand, but all had business elsewhere, at the time, Joe McMullen, who, outside of Barkis of revered memory, is the most "willin'" person in the world, consented to step four rounds with White.

The Chicago boxer sparred generously with Joe who acquitted himself nicely leaving the onlookers in doubt as to the merits of the two. This lasted three rounds.

In the final round White stepped on the gas and soon had Joe working like a drowning man. White suddenly hooked his right and Joe was slow in getting away. It caught him on the "button" and sent him to the floor, his head hitting the canvas with a thump that made White anxious. White bent over and helped McMullen to his feet, apologizing all the while. Joe is a game bird and just grinned.

No Question of Condition.

White will undoubtedly be in good shape for the bout tomorrow, which means that Eddie Shannon will have to step out lively to avoid the steam roller.

White is no longer under the management of Nate Lewis but is handling his own affairs. He has made a world of money in the fourteen years of boxing, since he first fought professionally. He receaved a fine slice of the Benton Harbor bacon, last July, and he is credited with having a chance for a return match with Leonard.

Four or five years ago White was considered as almost certain to win the title. But Freddie Welsh outpointed him for twenty rounds, when they met at Colorado Springs.

Shannon has been training hard for this bout. What style of fight he will make doubtless depends on White's attack. It is safe to say that it will be defensive, for White will probably not let Shannon assume the lead.

Peewee Fights Next Thursday.

Peewee Kaiser, the niftiest bantamweight in the city, considering his limited experience, will take on an old stager Thursday night, in the feature at the South Broadway Athletic Club, where he boxes Harry Mansell, the British bantamweight, who has been touring the Far West for some months. Mansell has been in the game some time and must be fairly clever, for he is not badly marked up from his encounters.

If Mansell makes a good showing against Kaiser he will be put on against Patsy Flanagan. Kaiser will take on a tougher boy than he has met as yet, if Mansell lives up to some of the press notices he displays.

It's Bandy vs. Chaney, Next.

There is little doubt but that Kid Bandy will be the next local opponent for Andy Chaney, the Polish fighter, who "Polished" off Harry Kabakoff at the Coliseum, last week. Bandy is tougher material than Kabby, but he will have to be, if Chaney hands him any of the stuff he delivered to Kabby, F. O. B. Coliseum. This boy can hit and hit fast, but he will be giving away considerable weight to Bandy.

The Case of Mel Coogan.

Mel Coogan, who is one of the niftiest boxers in the United States, but who was endowed with only a powderpuff punch, will be the opponent of Billy Cole at the Coliseum, Dec. 28. It will be a hard match for Cole, since Coogan is a boy of national repute and undoubtedly is fast and clever. He has been seen in this city several times. His only setback was a quick knockout by the champion, Benny Leonard. He has met almost all of the good lightweights without serious setbacks.

Cobb Named Manager of Tigers; Salary Probably Sets Record

"Greatest Player of All Time" Finally Yields to Plea of Club Owner—Friends Anticipate That He Will Be a Playing, Not a Bench Leader, Next Season.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, for 14 years the most spectacular batsman in the big leagues till George Sisler, Babe Ruth and others eclipsed him last season, signed a contract today to be playing-manager for the Detroit Tigers for the 1921 season.

Cobb will receive, it was whispered after he finished his conference with Frank J. Nevin, president of the Detroit club, a salary of $30,000. He had been getting $20,000 as a player. His salary as manager makes him the best paid team pilot in either of the big leagues.

The contract is to run for one year only. This was at Cobb's request, it is reported, as he says he does not want to stay at managing if he doesn't make good.

The Tigers also announced their training camp. It will be at Hot Wells, near San Antonio, Texas, where the Giants will train. The teams may play some games in Texas, if the Giants are not too much occupied with the Cleveland Indians and the Washington Senators.

Cobb joined the Tigers in 1905, coming from the Augusta club of the South Atlantic League. He went into the outfield and in his first season batted for an average of .240. In 1906, however, he started his climb toward fame and in 1911 he developed into a .420 hitter. His fiery style of play, both on the bases and at the plate, caused him to be spoken of as one of the greatest drawing cards in baseball. For 12 years he led the batters of the American League with marks well above .300. Six times Cobb led the league in stolen bases.

Cobb was born in Royston, Ga., in 1885, and played professional ball in 1904. At the close of the 1918 season he enlisted in the Chemical Warfare Service with the rank of Captain. During the 1920 season the Georgian was kept out of the game during much of the early part of the season by injuries. At that time there was talk that he would take the managerial reins of the Tigers, and these rumors were revived when Jennings announced his resignation.

Jennings, Cobb's predecessor, had much to do with Cobb's development. He assumed charge of the Tigers in 1907, and piloted pennant winning teams in that year and the two following seasons.

Cobb to Emulate Speaker.

Cobb declared that he did not seek the position but accepted it because Mr. Navin insisted that the team needed him as a leader.

"I very much should have preferred to lay aside all ambitions in the managerial line until such time as I felt myself slipping," Cobb added. "I know I have several years of good baseball ahead of me."

"Tris Speaker has risen to his greatest heights as leader of the Indians. In my opinion, what any ball player has ever done I believe I can duplicate."

"Detroit has not a bad ball club," Cobb said. "I am sure it will have a better one. There is room for improvement and there will be improvement. I do not say this egotistically. I have certain theories made from close observation during a long playing career and I intend to put them into practice."

2 Foreign Stars On Madison Team

Scullins' Rivals in Cup Game Saturday Practically American-Born Team.

Sixteen soccer football players, leaders in Western Pennsylvania, will furnish the football attraction here on Christmas day and on the Sunday following it. The aggregation is the Madison (Pa.) Football Club and it will battle the Scullins of St. Louis, Saturday, in the fourth round of the national championship eliminations. Sunday following the visitors will oppose an all-star team from the local league.

The cup game was transferred here from Madison, where it was originally assigned, because it figured to be a losing venture to the Madison club, if held on their home grounds.

In a letter to the Post-Dispatch J. J. Murphy, secretary of the Madison club, sends some statistics of the team's make-up. These show that of the 16 players who will be here for the games two are Scottish born, and 14 were born in this country, making the eleven practically an American-born team.

Five Brothers on Team.

A feature of the eleven is that five of its players are brothers named Monstrolo, born in this country of Italian parentage.

The Madison club won the Pittsburg Press soccer championship in 1916 and 1919. Ward in goal, M. Monstrolo at fullback and P. Kilday at center forward are considered the team's best stars and the best men in the Pittsburg district.

Murphy writes: "Our team is considered the best in Pennsylvania this year."

Following are the players who will come for the holiday battles:

Name.	Nationality
Jas. Moreman	American
P. J. Kilday	American
J. R. Fitzgerald	American
Peter Adams	American
V. Hutter	American
H. O'Neil	American
Jos. Bytheway	American

BRITISH BOBBIES IN NEW YORK FOR BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Two London policemen, the vanguard of a delegation of British Bobbies that will match pugilistic skill with New York's finest in January, will arrive here tomorrow on the steamship Imperator. In addition to the bouts between the police, the International Sporting Club has arranged for matches between champions of the American and British armies and navies.

Ben Millers Play Innisfails Today

Champions Met Defeat in Last Encounter—Scullins Oppose Screw Eleven.

The Innisfails, tail-enders in the St. Louis Soccer League race, will again attempt to defeat the Ben Millers when they meet in the first game of today's double-header at Cardinal Field. When these teams played three weeks ago the Innisfails sprang the biggest surprise of the season by winning from the champions, 5 goals to 2. As this was a National cup competition it proved costly to the Millers, as it elimimted them from further participation in this competition.

Since then, however, the Millers have taken a brace and from a tie for last place have jumped to second place in the standing. On the other hand, the Innisfails have slowed up slightly after threatening to assume the leadership in the league race.

The second game will be between the Scullins, present leaders in the race, and the St. Louis Screw Co. eleven. This game should be hard fought as there is considerable feeling among the players as the result of the Scullins' protest of their last 3-3 game, which was awarded to the Scullins, thus removing the Screws from the Cup competition.

As the Ben Millers are crowding the Scullins for first place honors, it is up to the Scullins to win, to prevent the Millers from leaping into the lead. Only one point separates the clubs.

Manager Tate Brady of the Scullins reports that Al Oberle, fullback, and Len Zarchel, halfback, are on the injured list and may be unable to play today. If these stars are forced to remain out of the game it will be a blow to the Scullins as their reserve strength is not formidable.

The league officials have decided upon a new starting time—2 o'clock. This action was taken to enable the teams in the second game to finish play in daylight. Phil Kavanaugh will referee today's first game while Paul McSweeney will referee the second contest.

KEKNRICK SCORES DOUBLE BASKET VICTORY OVER CHAMINADE COURT FIVES

Kenrick High School scored a double basketball victory over Chaminade College at the Kenrick Gymnasium, yesterday afternoon. In the opening game the Kenrick Juniors defeated the Chaminade seconds, 20 to 7; while in the contest between the regular fives, Kenrick won, 54 to 19.

Genter Duggan, with 10 points, was the high point scorer for the victors, while Forward Kane led the Craminade attack with 15 points. This was Kenrick's fourth successive victory this year. The team will meet Yeatman High, tomorrow afternoon.

The lineup:

Kenrick (34).	Positions.	(19) Chaminade.
Rotermund (6)	Right forward	(15) Kane

Only One Veteran Davis Cup Player In 1920 Contests

Norman Brookes, Australia, Is Expected to Pair With Patterson in Doubles.

By Davison Obear,
Secretary National Tennis Umpires Association.

Australia will have a strong tennis team ready to oppose the United States players in the 1920 Davis cup matches which will be held at Auckland, New Zealand, on Dec. 28, 30 and 31. Although there has been no official announcement made as to who will oppose Tilden, Johnston and Washburn, the selection is bound to be made from Australia's six leading players.

Gerald Patterson stands out as the logical selection for the number one singles position on the team. He is the Australian champion and during the past two years has made an excellent record at home and abroad.

For second position in singles Norman Brookes, the veteran internationalists, has been mentioned; but in Pat O'Hara Wood, the Anzacs have a player of wonderful ability. Wood is a younger man and for this reason he may be placed in the singles.

In the doubles Brookes and Patterson loom up as the best combination, despite the fact that Wood and R. V. Thomas defeated them at Wimbledon last year. The fourth member of the team will be either the "colt" J. O. Anderson or J. B. Hawkes, another youth just past the age of 20. In the Davis cup matches last year against the British Isles, young Anderson made a very favorable showing. He forced Kingscote to a 7—5, 6—2, 6—4 score before losing and in his second match defeated A. H. Lowe in five close sets, 6—4, 5—7, 6—3, 4—6, 12—10.

Newest Anzac a Southpaw.

Hawkes, Australia's latest "find," is a lefthander who resembles the late Kenneth Powell. He uses an averhead service hit with an American break action. While somewhat weak in backhand strokes and erratic in smashing, he should improve with experience. His footwork is excellent.

Australia's best combination is almost certain to be Patterson and Wood in the singles and Brookes and Patterson in the doubles. The Davis cup matches are the best three in five. On the first day Tilden may oppose Patterson, and Johnston draw Wood.

The doubles will take place on the second day. Tilden and Johnston will no doubt meet Brookes and Patterson.

If only three matches are required to decide the winning nation, Brookes or Anderson will probably play Washburn in one of the remaining singles events, while Hawkes or R. V. Thomas will meet Samuel Hardy in the other.

United States has not competed in a Davis Cup contest since that sensational series of 1914 at Forest Hills, N. Y., when Australia was returned the victor. Five men took part in the five events of Aug. 13, 14 and 15. Of that number Norman Brookes is the only one to take part in the 1920 series.

While Australia defeated the United States players the match was close, the score being 3 to 2. In the first two singles Wilding defeated R. N. Williams and McLoughlin won from Brookes. Brookes and Wilding captured the doubles from McLoughlin and Bundy. The "comet" McLoughlin startled the world by winning from Wilding, in the third singles, while Williams went down to defeat before Brookes, thus giving Australia the deciding match of the series.

St. Louisan Donated "Cup."

The Davis Cup, donated by Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis, has been played for 14 times since 1900. United States took the first contest in 1900 and Australia won it last year. No matches were held from 1915 to 1918, inclusive, on account of the war. The British Isles lead in the total number of victories, which is six. Australia follows with five and the United States is last with three victories.

With last summer's success abroad as a basis the United States team should be victorious on the New Zealand courts the last of this month, but a change of climate and different playing conditions are sometimes two hard obstacles to overcome. However, with three weeks practice before the first day of play, the American quartet should be in the best possible condition.

ILLINOIS LOSES BASKET GAME TO MILLIKEN U.

URBANA, Ill., Dec. 18.—Milliken University of Decatur defeated University of Illinois at basketball here tonight by score of 29 to 24.

Although the Illini led at the end of the first half Milliken overcame the lead easily in the last period. Tonight's game opened the basketball season for Illini.

Staley Football Team Stars Get $2100 Each for Season's Playing

DECATUR, Ill., Dec. 18.

TWENTY-ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for three months' work on the gridiron was the amount received by each regular member of the championship Staley team, according to an announcement made today by G. E. Chamberlain, general superintendent of the A. E. Staley Manufacturing Co.

It is planned to have an even stronger machine in the field next season. The players tendered a banquet to the Staley officials Friday evening, and over half of them departed for their homes in different parts of the country.

CONTROL OF AMERICAN LEAGUE BY LOYAL FIVE MAY START NEW FIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Ban Johnson and the five club owners in the American League, who stood by him in boosting the "outlaws" of the board of directors for 1921, left the city yesterday for home and Christmas cheer.

The "faithful five" were grim but determined, when rumors of more war as a result of their action was brought to them. It was reported that the "outlaws," Messrs. Ruppert, Frazee and Louis Comiskey, who represented his father at Friday's meeting, were preparing a broadside.

Col. Ruppert said: "We thought the war was over and that they would treat us decently. It had been tacitly understood the old method of rotating the board would be followed out. Apparently they couldn't trust us. We may have something to say later."

Rudolph to Quit Braves.

George W. Grant, president of the Braves, confirmed the story from Boston that Dick Rudolph, who was one of the trio that pitched the Braves to a league and world championship in 1914, is probably to leave the team. He had given authority to negotiate for his release and it is said he seeks to join the Detroit Tigers because of a desire in the closing years of his pitching career to take a fling at American League batsmen. Consent of all the other National League clubs will be necessary before he can negotiate with Detroit.

TENNIS TITLE TOURNEYS FOR 1921 TO BE AWARDED AT MEETING FEBRUARY 5

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The date for the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association was set tonight for Saturday, Feb. 5. Award of national championship tournaments and the 1921 Davis Cup challenge round, should the American team now at Aukland win the International trophy, will be the outstanding feature of the meeting.

It was also announced that the Davis Cup Committee will meet Monday to consider proposed revisions of the Davis Cup regulations that have been submitted by the French Lawn Tennis Association.

These relate to the rules which shall be applied to such matches, raising the question whether they should be the rules of the International Federation, or of the champion nation, as is required by the present regulations. The French authorities also advocate a revision of the present regulations regarding expenses, their idea being to have a definition of the expenses which may properly be charged against a Davis Cup match.

On invitation that will be led by the delegates is the draft of a tournament circular to be issued by the association for its members' information outlining the material that should be included in the announcement of sanctioned tournaments. The Executive Committee in studying this problem, concluded that it was better to have a tournament of 40 bona fide entries, than one of twice that number in which half the competitors default. Accordingly it will consider only those entries which are submitted in writing, accompanied by entry fees.

M'KENDREE COLLEGE TO PLAY 11 BASKET GAMES

McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill., has a schedule of 11 conference besketball games to be played before the tournament of the "Little Nineteen" at Miliken University, Decatur, Ill., March 3 to 5, inclusive.

This is one of the most difficult schedules undertaken by a McKendree five in recent years as it includes games with nearly all the teams which are generally considered the class of the Conference. Last year McKendree was runner-up in its division of the conference and placed two men on the All-State team.

Although a number of practice games will be played soon, the first conference game will be against Illinois College at Jacksonville on Jan. 15.

"Austral" to Analyze Davis Cup Matches for the Post-Dispatch

MAJOR R. M. KIDSTON, better known as "Austral," will cover the Davis Cup lawn tennis matches in New Zealand, beginning on Dec. 28 for the Post-Dispatch.

"Austral" is recognized as a lawn tennis authority not only in Australia but throughout the world. He bases his criticism on a profound knowledge of the game, and has visited both this country and England with Davis Cup teams in order to study more closely the leading players

Analysis of play is his particular forte, and this, combined with his breadth of view and amazing enthusiasm for the game, makes his writings of peculiar value to lovers of the sport.

The United States earned the right to challenge Australia for the famous trophy by defeating France and Great Britain in the preliminary matches in England last July.

Ohio State Must Use Pass to Win From California

Far West Football Eleven Rich in Native Football Stars, Camp Declares.

By Walter Camp.
(Copyright, 1920.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—As the time approaches for the big intersectional football game on the Pacic Coast between Ohio State, the Middle West Conference champions, and the University of California, interest grows, but there is rather a scant idea in the East of the capabilities of the teams out on the coast. Perhaps, too, there is a little measure of over-confidence in the assumption that as Harvard defeated Oregon last year, so will Ohio State defeat the University of California.

Now, as a matter of fact, while Pacific-Northwestern football has retrograded this year, there has been a tremendous improvement in the game of these more Southern Pacific Coast institutions—namely, the University of California and the University of Southern California. In fact, the University of Southern California, like its sister school at Berkeley, lost no game this season, and defeated Oregon, 21 to 0.

Therefore, the center of football interest today is located in the Southern Pacific country rather than in the Northern. As Southern California and the University of California did not meet, speculation regarding their relative ability is idle; but the selection of the University of California by the Los Angeles committee is sufficient indication that the Far West believes in the Berkeley school. Some idea of the confidence of the Coast in this University of California team can be gathered from the following expression:

"Just watch what California does to Ohio State on New Year's day. It wolud be the same as if Princeton or Penn State or Pittsburg came. California has the most powerful eleven ever developed in the West."

Even those Californians who are not as outspoken as their fellow-citizens, have a confidence different from that of last year.

Ohio Faces Strong Foe.

Anyone who believes that Ohio State is not going to have its hands full is very much mistaken. Andy Smith, the old Penn fullback, together with Rosenthal of Minnesota, has been peculiarly successful in developing for the Coast a very powerful, aggressive and well-rounded out team. Matching power for power, California seems to have the edge, with Muller, a star end, McMillan a crackerjack tackle and Sprott a hard-hitting back. Berkeley, on the other end, is good, but that side of the line is not so strong as the Muller-McMillan side.

If it were not for the fact that Ohio State, through the forward-passing of Workman and the speed of Stinchcomb, has been so successful in pulling out on top of its contests, California would be a decided favorite. But no one of the conference teams, at least, has been able to stop the aerial game of Ohio State. California will have the advantage of an extra month or more, it is true, to work out a defense to Ohio's air game, but even so the latter will be at all times dangerous.

It will be a great game but the East should be wise enough to realize Ohio State is meeting one of the most powerful teams the Coast has ever developed, and a team that knows thoroughly what is the real danger point in the adversary's offensive tactics.

The South's New Plans.

The one-year rule and exclusion of summer baseball are likely to disrupt the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, if one may judge from the reports of recent meetings. At any rate, a conference has been called in Atlanta in February which may result in a new organization. Amburn, Georgia Tech., Georgia University, Alabama, Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina University, Tennessee, Kentucky, Clemson, Mississippi A. & M., and South Carolina will be represented. If these institutions form a conference, it is probable that its influence will be as strong toward control as that of the Middle West and Pacific Coast Conferences.

Timid Schedules.

Roper, the Princeton coach, thinks that the Army's poor work in its game with the Navy was due to the lack of a stiff schedule. There are various opinions on so-called "hard" and "weak" schedules, and it may be of interest to recall that the leading teams of ten or fifteen years ago certainly played more extensively and agains more dangerous opponents than they do today. Fifteen years ago, for instance, Yale's schedule included Wesleyan, Trinity, Holy Cross, Penn State, Springfield, Syracuse, West Point, Columbia and Brown—and all these before the Princeton game. Princeton, that same year, played Dickinson, Georgetown, Wesleyan, Washington and Jefferson, Lafayette, Annapolis, Lehigh, Cornell and West Point and Yale. Nothing timid about these schedules! But can the same be said today?

Chick Evans Ranks First, Jones Second in Amateur Golf World

Eastern Critic Places Jesse Sweetser, Former St. Louis Star, in Sixth Place—Ouimet Third and Gardner, by Virtue of Success in England, Listed Fourth.

By W. E. Hicks.
Eastern Golf Authority of the Post-Dispatch.

IN selecting the best 10 amateur golfers in the United States in 1920, one must take into consideration the work of one of them abroad, namely Robert A. Gardner of Chicago, who, although not distinguished by play at home, gave the Britishers the fright of their lives by coming within an ace of winning their amateur championship at Muirfield. Gardner was the second player from the United States to reach the final in the British championship, the other having been Walter J. Travis of Garden City, who back in 1904 captured the British title—the only time that a non-British subject has won that honor.

The following 10 may be regarded as coming close to representing the best American golfers of the season just closed. It is not maintained that they are beyond all question the best 10, for such a ranking cannot be established by any hard and fast rule and is largely a matter of personal choice and individual judgment as to the "weight" or merit of each achievement. Perhaps some will think that for certain players omitted just as good arguments can be given for including as for excluding them. After the list will come the reasons for this classification:

1. Charles (Chick) Evans Jr., Edgewater, Ill. (Chicago.)
2. Bobby Jones, Atlanta, Ga.
3. Francis Ouimet, Woodland, Mass. (Boston.)
4. Robert A. Gardner, Hinsdale, Ill. (Chicago.)
5. D. E. Sawyer, Siwanoy, N. H. (N. Y. City.)
6. Jess Sweetser, Siwanoy, N. Y. (New York City.)
7. J. Wood Platt, North Hills, Pa. (Philadelphia.)
8. Fred J. Wright, Albermarle, Mass. (Boston.)
9. S. Davidson Herron, Oakmont, Pa. (Pittsburg.)
10. W. M. Reekie, Upper Montclair, N. J. (New York City.)

Evans goes to the front because of winning the national and the Western amateur championships. Of his right to hold first place there is not a shadow of doubt, for in addition to his title winning he was the leading amateur in the United States open championship, being only three strokes back of the winner.

Second Place a Problem.

Second place offers a less easy problem. Jones is placed in front of Ouimet, although the latter beat Bobby in the semifinals of the national championship at the Engineers. On that showing alone Ouimet would get the second place, but the Southern boy did much more competitive playing than the Bostonian and figured importantly in more contests.

For example, the only other achievements of the season by Ouimet were his winning of the Brookline tournament and the Jacques Memorial Cup at Brookline early in the season. But against that record may be placed the brilliant work of Jones in the national and the Southern open and his shining in the matches with Vardon and Ray, not to speak of other things.

In the national amateur Jones tied with Wright for the medal at 154 and won it on the play-off. In the Western amateur championship he was beaten by Evans in the semifinals only on the thirty-sixth hole by one up. Incidentally Jones broke the Memphis course record in the qualifying round with 69. In the Southern amateur championship at Chattanooga, not only did Bobby carry off the title, but there, too, he lowered the course record with another 69.

Starred in National Open.

The finish of the national open at Inverness found him the second best amateur, only one stroke worse than Evans and four behind Ed Ray, the winner; that is, he was only a single stroke behind Ray in each of the four title rounds. In the elimination rounds he played 72 holes as the partner of Harry Vardon, the greatest golfer of all time, and the analysis of those two days' play showed him the master of the great Englishman, except, singularly enough, on the putting greens, where Vardon has been reputed weak for years. In actual strokes, also, the boy was the better, carding 151 to Vardon's 153.

Coming to the matches with Vardon and Ray, it should be noted that Jones made the best record of all those who tackled the famous British pair. He won from them three times in two days. First, with Evans, he gave them the worst defeat of their career, at Morris County, and the following day won two 18-hole matches at Englewood against them, once partnered by a pro and the other time by an amateur. Jones also annexed the Morris County invitation tournament, defeating Gardiner White and Reginald M. Lewis in the last two rounds.

Gardner is placed next at No. 4 because of his splendid exhibition in the British amateur championship, when he went through the strong field in his half of the bracket to reach the final against Cyril Tolley and to have the match square on the thirty-sixth hole, but losing on the thirty-seventh through a birdie by the young Englishman.

Sawyer in Fifth Place.

Sawyer comes along in the next niche by virtue of winning the Metropolitan amateur championship and taking the laurels which Oswald Kirkby had won the year before. In addition Sawyer was the medalist of the qualifying round.

Right here comes a tussle also among the admirers of S. Davidson Herron, the 1919 national amateur champion; Jesse Sweeeter, Fred J. Wright Jr. and J. Wood Platt for the place after Sawyer.

Sweetser Wins the Place.

Sweetser's right to lead the quartet rests upon his winning of the intercollegiate title, his capturing of the Victory cup competition at Wykagyl and his topping the amateurs in the Metropolitan open championship, although the unpaid representation in that tournament was not impressive. Still on the Greenwich course Jesse had rounds of 76, 76, 75, 77—304, the ninth low figure against the leading figure of 292 scored by Hagen and Barnes, the pros.

While the intercollegiate championship partakes of the nature of a national affair, the immaturity of the players makes it less of a real golf test than other title play in which adults compete. Nevertheless, as the field included such strong players as J. Simpson Dean, the Princeton team captain, and James C. Ward, three times champion of Missouri, Sweetser had to play fine golf to land the title of best collegian on the links. Sweetser got his start as a 14-year-old boy on the Normandie golf course at St. Louis.

Just as we are closing the list of achievements there come recollections of the way Platt defeated Herron in the second round of the national championship, when the margin in favor of Platt was 2 and 1 in the 36 holes of play, and of the manner in which he led the field in the 72-hole medal play curtain raiser to the Lesley Cup tri-state cup contest at Merion, Pa. in October.

This leaves Herron and Wright to fight it out for the next place and we rather prefer the Boston young man.

To Reekie is given the last seat in the band wagon because of his failure to get into the title flight in the national amateur and because the Jersey championship this year was not what it used to be as Kirby did not enter, Marston had moved to Philadelphia and E. M. Wild suffered last winter a disabling accident to his arm.

TAVENNER FIRST IN BOWLING SWEEPSTAKE

C. W. Tavenner won the tenpin sweepstakes at the Washington alleys last night, with a total of 655 pins, and games of 232, 231, 192. Herman Grosse with 223, 165, 251, total 639, was second. Frank Sherwood, 631, was third.

BUCKEYE FOOTBALL TEAM DEPARTS FOR PASADENA

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—Traveling with comforts and care seldom given anyone less than the ruler of a nation, 23 Ohio State University football players left here at midnight on a special train for Pasadena, Cal., where they will meet the University of California football team New Year's day at the Tournament of Roses. The players arrived here at 7 o'clock from Columbus on a special train and were entertained tonight by Ohio State alumni at a banquet.

The special train carrying the Western Conference football champions westward contained seven cars—four sleepers, a diner, an observation car and a baggage car. A special chef prepared especially selected food for the men. The men were allowed to drink only Columbus water 300 gallons having been brought along and a trained nurse was ready to give aid to any athlete who might be feeling unwell.

Champion Herman To Risk Title in Bout With Lynch

Bantam Champion Fights Fifteen Rounds at New York Next Wednesday.

MEETS WILDE ON JAN. 14

New Orleans Fighter Faces Two Hardest Bouts Since He Won the Championship.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—When Pete Herman, bantamweight champion of the world, steps into the ring at Madison Square Garden, next Wednesday night, to defend his title against Joe Lynch, in a 15-round bount to a decision, it will be the first battle actually for the bantamweight championship fought in this city, this century.

Jimmy Barry, who retired undefeated, successfully defended his laurels against Casper Leon on May 30, 1898, fighting 20 rounds to a draw at the Coney Island A. C. at 105 pounds. They fought twice previously in 1894, when Barry knocked him out in 28 rounds, and on March 30, 1895, a 14-round draw.

The weight in the Horton law boxing days for bantams was 105 pounds and 115 to 118 pounds was the featherweight scale. Today the New York bantamweight limit is 118 pounds at 2 o'clock, the poundage next Wednesday night's contestants must make or forfeit $5000.

With the retirement of Barry came a raft of likely bantams, but this class didn't get any prestige until Johnny Coulon came along about 15 years ago and established his right to the title.

After persistent challenging, Kid Williams got Coulon in a Los Angeles ring in 1914 and knocked him out in three rounds. Williams defended the title successfully for three years. Peter Herman dethroned the Baltimore lad by getting a decision in 20 rounds at New Orleans, Jan. 9, 1917. Herman gave him a return match and beat Williams again at Philadelphia, a few months later. Then he came to New York and bested Lynch in a 10-round no-decision fight. He returned to New Orleans, his home town, and defended his laurels successfully against Frankie Burns, who was going like a house afire. Later on he knocked out Coulon in three rounds.

Champion Likes "Derby Route."

That Herman is a better man at long distances than he is over shorter routes is indicated by his string of victories at 15 and 20 rounds. He has beaten Eddie Campi, Louisiana, K. O. Eggers and Al Shubert in 20-round bouts and Frankie Brown in 15.

He has fought Jack Sharkey five times, Lynch three, Pal Moore five, and Joe Burman once. He has scored knockouts over the following: Johnny Ertle, Frank Mason, Harry Bramer, Nate Jackson, Bobby Dibbons, an Englishman; Kid Regan, Lew Angelo, Eddie Coulon, K. O. Brown, Young Allen, Johnny Ritchie and Coulon.

This will be the third bout between Herman and Lynch. The last time they fought, Lynch gathered in the popular decision after 10 rounds at Waterbury, Conn. Herman's last three fights were with Sharkey, Burman and Jimmy Kelley.

Lynch got the Herman bout because of his recent knockout of Sharkey in 15 sensational rounds. This was a return match. Several weeks previously they had fought a hurricane 15 rounds to a draw. Tex Rickard promised the winner a match with Herman. The winner will receive a $2500 diamond studded Rickard belt, emblematic of the championship.

Herman Meets Wilde, Jan. 14.

Both men are in hard training the champion at Grupp's, with the assistance of Solly Seeman, Chris Burkhardt and Johnny Duff. Sam Goldman and Herman sail the day after the fight on the Imperator for London, where Herman has an engagement to fight Jimmy Wilde on Jan. 14. Lynch is getting in condition at Stillman's.

Lynch came to the fore several years ago when he knocked out Kid Williams in Philadelphia. He has fought the best in the land since then and has yet to be decisively beaten.

A few weeks ago Pete defeated Pal Moore in St. Louis, and came home to get a draw with Jabez White, of Albany in the Garden. Then he knocked out Abe Goldstein, who substituted for Sharkey. He gave Sharkey himself a hard lacing knocking him down and finally crashing a right to the chin, which sent Jack down, and the referee humanely terminated proceedings.

Babe Asher in Preliminary.

Three bantamweight bouts will precede the main event. The semi-final of 10 rounds will bring together Midget Smith, who recently knocked out Phil Franchini in one round and Johnny Buff of Jersey City. The second 10 rounder will show Kewpie Collender and Roy Moore. The opener of six rounds will bring together Georgie Thompson of San Francisco and "Babe" Asher of St. Louis.

"Y" Team to Play O'Fallon.

The North Side Y. M. C. A. basketball team will travel to O'Fallon, Ill., Thursday night, Dec. 23, to meet the all-star team of that town. The local team will line up as follows: L. J. Hartiger and Conley, forwards; H. Heitiger, center, and Daus and Gibbons, guards.

Billy Evans Completely Fooled by White Sox in 1919 'Pillow' Series

American League Umpire Says Nothing Aroused His Suspicion, Not Even Cicotte's Bone Play, and That He Thought the Reds Simply Had Better Baseball Than Chicago.

By Billy Evans.
American League Umpire.
(Copyright, 1920.)

THE wise guys with the second guess is always with us.

Now that it has been proven there was something wrong with the 1919 world series, the "I told you so" person is having his inning.

Recently I heard a group of five discussing baseball. All were well versed in baseball, and the conversation took in any number of topics, but finally narrowed down to the 1919 series between Chicago and Cincinnati.

Since the confession of Eddie Cicotte, which implicated a number of other players, I have read and listened to a lot of stuff from the "I told you so" brigade. A lot of people claim they knew Cicotte wasn't trying to pitch, that Lefty Williams plainly showed he was trying to walk any number of Cincinnati hitters, that Happy Felsch was trying to catch the ball much after the manner of a blindfolded man, that Joe Jackson was trying to strike out in the pinch and hitting home runs when they didn't count. Jackson's performance would be some feat in itself.

What Evans Thought of Series.

That may sound all right to the ever suspicious, who are always willing to believe anything that hurts the integrity of the game and the honesty of the players as a whole. All the stuff of that nature which I have read or heard strikes me as the silly patter of the second guesser. I was one of the four umpires in that series. Being on the field, in close contact with the players, in the best possible position to analyze the plays, what I thought of that series might be of interest to the public.

One of the fellows in the group, noticing I was a silent listener, decided to draw me into the conversation.

"Well, Bill, you umpired that series. You are supposed to know something about baseball. How did it strike you? Give us some of the inside stuff."

The 1919 world series is a nightmare to me, now that I know it was crooked. I hate to think about it. I had such confidence in the integrity of every man connected with baseball that I didn't believe it possible. Anyone who knows baseball knows that to put over a crooked deal it is necessary that most of the team be implicated. I did not think such a thing possible, yet it seems that the trick was turned. Just how difficult it is to throw a game, and do it without creating suspicion, is shown by the fact that Dick Kerr was able to win two games for Chicago despite the efforts of a number of his teammates to the contrary. I have discussed the 1919 series but little, because of the heartaches it gives me, but I accepted the invitation and unfolded my impressions, which I shall repeat here for the fans in general.

The White Sox fooled me completely in the 1919 series. I knew the club didn't play up to form. I regarded the Sox as a better team than the Reds. Yet in the 1919 series I felt Cincinnati, in the eight games played, was the better team and deserved to win. The best clubs do not always win the world's series, and clubs do not always play up to form. The Cubs in 1906 were better than the Sox, but they played away below form and lost. The Athletics in 1914 were far superior to the Braves, but they were beaten in four straight games. It was easy to excuse the defeat of Chicago in 1919, even though it was generally regarded as much the better team.

Since the expose of the crooked work on the part of the Sox, I have heard much criticism of the pitching of Lefty Williams. Now that we know things were not right, it is easy to pick the work of Williams to pieces. Much stress has been laid on the number of bases on balls he gave in the second game. I was the umpire back of the plate in that game, and was in a perfect position to pass criticism on the work of Williams. The Chicago southpaw is a pitcher who always had the reputation of working the corners, keeping the ball on the inside or outside of the plate, where it was most difficult for the batter to get a hold of it.

Four Runs Result of Passes.

In the fourth inning I walked three men—Rath, Groh and Duncan—and all three scored, on a single by Roush and a triple by Kopf. In the sixth Roush was given a base on balls, sacrificed to second and scored on a single by Neale. Thus all four runs in that game were the direct results of bases on balls.

Of the four men I walked, Williams didn't throw one ball that would have been classed as a real bad pitch. Every ball delivered was at the waistline, and not one of them was over six inches inside or outside, and most of them much less than that. There wasn't a ball around the shoe tops or above the shoulders, so that even a spectator in center field would have known it was a ball. I regarded the loss of that game at the time as one of the hardest bits of luck I ever saw a pitcher go up against. I thought the control of Williams was just a bit off. Later events have made it seem that his control that afternoon was really uncanny.

In the final game I did see Joe Jackson strike out in a pinch with the bases filled, and a few innings later knock a home run with no one on. That was not unusual—star batters often do it. A number of times last summer Babe Ruth whiffed with men on, and then a few innings later, with the bases empty, knocked a home run. Happy Felsch did play some bad ball, misjudging a couple of flies, but all the great fielders, Speaker, Roush and the rest of them, occasionally misjudge fly balls.

Cicotte's Pillow Trick.

Only once in the series did I rave at the way the Chicago club was playing, and then with no thought of suspicion, but with pure disgust. That was after the fourth game in which the brainy Eddie Cicotte, after making a wide throw to first, followed it up by cutting off a perfect throw to the plate, deflecting the ball to the grand stand, making it possible for Cincinnati to score the only two runs of the game. I didn't think the crafty Cicotte could pull such a "bone," with the play right in front of him.

I have worked in a number of world series, and the 1919 affair looked no different to me than any other. However, we know it was all wrong, and the guilty parties are to be punished. There can be no penalty too severe for those who have dragged the game into disgrace. Yet it has been very funny to me to listen to the second guessers, who now insist they knew it wasn't on the square. Strikes me they did the game an injustice by keeping under cover.

St. Louisan Honored at Harvard.

Charles C. Eaton of 80 Vandeventer place, a member of the Sophomore Class at Harvard College, has been appointed Assistant Manager of the Harvard University Gym team. The University Gym team is excellently coached by Hugo B. Seikle, an International figure in this form of athletics, and it is one of the popular indoor sports among the Harvard undergraduates. Many meets are scheduled annually with other colleges, and it is in this connection that Eaton's new work will apply.

Mueller Topped Trolley League With .383 Mark

Wiles-Chipmans' Star Played in 20 Games—His Team Led Circuit in Club Batting.

Mueller of the Wiles-Chipmans was the leading batter among the regulars in the Missouri-Illinois ("Trolley") League during the 1920 season, according to official averages released today by Charley Bartley, league secretary. Participating in 20 games—the full schedule—Mueller was at bat 81 times, scored 22 runs and made 31 hits, for a percentage of .383. Mueller played at third base for the Chipmans, who finished the regular season in a tie with Belleville for first place, and was considered one of the stars of the league. He will be in a minor league uniform next season, having been signed by Joplin.

Cain of Dupo was the second leading regular, with a percentage of .377 in 17 games.

The Wiles-Chipmans led the league in club batting, having a percentage of .293.

The averages of batters with percentages of .250 and better, and the club batting and fielding averages, follow:

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 18.—Andrew Hisler Jr. of the Meadowbrook Club, won the Middle Atlantic Senior Cross-country championship over a five and a half mile course here today. His time of 30 minutes flat was a new record for the course. The Meadowbrook Club won the run with a score of 15 points.

SPORT SALAD

by L. C. Davis

JUST DESERTS.

WHEN dogs and cats
May live in flats
Where children have been barred,
Right here and now
I'll say as how
It's pretty doggoned hard.

The parents who Have one or two
Or maybe three or four,
Are out of luck
And may be stuck
In tents forever more.

The plutocrats
Who own the flats
Will meet with their reward;
They'll die and go
To realms below
Where landlords are not barred.

And as they boil
In seething oil
On beds of red hot coal,
The tiny tots
Around the pots
Will dance a farandole.

TOO TRUE.

Bob Cannefax, who repudiated St. Louis when he became three-cushion champ had his crown wrested from him by Johnny Layton of St. Louis. Things work out that way some times.

Joe Stecher was there with the scissors, but was shorn of his laurels by the other guy.

Judge Landis is paid a fixed salary, although he is working on a commission.

Judge Landis will officiate at the raising of the world's series pennant in Cleveland next summer. This will be the first time a Federal Judge ever assisted at this ceremony in Cleveland.

The International League is opposed to the draft. We take it they are in sympathy with the Hot Stove League.

THE DOWN DRAFT.

At that the Hot Stove League depends more or less on the draft to keep the home fires of hope burning in the fanatic breast.

When asked if he thought Babe Ruth would break his home run record next year Bill Evans said he didn't know. Maybe he doesn't. When you come right down to it we doubt that Babe himself knows.

If betting on baseball weren't in such disfavor it would be a pretty safe gamble that Babe's record of 54 will weather the storm for a few years.

FAIR ENOUGH.

Yale cleaned up in the neighborhood of $400,000 on football this year. Pretty fair for amateurs.

QUITE SO.

AND of all glad words that rhyme with Yale
There's not a one that compares

"Bo" McMillin of Centre College is in New York aiding in endowment drive for alma mater. Five million bucks is the goal "Bo" is aiming for, and if past performances count for anything he ought to have no trouble in putting it over.

Pikeway Basket Team Runs Over Municipal Five

Washington Quint in Practice Match Beats Ryersons 26 to 3, Hurd Starring.

The Washington University varsity basketball squad showed its best form of the practice season, yesterday afternoon, when it romped over the Ryerson five of the Municipal League in a scrimmage workout at Francis Gymnasium. At the end of 30 minutes' play, the Pikeway team held a 26 to 3 advantage.

The municipal players were at a disadvantage because of the absence of their star forward, Steiniger; but it is barely possible that his presence would have changed the entire teamplay enough to make any great change in the result.

Henry Hurd, the hilltoppers' forward who led the Missouri Valley Conference in scoring last year, was at his best and seems primed for another big year. Hurd caged nine field goals, scoring 18 of the 26 points. The only other field goal was contributed by Thumser, and the rest of the points came via the free throw route.

Lineup Appears Permanent.

In all probability the Red and Green team will line up for its valley games as it did yesterday. Hurd and Tommy Thompson were at the forwards, "Baldy" Thumser at center, and Capt. Kraehe and Tate at the guards. The only shift would come in at a guard, with Leffler in place of Tate. The former McKinley player will report for practice tomorrow and try for a regular place. Howeve, Tate's play, yesterday, convinced the spectators that Leffler will have to show a lot to take away the job.

The Ryersons' only points came on a free toss after four and a field goal by Lippert. The latter who was pivot man for Washington last year is at center. Russell Nies, the old Central star, is at a guard position and still is playing the basketball that made him known as one of the finest backcourt players, ever developed in this city.

The lineups:

Washington (26)	Position.	Ryersons (3).
Hurd (18)	Right forward	Wilson
Thompson (5)	Left forward	Acee
Thumser (3)	Center	Lippert (3)
Krache	Right guard	Minnegerode
Tate, O'Brien	Left guard	Nies

TIGER CAPTAIN PICKED FOR PHI BETA KAPPA KEY

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 18.—The University of Missouri has probably the only football captain in the country who is also a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, the national honorary fraternity for exceptional scholarship.

This unusual combination is Herbert Blumer of Webster Groves, Mo., for two years tackle on the Missouri football team. His recent election to the honorary fraternity was followed by his election as captain for 1921 to succeed "Chuck" Lewis, the 1920 leader. Blumer had never played football to any extent before coming to Missouri, but developed into a valuable tackle. An injury to his leg early in the recent season kept him from playing the last few games, but he is expected to be in good condition for 1921.

Detroit Selects San Antonio.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 18.—The Detroit Americans will train in San Antonio, together with the New York Giants. Scout Mike Finn, who is here, announced today. Finn has full authority to select a camp.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Trouble for Our Next Manager.

WHETHER Lee Fohl, Clarence Rowland or some other candidate is finally named successor to the late manager of the Browns, Jimmy Burke, is not the most important factor connected with the 1921 hopes of the St. Louis American League entry. Outstanding above the managerial requirement is the need of pitching reinforcement.

Managers of acceptable sort are available; but a pitcher of the first water is rarer than a chicken with a toothache. Whoever has a pitcher that can pitch, can inherit the earth, if disposed to part with him.

So far as can be gleaned from last season's performances, the Browns have one Class A pitcher in Urban Shocker and another who seems likely to develop into a first rank performer, Davis. Sothoron shot his bolt last year and hope of getting the needed two more first rank men from among the Burwells, Baynes, Cullops, etc., is scant.

In this contingency there is no place to turn for aid, for even good coaches of hurlers like Lee Fohl can not be expected to develop a miracle man or two in one season from among the upcoming talent.

Looks Like One-Two-Three.

THE situation is trying to the Browns' officials because the club is in other respects a potential pennant possibility. With a team hitting average that surpassed anything in American League records, .308, with its defensive department good enough although not top notch, with speed sufficient unto the day and with catching that will pass, the club could crowd the Indians and the Yankees, next season, if even one more first-class flinger could be discovered.

For such a player no price limit exists; but one can not be purchased. Collapse by the Yanks or Indians or the unexpected development of new talent is all that can put the club at the top next season.

Even as it stands, a repetition of last season's hitting should mean third place for the Browns, with Chicago half wrecked.

Now for the Football "Pros."

INDUSTRIAL invasion of the sport world has not lessened the troubles of the athletic idealists, either amateur or professional. The heavily capitalized industries, promoting welfare projects for the amusement of thousands of employes, have already caused heartaches in organized baseball and organized soccer circles. And now they are causing sleepless nights for university gridiron upholders.

Professional football, fostered by industrial companies, is passing into a stage that seems critical for the future cleanliness of the pastime. It has gained a toehold in several large cities and doubtless a year or two will see the formation of a national league.

In this connection we notice the aggressive Staley Co. of Decatur, Ill., boastfully sends out the statement that each regular member of the eleven—Jimmy Conzelman of Washington University was one—received $2100 for three months' work! The eleven included, besides Conzelman, men of note like Sternaman, Driscoll, Blacklock and other famous intercollegiate stars.

The sum named is sufficient to cause college men to laugh at the university rule depriving players who compete with such teams of their university "letters". Furthermore, the spread of the money thought will kill the collegiate spirit that made this sport so fine and honorable.

The dollar sign is getting a foothold in university sports and the day seems not distant when a complete surrender to commercialism will be witnessed.

Big Business Is Right.

TY COBB'S salary as manager of the Detroit club next year will be $30,000. To players of 1890 this is equivalent to paying a section hand $10 a day for work that used to be quoted at $1.10 per diem.

But Cobb has the just right to demand it and get it. In the first place, his player's contract was $20,000 annually. To add managerial worries to the cares of living up to a world-beating play-going reputation certainly is worth half as much again.

But it all goes to help place baseball in the class with the Arabian Night stories.

There is Judge Landis, who is to receive $50,000 for a very few days' annual work. There is Babe Ruth who, besides cleaning up all home run records, is "cleaning up" not less than $50,000 a year from various sources of revenue directly connected with baseball. There is the pay roll of almost any major league club, which runs from $100,000 to $200,000 for players' salaries alone. There is the New York baseball "gate", which deals with such fabulous sums as to make Aladdin's magic lamp seem a piker as a producing plant.

Organized baseball has reached a plane where it must be viewed as a business and not as a sport, because the sums involved can no longer afford to be considered as pin money, even by the wealthy.

There is hardly a plant in the American League today that does not consider its earning power on a $1,000,000 investment basis. It is doubtful if $2,500,000 would buy the Yankees, were they secured in their Polo Ground leasehold rights.

UNIVERSITY CITY HIGH GIRLS WIN 2 CONTESTS

The University City High School girls' basketball team opened its schedule the past week with two victories. On Thursday night it defeated the Delmar Baptist Church Girls, 31 to 15; and on the following night, won over the Jennings High School Girls, 25 to 12.

The latter game was a nip and tuck affair until the last 10 minutes of play. With this much time to play the score was even at 12 all. The ultimate winners then spurted and scored 13 points for the win.

RAIL BOARD DENIES ELECTRIC MEN'S APPEAL

Interprets Esch-Cummins Act to Have No Jurisdiction Over Interurban Lines.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—The United States Railroad Labor Board handed down a decision today interpreting the Esch-Cummins transportation act to mean that the board does not have jurisdiction over any interurban or electric lines.

Appeals from employes on various electric lines, asking the board to hear their grievances, were denied.

The decision affects every electric interurban in the country and many city transportation systems owned by interurban companies.

Arguments in the case were heard several months ago. Members of the board stated at the time their belief that, regardless of which side won, the matter would be appealed to the United States Supreme Court for interpretation of the transportation act.

The decision was rendered in cases brought by the 16 railway brotherhoods against 11 electric lines, whose employes have joined the recognized new organizations of steam road employes.

The board held that the meaning of Congress in the transportation act was to exempt all electric lines "not operating as a part of a general steam railroad system of transportation." The fact that some electric lines haul freight, exchange cars with steam lines, operate in interstate traffic, or use in part the tracks of a steam line does not bring those lines within the provisions of the law, the decision says.

The board also points out that the Interstate Commerce Commission has granted the interurbans a freight rate increase, but decided it had no jurisdiction over the passenger business. "It is obvious as a practical matter," the board says, "that the granting by the Labor Board of a wage increase, without corresponding authority to the Interstate Commerce Commission to raise rates, would result in serious complications. The Labor Board and the Interstate Commerce Commission were clearly intended to be interdependent in this matter. Such intention would be nullified if the Labor Board assumed jurisdiction where the Interstate Commerce Commission was without it."

Cummins Says Decision Not in Accord With Framers' Intention.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 18.—Senator Cummins of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, and one of the framers of the transportation act, said today that the decision of the Railway Labor Board that the act did not apply to interurban electric lines was not in accord with the intention of the framers of the measure.

ST. LOUIS PIANIST, 14 YEARS OLD, TO BE 'POP' SOLOIST

Stanley Homer Sicher Will Be Heard at the Odeon This Afternoon.

A 14-year-old St. Louis pianist, Stanley Homer Sicher, a pupil of Victor Ehling, will be the soloist at this afternoon's symphony "pop" concert at the Odeon. He has appeared in public before, interesting a gathering at the Sheldon Auditorium last season. His selection will be Weber's "Polonaise Brilliante," No. 72, arranged for pianoforte and orchestra by Franz Liszt.

An interesting "first-time" number will be a divertissement in two parts, called "Petit-Russien," by Francis Casadesus, brother of the Henri Casadesus, who played the antique viole d'amor as soloist with the orchestra two seasons ago. Other orchestral pieces scheduled are: Overture to "Zampa," Herold; two intermezzi from "Jewels of the Madonna," Wolf-Ferrari; instrumental arrangements of Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Song of India," and Cui's "Orientale," and Liszt's second Hungarian Rhapsody, also arranged for orchestra.

There will be no regular concerts this week or next. On Jan. 7 and 8 the series will resume, with Arthur Hackett as soloist.

DELIVERY OF INSURANCE POLICY MADE IT BINDING, COURT HELD

Ruling Treats First Premium as Paid Though Money Had Not Been Passed.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 18.—In the case of Bertha E. Berryman against the Southern Surety Co. for payment of insurance for the death of Johnson E. Berryman at St. Joseph, Mo., the Supreme Court held this week that when an insurance policy bears a clause declaring that the first premium had been paid the policy is valid, even though actual payment was not made.

Berryman was shot and killed on Feb. 18, 1916, in a quarrel with William Richardson, according to the record of the case. The insurance company contended that the policy was valid only on payment of the first premium in cash when the policy was delivered. Evidence was introduced to show that the first premium had not been paid, but that payment had been promised and the policy had been indorsed by an agent of the company and delivered. The Court held that the delivery of the policy treated the first premium as paid.

Outbreak of Carbuncles in Hungary.

$7000 MORE NEEDED FOR THE POST-DISPATCH CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL

ONLY SIX DAYS LEFT TO COMPLETE THE $10,000 FUND REQUIRED FOR EXPENSES

10,000 CHILDREN TO BE ENTERTAINED, 1800 BASKETS SENT OUT

737 GIRLS AND 85 BOYS TO TAKE PART IN COLISEUM ENTERTAINMENT THIS YEAR

Seats to Be Reserved at Coliseum Christmas Morning for Lame Children—None Will Have to Wait Outside for Admittance.

YESTERDAY'S contributions to the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Fund brought the total to $3284.58, leaving a balance of $6715.42 which must be forthcoming if the goal of $10,000 is to be reached. Only six days remain until Christmas and it is hoped that during that time the fund which provides gifts, food and holiday cheer for thousands of little ones and their unfortunate elders will be completed.

Last Christmas the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Fund entertained 10,000 children in the Coliseum with an elaborate entertainment by children from the playgrounds of the city and distributed more than 40,000 toys to the little guests, and Christmas dinners in baskets were sent to 1427 poor families. This year it is planned to distribute approximately 1800 basket dinners, and plans are being made to entertain a larger number of children than ever before, for 45,000 toys and gifts have been made ready for distribution.

The Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival is not in any sense a charity. It is simply an expression of love for little children and gracious hospitality for their elders in which your contribution makes you one of the hosts. It is not so much the distribution of the essentials as it is to give to everyone who might not otherwise have their share of Christmas cheer and preserve in the children their faith in Santa Claus and the sentiment, "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men."

Giving to the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Fund is not a duty that is urged upon anyone, but is an opportunity offered to all to have a merry Christmas by helping to make Christmas merry for someone else. Christmas joy comes, not from receiving, but from giving, and it is written deep in the natures of men and women that they cannot be truly happy except through bringing happiness to others, for, after all, the true mission of life is service.

Dinners to Be Packed Tuesday.

The managers of the Christmas Festival undertake to act as a medium for all who desire to increase their Christmas joys by increasing the Christmas joys of others. The money which you donate is devoted toward bringing you the largest possible return of satisfaction and pleasure by carrying to your worthy, but less fortunate, brothers and sisters, in a systematic and thorough way, some of the material things which make for happiness and Christmas cheer. All administration expenses of the Christmas Festival work are cheerfully taken care of by the Post-Dispatch, and every cent of the money contributed is used for the purpose for which it is given—to extend Christmas cheer and good will to those who lack the means to provide these blessings for themselves.

The packing of basket dinners will begin Tuesday morning. A force of about 50 women under the direction of Mrs. A. H. Sippy, chairman of the Basket Packing Committee, and Louis Nolte, chairman of the Food Buying and Distribution Committee, will do the work on the first floor of the Advertising Building, northeast corner of Seventeenth and Locust streets. The use of the building was secured through the courtesy of George Warren Brown, chairman of the board, Brown Shoe Co.

Variety of Foodstuffs.

Each basket will contain about the same variety of foodstuffs as in former years, including rice, sugar, evaporated peaches, corn, baked beans, soup, bread, coffee, potatoes, apples, onions, candy and chickens. The number in the family that is to receive the basket is taken into consideration when the packing is done, and the amounts are made to fit the needs of each particular family.

Not one family in St. Louis deserving a special dinner on Christmas day, and unable to obtain it upon its own resources, shall be denied that happiness if the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association can devise a means for reaching and supplying it.

In listing the names of those who assisted in the establishment of Festival headquarters at 1101 Olive street, the name of Pierce D. Killian of the P. D. Killian Paint and Varnish Co., 1105 Olive street, was omitted. He permitted the gas company to cut through the foundation wall of his building to make connections for heating the headquarters building.

A box containing four articles for children was received from Herbert W. Cann, Hurst, Ill., with a check for $5 to be applied to the fund.

822 Children in Entertainment.

The Coliseum doors will be opened at 9 a. m. Christmas morning and closed at 10:20 a. m. The entertainment will begin promptly at 10:30 a. m. and will be finished in time for the children to reach their homes for their Christmas dinners.

The United Railways will furnish free transportation to the children to and from the Coliseum.

This year, as in former years, the Santa Claus Committee is headed by Otto Karbe.

The entertainment at the Coliseum will be presented by 822 children from the playgrounds of the city, 85 of this number being boys and the remaining 737 girls. The story of the play was written especially for the Festival entertainment by Rodowe H. Abeken, Superintendent of Recreation, and the children are under the direction of Miss Aurelia J. Sullivan. Music and dancing are to be supervised by Noel Poepping and Miss Agnes Cady, respectively, and Miss Margaret Breen has designed the costumes. The Tin Soldier March, arranged by Louis Kittlaus, and the Jumping Jack Drill, arranged by Henry Abeken, will be special features of the program.

Specially Written Story.

The story deals with the adventures of two little children, Minnie and Frances, whom Santa Claus met on Christmas eve in St. Louis. In abject misery, lacking the spirit and delight of the Yuletide season, these two waifs were discovered by Santa Claus, who packed them in his sleigh and took them north with him to show them the wonders and glories of the land where Christmas toys, which gladden the hearts of children, are made by the Brownie toymakers, under the watchful eyes of Master Toymaker, chief yeoman of Santa Claus.

After an all-night drive through the brilliance of the dazzling Northern Lights, Santa Claus and his little charges arrive in Toyland, on Christmas morning, during a snowstorm. Under the magical influence of Master Toymaker, Christmas toys of all kinds rise from the gigantic hearth and anvils of the dexterous Brownies and, in rapid succession, Dolly Dolls, French Dolls, Japanese Dolls and Brownies trip gaily forth in fancy step to the delight of the little waifs. Master Toymaker surprises with a queer march by a company of tin soldiers and Santa Claus, not to be outdone, calls forth Christmas happiness from an immense horn.

Lame Children Special Guests.

The hospitality of the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association will, as in former years, embrace the lame children of St. Louis. This branch of the event has for years been taken care of by Miss Elizabeth Edwards, who is a member of the Festival Association Executive Committee, and she will have charge of it again this season. A special section of box seats will be set aside for the little spectators at the Coliseum and a committee of men and women has been appointed whose sole task is to see that the little shut-ins receive their share of joy and sunshine. Anyone knowing a lame child is requested to communicate with Miss Edwards in care of the Post-Dispatch.

The purchase of gifts for the children guests of the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival in the Coliseum on Christmas day has been completed by Chairman Robert D. Corlett of the Gift Purchasing and Distribution Committee. They are of wider variety than last year and while some of them are designed to fill a utilitarian purpose, others were chosen because of the gladness they will bring to the hearts of the small recipients.

Horns and Candy for All.

There are 10,000 horns, one to be given to each guest; each girl will receive a doll, for there are more than 5000 on hand, and there are 10,000 rubber balls, and 10,000 toques or hockey caps and 3000 books awaiting distribution. Strongly built skooters which really "skoot" will be given to both boys and girls, and last, but not least, there is a generous bag of candy for each child.

It is the hope of the Executive Committee that the regulations governing the admission of mere sightseers at the Coliseum on Christmas day will be observed. It is a matter of regret that the Post-Dispatch Festival Association cannot entertain the public on this occasion, for it would be an immense factor in the molding of public sentiment for hearty and popular participation in the hospitality cause to have every man, woman and child in the city witness the joy and happiness of the little guests. But the capacity of the Coliseum is limited and those for whose enjoyment the affair is arranged fill it. To have any space that might be needed for children occupied by mere spectators would only defeat to a certain extent the central idea of the festival.

Details of policemen, firemen and park guards have been promised to assist in the seating arrangements and take care of the children, and the Medical Committee under the management of Dr. A. H. Sippy will care for any emergency cases which may arise.

Free Transportation.

In providing free transportation tickets, the United Railways Company has made them good for the trip to the Coliseum up to 10:30 a. m. and for the return trip, up to 1:30 p. m. This allows ample time for the children to get from their respective homes to the Coliseum before the doors close, and an hour and a half for them to return after the end of the entertainment.

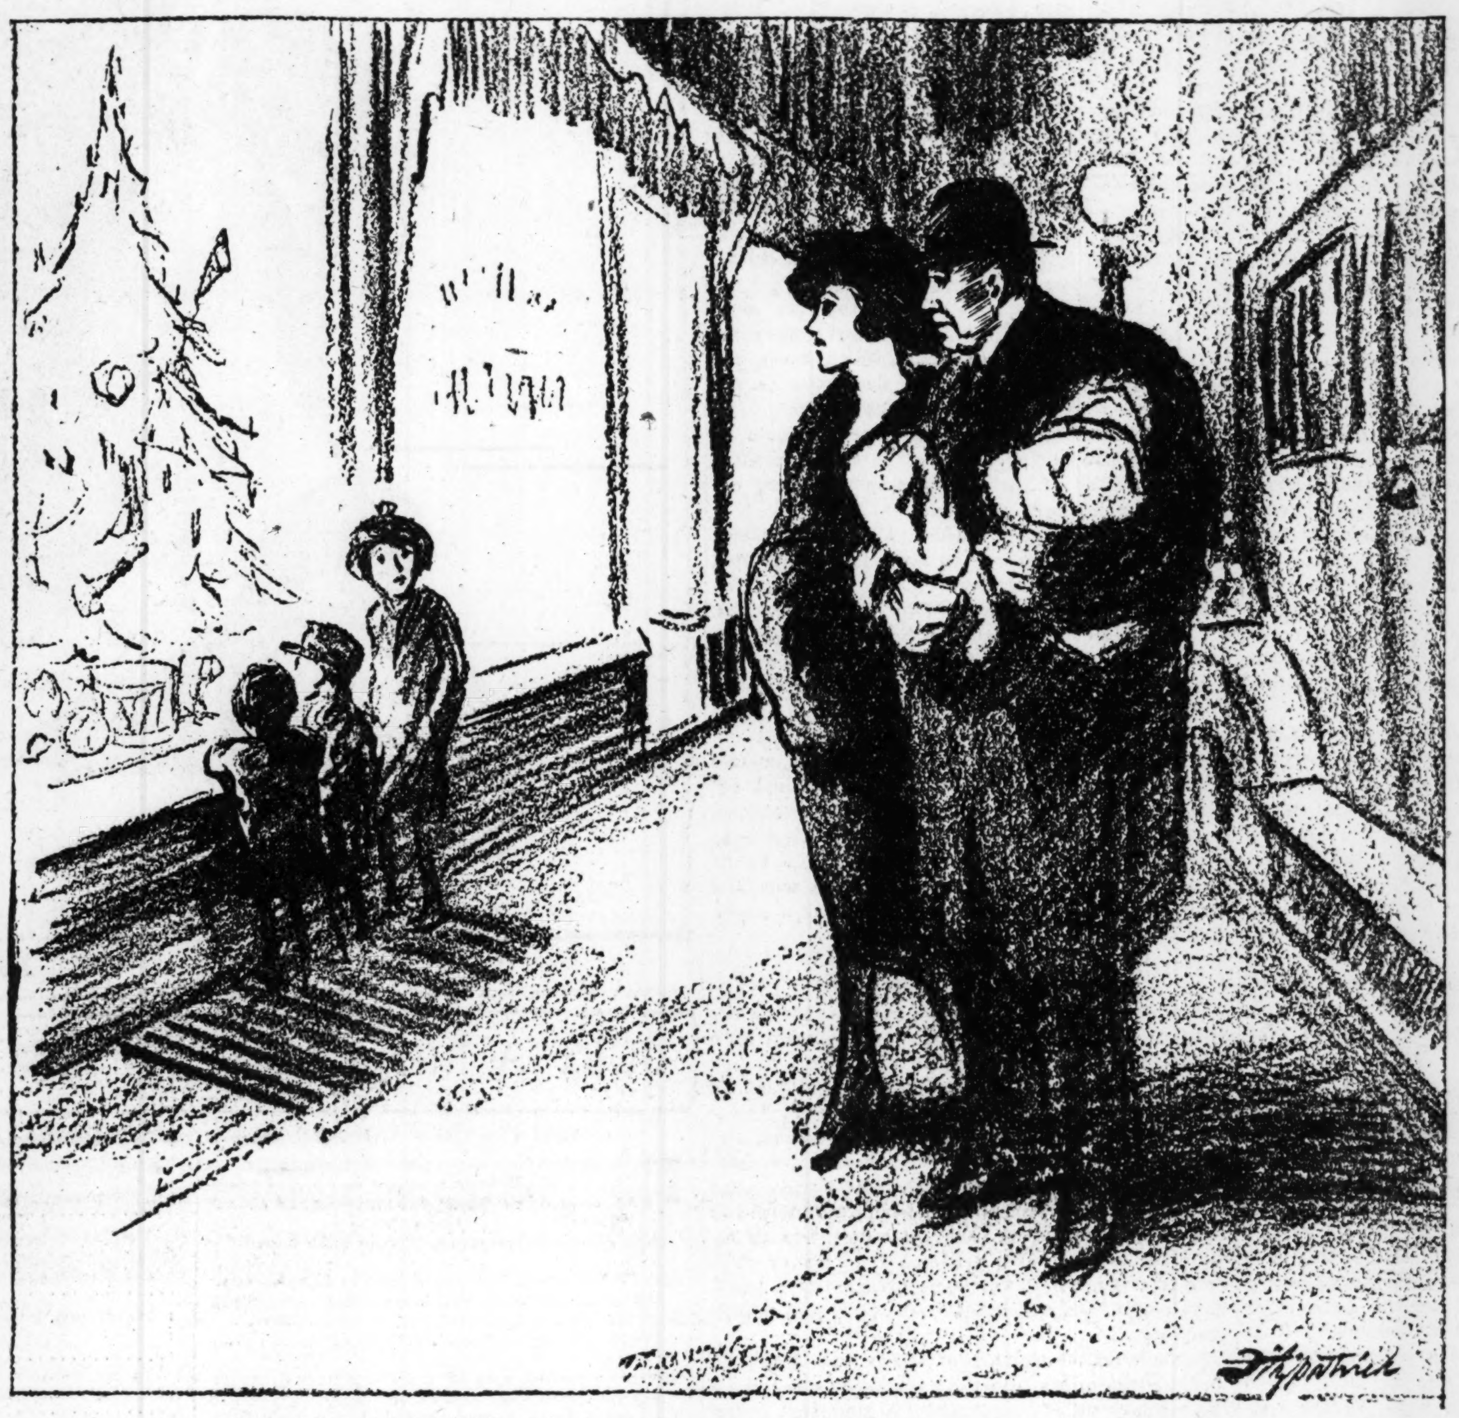
Even if Christmas day is stormy or unusually cold, the Hall and Door Committees of the Festival Association have made ample arrangements for the care of the children and none will be obliged to wait outside in the cold for admittance to the Coliseum.

Many of the subscription lists sent to industrial, commercial and professional establishments for their convenience in subscribing to the Festival Fund are being returned with generous subscriptions, but the Executive Committee wishes to urge those who have not made their donations to do so at once, that the substantial support of the Christmas program may not be lacking.

Subscriptions at Headquarters.

The record mark for subscriptions made through Festival Headquarters at 1101 Olive street was reached on Friday, when $29 was received. The artistic display of toys and gifts in the large window of headquarters arranged by Paul W. Kloeris, 3129 Portis avenue, is credited with drawing a large number of contributions from passersby who might otherwise miss the opportunity of joining the large army of persons who yearly act as hosts for their less fortunate brothers and sisters.

It is planned to leave the samples of toys on display until the day before Christmas, when they will be removed to the Coliseum for distribution with the main bulk of the gifts.



"UNTO ONE OF THESE LITTLE ONES"

822 Children in Specially Arranged Entertainment at the Coliseum

FOR a joyous hour or more on Christmas morning, 822 children from the various playgrounds of the city will entertain the 10,000 or more children who will be guests of the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association with an immense pageant entitled "In the Toyland of Santa Claus."

The story of the play was written especially for the Festival entertainment by Rodowe H. Abeken, Superintendent of Recreation, and deals with the adventures of two little children whom Santa Claus takes on a visit to his toyland to show them the way his Christmas toys are made.

Coliseum doors will be opened at 9 o'clock and closed at 10:20. The entertainment will begin at 10:30. Children will receive their candy and toys as they enter the Coliseum, so their minds can be free to enjoy the program.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Back to the Fig Leaf.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It will be a surprise to most of your readers to learn that a "back to the fig leaf costume" movement has been inaugurated, and it will be, perhaps, as great a surprise to its advocates as to anyone else, when they realize what their arguments are headed for.

It is not the long-haired bolsheviks nor wild-eyed communists who are the exponents of this extraordinary measure, but men who are high in the affairs of the country and Government. Men who, perhaps, have an ax to grind and who expect to begin grinding it about 1924.

Senator Capper seems to be the leader of this new-fangled "cult," judging from the editorials over his own signature which appear in his various periodicals. For instance, in the November number of "Capper's Farmer," he argues for a prohibitive tariff that will keep out foreign grown wool, or at least make it so high that the average man could not afford a woolen suit, for the sake of a few farmers who are trying to produce wool on high-priced land.

From 1870 there has been a duty on wool for the express purpose of fostering the sheep industry in this country, but it has signally failed, because the staple crops give a greater return per acre than sheep. It has been estimated that it takes one acre of exceptionally good land to keep a sheep a year, and as high as five acres of the poorer grades. The farmers of the high-priced land found this out a number of years ago, and as there was no law compelling them to raise sheep, they abandoned the practice and proceeded to raise $20 worth of grain on the ground necessary to support a sheep worth from $2 to $5. No amount of protective tariff will ever induce them to go back to wool producing, unless that duty were so high that it would put a woolen suit in the luxury class and be available to the very rich only.

The latest statistics show that the wool production in the United States for 1919 was 314,000,000 pounds, or about three pounds per capita, and that our requirements were 760,000,000 pounds, or about two and a half times our production. To meet this it was necessary to import 446,000,000 pounds, and at that we were not surfeited with an over-supply, for our clothing still contains over one-half cotton.

It may be argued that, in a pinch, we can wear cotton. Certainly. And maybe you have noticed that it has been somewhat of a pinch to do that recently. So, for the sake of argument, we will allow a prohibitive tariff to be placed on wool. Do we then go on our way rejoicing, clad in cotton produced in the Sunny South? Not to any great extent, if the Senator's complete program is adopted.

Turning to the editorial page entitled: "What the Editor Sees and Thinks," we find these pertinent paragraphs:

> Reduce the cotton acreage a third for 1921.
> Hold for the minimum price of 40 cents a pound, with a cent a pound additional for every month after Nov. 1, 1920.
> Retire 25 per cent of the best grades until May, June and July, 1921.
> Large planters will not plant any of their lands in cotton in 1921, and, when cotton sells for less than cost of production, will buy futures to the extent of the cotton they usually raise.
> The gathering of any of the very low grades of cotton should not be permitted.

The only way I can reconcile the two arguments is by an algebraic proposition: Minus wool, plus minus cotton equals plus fig leaves. You try it.

UNCLE DUDLEY.

The Price of Thread.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Daily I read about the profiteers, but one line has most emphatically been overlooked; namely, the thread manufacturers, and thread is almost as much a necessity as bread. Everybody has to wear clothes, and thread has to be used to put them together. I formerly paid 11 cents for a 500-yard spool of automatic thread; now I must pay 25 cents.

MRS. M. H.

Labor's Aspirations.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The Most Reverend Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, of San Francisco, delivered the invocation at a recent convention of the American Federation of Labor, which, in part, is as follows:

"Oh, Father Almighty and all wise, in whose power are the destinies of the world, and who by Thy wisdom dost guide the great movements for the betterment of men and by Thy might bring them to realization, look down graciously upon Thy children gathered here in Thy name, striving ever to make better the condition of the poor, striving ever to make noble the lives of those who toil and who labor. Oh, make us recognize labor's great place in the world's development; make us recognize our task in lifting the burdens that have weighed too heavily upon the toilers; make us realize the glory of our cause; make us persevering and make us kindly in that opposition which every great battle for human advancement must encounter."

The foregoing, I hope, may serve to give some of our Christian brethren some conception of labor's hopes and aspirations.

A TIME FOR AMNESTY.

The problem of healing the multifarious wounds left by the Great War is not merely one of re-establishing the cordial relations of states in their dealings with each other. The conflict cut deeper than that; its passions and bitterness agitated every belligerent nation, bringing more or less discord and strife within the nation itself, and especially so in this country of complex racial characteristics and sympathies.

In the work of recementing fraternal feeling nationally and allaying the rancor naturally incident to such great emergencies, is the time not come to consider the use of that most benign of all the powers of government, the pardon? There are precedents, not only throughout universal history, but in our own, of the wisdom of this measure toward the restoration of concord and confidence following abnormal social and political upheavals. On Christmas Day, 1868, it will be recalled, President Johnson issued the final proclamation of amnesty, granting full pardon, with restoration of all rights, to the thousands of citizens of the South guilty of the offense of treason or of adhering to the enemy. Other limited proclamations had been issued May 29, 1865, September 7, 1867, and July 4, 1868. The war had ended in fact in April, 1865.

The entrance of the United States into the Great War was followed by a formidable use of the so-called war-power, evidenced in numbers of new criminal statutes, which were enforced with all of the rigors a deeply stirred public sentiment demanded. Looking back upon this period from the present, in which calm judgment is possible, it must be confessed that justice was too harshly vindicated in large categories of cases. Take, for example, the Draft Act, with its inflexible regulations. As late as a year ago the War Department announced that the names of more than 300,000 men appeared on its rolls as deserters, though it was admitted that a very large percentage could not be classified as having willfully deserted. The facts are that the great majority of these men, through ignorance or excusable accident, failed to comply with an over-rigid set of draft regulations. Many of them include cases of newly trained soldiers unceremoniously quitting their camps for home after the armistice and failing to return. For them the big fact was that the war was over. There are still many cases of young citizens under the charge of desertion who failed to respond to a draft board notice because of previous voluntary enlistment.

In all such cases, where the desertion was not willful and intentional, amnesty may properly be proclaimed, and it should include those venial offenses following the armistice. With respect to offenses punishable as common crimes under the civil law, such as murder, committed while in the military service, there can be no appeal to public sympathy; nor in the cases of hoarders and profiteers. Convictions under the Espionage Act, however, commend themselves with peculiar force for clemency. In nearly all of such cases the sufferers were moved by personal conviction, however erroneous, and were possessed of the courage of candor, however misdirected.

This is the Christmas season, an especially fitting time to recall and imitate the Civil War precedent, in clearing the names of thousands of our citizens caught, through no inherent vice of their own, in the rigid demands of a great emergency.

BILL FOR WAR GRAFTERS.

One of the early bills of this session lengthens from three to seven years the period after which the statute of limitations will prevent prosecution for fraud against the General Government. It is especially desired now as a means of facilitating the punishment of possible grafters who may have preyed on the Government during the war. In the congestion of business it is likely that the real quality of myriads of war transactions may not come to light for a long time. Two years have already elapsed since the armistice and in less than 12 months more frauds committed prior to Nov. 11, 1918, will be outlawed, if the bill is not passed. If it is passed, four years more will be afforded for examination.

Should frauds against the Government be outlawed at any time in less than seven years? Such offenses should be on a different plane from other offenses. Considering the slow rate at which Government business moves, three years seems to be a short period in which to gain immunity for easily hidden guilt.

HIGH MARK IN FOREIGN TRADE.

Secretary of Commerce Alexander's report places the value of the foreign commerce of the United States at $13,349,661,401 during the year ending June 30 last. The increase in this total, the largest in American history, is explained in part by the higher prices prevailing as compared with earlier years in the decade. But high prices do not explain its increase over some recent years when the price level was as high or even higher than during the past year and the total volume of foreign trade for the 12 months ending June 30, 1920, exceeded by more than $3,000,000,000 the volume during the year ending June 30, 1919.

In last year's volume the imports amounted to $5,238,621,668 and the exports of domestic goods to $7,950,429,180, an increase of nearly $900,000,000. The visible balance of trade was less by more than a billion dollars than during the year ending in 1919, but this is due solely to a large increase in imports, which is a matter of congratulation as not aggravating exchange difficulties.

Some months since last June have shown declines as compared with the former year but some other months have shown actual increases. The total for all months since June shows a falling off, but it is not great.

Some specific commodities, like cotton, have been disastrously affected by European conditions, the lack of demand there resulting in much depression, but in general the report as a whole argues against any theory that business inactivity here is due to the European situation. We are selling abroad amounts of our goods that valued even at former prices would have seemed unbelievable in any year prior to the war and would have resulted then in amazing prosperity.

The fact of the matter is that we have reached a period of readjustment resulting very largely from our own domestic situation. The phenomena are only the usual phenomena of steadily falling markets with consequent uncertainty and delayed purchases. The story of credit is a little different story. With home needs that might strain credit, we have been steadily transferring abroad through a multitude of channels credit in enormous amounts and are still continuing its transfer.

MORAL LEGISLATION.

We do not doubt the good intention of the Committee of Fifty which is preparing to submit a legislative program on moral conditions, but its program should be carefully considered before it is enacted into law. It should be directed wholly against indecency and public immorality and avoid personal mentorship or the censorship of art and literature from the standpoint of fanaticism.

One item in the program calls for the prohibition of the exhibition or sale of indecent pictures and another concerns the prohibition and destruction of "certain literature."

What is indecent or immoral in pictures or literature is a wide question, susceptible of judgments varying from each other as broadly as the North from the South Pole. Under a general law, a censor, judging from the standpoint of mere prudishness, would forbid the greatest works of art and literature—those that touch any of the realities of life with intelligent candor, regardless of their essential morality. Those to whom the representation of the human form or the depiction of life and character are shocking, no matter how noble the intent or excellent the craftsmanship, would destroy all freedom in art and literature.

Certainly the intent and the workmanship must be considered with broad, intelligent judgment, and for this reason censorships which touch art and literature are dangerous—as dangerous as the prohibition of free speech in public affairs.

These considerations apply also to attempts to censor the movies. It ought to be strictly limited to the checking of the obviously indecent and the indecent or immoral purpose.

Intelligent judgment should also be exercised with regard to restrictions on marriage, which often work in a direction opposite to that intended. Marriage ought to be safeguarded by wise regulations, but to make it difficult by restrictions or cost would bring greater evils than freedom. The fundamental things of life cannot be wholly controlled by the legislative pen or the dictum of intolerant censorship.

Restriction of marriage, divorce and morals must take cognizance of the fundamental and potent forces with which they deal. Wise regulation for the benefit of the community is preferable to prohibition which is more or less futile. Public decency in its true sense should be the sole aim of censorship, which, if ever necessary, is a necessary evil.

THAT PIRATE, "OVERHEAD."

Various statements made from time to time on the earnings of the Emergency Fleet Corporation have furnished occasion for public satisfaction.

For instance, when its accounts showed that its receipts exceeded fleet operating expenses by something like a hundred millions of dollars without figuring in large sums still due for ocean transportation furnished the army and navy, the triumphant joy of us all sought for unusual words and phrases in which to express itself. Why, not only was an inestimable service being rendered the country in a time of crisis, but it was being rendered at a handsome profit from which the taxpayers would benefit amazingly.

But a piratical monster of which we took no thought was eating into the corporation's finances—the monster called "overhead." A statement covering the entire period from the date of its creation to June 30 last shows why Uncle Sam is not now receiving big dividends from the fleet, to be used in reducing income taxes. Some parts of this statement read like a report from an institution that had no adequate system of accounting in its early days and that had, perhaps, failed to adopt the clearest system of the sort at present. But it makes it painfully evident that a bookkeeping profit now figured at $440,549,001 is offset by so many items as to cause a net loss of $513,336,139.

Insurance costs alone to the amount of $140,393,528 were abstracted when the overhead pirate boarded the craft of the big fleet. "Depreciation" took off the neat little sum of $209,465,323 and there are other neat little items in red. A total of $105,670,933 is still due from the army and navy, but it would not go far toward making up the big loss of more than half a billion and besides would only be taking money from one of Uncle Sam's pockets to put it in another. The fleet could not ask him to buy tickets in advance for his soldier passengers or refuse to carry his freight except on a C. O. D. basis. The report probably explains the corporation's anxiety to sell its vessels while prices were high, a policy many thought a mistake.

The magnitude of the fleet's operation is shown by the fact that its account balances at $3,537,380,726. It still has great assets. Its loss is simply to be written off as another huge item in war costs.

EUROPE WILL NOT DISARM IN FACE OF THIS.

CHRISTMAS THEN AND NOW.

IF I COULD sing some song in mystic rhyme:
If I could take some magic wand, and then
For once turn back the moving hand of Time,
And call to yesteryears, "Come back again!"

Ah! What could buy those joys in days a'gone,
When all my heart had known was to be glad!
I sit beside the hearth-fire now and mourn,
While memories come again to make me sad.

The trundle-bed, and all my Christmas dreams:
My mother's kiss, and all her fond caress—
The years have passed, but still her dear face seems
To shine anew with looks of tenderness.

And father's love made glad my Christmas joys:
He'd tell of Santa Claus, and then his smile
As I would wildly play with all my toys—
Ah! Could those days come back for just a while!

The hand of Time still moves forever on,
And others come to share their Christmas joys:
Life comes anew, and, tho' the past is gone,
Some other children play with Christmas toys.

It were not best to shed the bitter tear,
Nor spend the passing days in vain regret,
For Time's good hand hath brought another year,
And Christmas joys are ever with us yet.

If I were asked to tell the happiness—
A Christmas joy that never, never, ends,
I answer—"Those dear lives that ever bless—
Those hearts that speak their love to me—my Friends!"

One of our readers sends us a clipping from an Illinois paper in which it is related that Capt. J. E. English of Kankakee, son-in-law of the Governor-elect, is to be made institution auditor and Leslie Small, son of the Governor-elect, superintendent of reports—whatever those are. Evidently our reader expects us to have something to say about it. If we did, neither appointment would ever be made; since the gain to the appointees could only be slight and the loss to democratic government only be great. That is, to give nothing or its equivalent to a couple of people having no better claim upon him than that of relationship, the Governor-elect would deprive us all of something worth having. We are sorry we cannot have him in long enough for our two-story thinkers to go over it with him. He may not contemplate any such appointments, but we will wager the news is pretty correct. Governors of the sort we elect are not up to well-thought-out appointments, and we don't see many made. The potential benefits of the appointive power reposed in the average Governor are incalculable; the harm they actually do is even more incalculable. What can be done about it? Nothing—except to talk about it sort of mad-like, as we have done in this paragraph; and as our reader, feeling otherwise futile in the emergency, doubtless thought we would do when the clipping was sent.

Sir: It is one thing to read and think about how one would face life's suffering and quite another to really face the stirring trials of hard, cold experience. For, though life presents a logical fifty-fifty proposition in the way of sorrow and joy, it yet seems to give some about 80 per cent sorrow for a long, long, long while.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

MAGAZINE LITERATURE.

HARRY T. BAKER in North American Review.

A DULL periodical is already doomed to bankruptcy. In order to be of any wide service, knowledge must be humanized, must be so presented as to be intelligible and interesting to a moderately large number of readers. Bliss Perry remarked in an article, "A Readable Proposition," published in the Atlantic Monthly while he was editing that periodical: "When a magazine fails to be readable, it is as if a man failed in honesty or a woman in goodness. Its character is gone." But, he adds, a magazine will be readable "if it continues in its own way to reflect and interpret, as all literature somehow succeeds in reflecting and interpreting, the fascination of life itself." Perhaps the most useful test of the literatry quality of any periodical—of the permanence of its contributions—is to ascertain what proportion of its contents is reprinted in book form, and how many such books are read 10 or 20 years after publication. This is not a wholly fair test; for even valuable articles are seldom reprinted unless they form a series which, within the covers of a book, reveals some unity. Yet, measured by such a test, even periodicals of large circulation come out tolerably well. And for Harper's, Scribner's, the Atlantic, the Century, the North American Review, the Unpartisan Review, the Yale Review, and such British magazines as the Fortnightly, the Nineteenth Century and After, Blackwood's, or the Edinburgh, an excellent case could be made out.

RELIEF FOR CHINA.

From the New York Times.

IN his appeal for relief for the famine sufferers in China President Wilson recognizes clearly the claims of the movement under Herbert Hoover in behalf of the children of Central Europe. The chairman of the Relief Committee, Mr. Thomas W. Lamont, emphasizes the fact that no rival "drive" is intended. As it happens, many of those whom the President has called to the Chinese Relief Committee are already serving under Mr. Hoover. The crisis is of such magnitude, however, that it is not possible to neglect any available means of bringing it to the knowledge of the American public. Over 30,000,000 people are in dire necessity and a full half of them are actually starving. Our consular and diplomatic agents report that unless relief is forthcoming the deaths will run into millions. The industry and the honesty of the Chinese are proverbial, and their friendship for us is a matter of history. They are working out for themselves a stable and progressive government founded as far as may be on free institutions. Already our friends, they are capable of being bound to us by the strongest commercial ties. Every motive of reason and humanity summons us to their assistance. The very fact that no "drive" is intended should make every American their ambassador to his own heart.

POLITICAL INCENDIARISM.

From the Montreal Star.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW predicts war between Great Britain and United States, with France as Britain's ally and Germany fighting on the American side. Naturally the Hearst press features the mischief-maker and fans his little flame with provocative comment. The average Britisher or American is content to dismiss such attempted incendiarism with a shrug of indifference, as mere drivelling idiocy. His favorite comment is "unthinkable." But a great many people in each country regard the other as a trade rival. The present American Government is virtually committed to "the greatest Navy in the world." A large and active element in the United States is deliberately and persistently endeavoring to foster a spirit of hatred against all things British.

Great wars have grown from smaller seed than that, and in spite of the unity of these two nations in language and political ideals, and of the obvious menace to world civilization that a conflict between them would mean, the danger of a drifting policy is clear enough to warrant the utmost of effort by the right-thinking men of both countries to stem the tide.

Events in the Social World

Holiday Social Festivities Will Begin Tomorrow Evening—Many St. Louisans Planning Winter Trips, Some to California and Florida, Others to Cuba and the West Indies, While Still Others Will Make the Mediterranean Voyage.

WHILE not entirely devoid of social diversions, the past week has been as a lull before the storm of holiday festivities which will begin tomorrow evening with the ball at which Benjamin Gratz will be host at his home in honor of his daughter, Miss Helen Gratz, and continue over New Year's day.

Christmas preparations are, however, incidental to the many St. Louisans who are planning winter trips. Although several persons have already departed, the real migration will commence early next January. As usual California and Florida will attract a great many and Cuba and the West Indies will be the objectives of a number of others.

Several parties have been planned to take the Mediterranean trip, while others will make extended visits to the Riviera. Mrs. James Ross Clemens and her daughter, Miss Muriel Clemens, will sail Jan. 25 from New York to spend the remainder of the winter on the Riviera.

Among those who will take the Mediterranean trip will be Mr. and Mrs. William K. Bixby, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Bascom, Mrs. Ralph Morriss and her sister, Miss Dorothy McBride, Miss Gloria Gefsinger, Miss Emily Milliken and Misses Martha and Cora Pittman. Mrs. H. H. Culver and her daughter, Miss Ruth Culver, will depart next month for the West Indies. Miss Dorothy Pillot will accompany her father there next month, also.

Some of the St. Louis visitors to Florida will be Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barrett, Mrs. Elizabeth Dwyer and her daughters, Misses Marietta and Florence Dwyer and Miss Marie Clarkson. Mr. and Mrs. George Steedman, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Fuller, and Mrs. Robert Burkham are some of the many who will go to California, and Mrs. P. Chouteau Scott and Mrs. Maza Scott Wood will depart soon after Christmas for Cuba.

The marriage of Miss Eugenia Blow Miltenberger and William Lee Ustick was solemnized at 8 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Miltenberger in Ferguson. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Henderson of the Ferguson Presbyterian Church in the presence of the members of the families and close friends. Miss Elizabeth Robert, Miss Alice Carr of San Raphael, Cal., and Miss Dorothy North of Chicago attended the bride, and Mr. Ustick had Dr. Park J. White Jr. as his only attendant. Mr. and Mrs. Ustick will be at home after Feb. 1 at 5566 Cates avenue. The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and Bryn Mawr College. Mr. Ustick was educated at Harvard. He is the son of Edward T. Ustick of 4207 Westminster place.

The Racquet Club will give a supper dance Thursday evening from 11 to 1 o'clock in honor of the members of the Princeton Triangle Club who will come here on that day to give one performance of their new musical comedy, "They Never Come Back" at the Odeon. Guests will be the Triangle Club members and Princeton alumni and girls of the debutante and college sets. The Triangle Club men will go to the Racquet Club from the Odeon and will march from there to the Wabash Railroad siding at Union and Lindell, where their special train will be parked all day.

The schedule of events for the visit here is as follows: Arrival at 8:30; reception and breakfast at the University Club; luncheons for small groups given by Mrs. Willard Bartlett, Miss Ada Johnson, Louis Werner and others; luncheon for 30 of the students given by the Princeton alumni at the University Club; tea dance given by Louis Werner; performance at the Odeon; supper dance at the Racquet Club.

The Princeton alumni have invited a number of matrons to act as patronesses at the performance Thursday evening.

About 400 invitations have been sent out by Mrs. Thomas G. Ratcliffe of 50 Kingsbury place for a piano recital to be given by her daughter, Miss Katherine Leith, at the Woman's Club tomorrow evening. This will be the first time Miss Leith has played in St. Louis. She has spent the past five years in New York in study.

A wedding of interest to St. Louisans will be that of Miss Portia Rickman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rickman of Chester, Ill., and St. Louis, to George Marshall Jones Jr. of Pittsburg, Pa., which will take place tomorrow morning at Chester. The couple will depart at once for New York, where they will spend several weeks, later going to Florida for the remainder of the winter. Miss Rickman was educated at Mary Institute and has been a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball on two occasions.

Announcement was made last week of the betrothal of Miss Lucy Ludington to Donaldson Lambert. The news was told at a luncheon with which Miss Ludington entertained Wednesday at her home, 26 Washington terrace, for 14 of her intimate friends. The wedding date has not been set. Mr. Lambert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert of 3 Hortense place. He was educated at Smith Academy and the Palling School in New York. During the war he was in the air service. He is a member of the Imperial, St. Louis Country and Racquet Clubs. Miss Ludington is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliot K. Ludington. She is a member of the Junior League and was educated at Mary Institute and Mrs. Merrill's School in New York. She made her debut last year and was a special maid to the Queen of the Veiled Prophet's ball. She was a maid of honor at the ball this year also.

Invitations have been sent out for a tea dance Dec. 29 from 4 to 6 o'clock in honor of Miss Jane Cummings, Dr. James Hay Cummings and John Kilby Cummings at their home, 4545 Lindell boulevard.

St. Peter's Church will be the scene tomorrow evening of the wedding of Miss May Bouchelle Cornwall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Reid Cornwall, and William Langton Jr. of Montreal. The ceremony will take place at 8:30 o'clock, the Rev. Dr. Phillips officiating. A small reception at the home of the bride's parents, 5052 Waterman avenue, will follow.

Mrs. Alvan B. Goodbar of 3953 Westminster place will entertain Tuesday evening at dinner in honor of Miss Katherine Gordon and her fiance, James D. Dawson Jr. of Houston, Tex., who will spend the holiday season in St. Louis.

Miss Margaret Steinwender, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Steinwender of 4400 Lindell boulevard, and John I. Cary of Okmulgee, Ok., will be married Tuesday evening by the Rev. Dr. Kemerer at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony will take place at 7:30 o'clock and the guests will include relatives and intimate friends. Miss Martha Steinwender and Miss Amy Rule will be bridesmaids and Sheller Steinwender will serve Mr. Cary as best man. William Shock will be groomsman. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cary of Okmulgee, parents of the bridegroom are expected to arrive tomorrow for the wedding. The couple will spend their honeymoon in Chicago and the east and will return to St. Louis for a few days early in January. They will reside in Okmulgee.

Christmas day will be crowded with events for the younger set in honor of the 45 members of the Yale Glee Club. The men will arrive in St. Louis, Christmas eve, and will remain over Christmas day.

Mrs. Byron Nugent has invited them to be special guests at the dance with which she will entertain, Christmas eve, at the Country Club, in honor of her granddaughter, Miss Marie Nugent.

Christmas morning from 11 to 12 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. George Marion Brown of 13 Portland place will give a reception in honor of the Easterners and Christmas afternoon Mr. and Mrs. George H. Capen, 501 Clara avenue, and their daughter, Miss Esther Capen, will give the visitors a tea dance at the Country Club. Four hundred guests have been invited to the affair. Misses Eleanor and Dorothy Simmons will assist at the tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Faust will entertain with a ball in honor of the visitors, following the concert at the Odeon, Christmas night. Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Faust will be Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Franciscus, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Terry, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Simmons and Mr. and Mrs. L Ray Carter; Misses Audrey Faust, Elizabeth Carter, Elizabeth Terry and Eleanor and Dorothy Simmons.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Bass, 4651 Lindell boulevard, will entertain with a dance on Dec. 29 for Miss Ruth Bass and George Bass, Jr.

An engagement of interest in St. Louis which was announced last week is that of Miss Margaret Senseney, daughter of Mrs. Edgar Moore Senseney, formerly of St. Louis, now residing in Colorado Springs, to Howard Allen of Colorado Springs. The date of the wedding has not been set. Miss Senseney was educated at Mary Institute and was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball the year of her debut. She is a sister of Dr. Eugene Senseney of 4401 McPherson avenue.

Mrs. George L. Edwards of 7230 Maryland avenue was hostess at a bridge party Tuesday afternoon at her home in compliment of Mrs. Charles H. Newton of 5345 Pershing avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hubbell of 5943 Clemens avenue will have as their guest at Christmas their son, Ensign H. H. Hubbell of the U. S. S. Rochester, who is expected to arrive the first of the week.

FURS

May Be Purchased Here With Confidence

The purchasing of Furs for gifts means the making of an investment with the added import of selecting an article worthy of the occasion. Is it not advisable, then, that such a purchase be made under the advisement of expert furriers?

Our reputation as dealers in fine Furs is our most cherished asset. From the selection of the pelts to the final completion of the article, they must measure up to the strictest of requirements. To purchase a Fur piece upon the recommendation of one of our salespeople is to be unerringly assured of its quality.

Our stock is very comprehensive—our prices one of the greatest inducements towards purchasing.

BOY TAKEN FROM FARMER WHO KEPT HIM FROM SCHOOL

Teacher Testifies Orphan, 12, Was Forced to Go Home at Recess to Do Chores and Was Overworked.

George Shipp, an orphan, 12 years old, was taken from Theodore Kummer, a truck farmer at Black Jack, Mo., after a hearing yesterday in the Juvenile Court at Clayton, at which it was testified that the boy had been kept out of school and neglected.

The boy was obtained a year and a half ago from the Children's Home Society of Missouri, 4427 Margaretta avenue. Mrs. Hilda Ahrens, teacher of the Black Jack school, testified that he was kept out of school to work on the farm, that he was so overworked that he fell asleep at school, that he came to school dirty and ragged, while Kummer's son, Teddy, had good clothes and attended school regularly, and that he had to go home at recesses to do chores, getting back late to school. The boy, she said, had been to school so little that he could only read and write a few simple words.

When she went to the Kummer home to inquire why the boy had to return home at recess times, she testified Mrs. Tillie Kummer abused her. Mrs. Mildred Wilkinson, the truant officer, was informed. She notified the Kummers to send the boy regularly to school, but it was not done. The juvenile officers then took charge of the boy.

William Mueller and Miss Minnie Mueller, father and sister of Mrs. Kummer, testified against the Kummers. Miss Mueller testified that Mrs. Kummer's relatives disapproved so strongly of the treatment the boy received that a family estrangement resulted.

She said that the boy was poorly clothed and was compelled to sleep in an untidy bed in an unventilated room, the window of which had been nailed shut. Mueller testified that the boy was neglected and worked hard and often complained of being hungry.

The Kummers made a general denial and said the boy had been kept out of school on account of diphtheria in the family. The school records were produced to show that while the boy was kept out, Kummer's son was being sent regularly to school.

Judge McElhinney said the Kummers had been guilty of negligence in not sending the boy to school and added that an orphan should have his chance for an education under proper rearing. He took the boy away from them and gave him to Mrs. Herman Hohnhorst of Warrenton, Mo.

This is the second boy that the Kummers have had. The other was Clarence Schwegler, 14 years old, who ran away and is now living at the home of William Dickman at Black Jack.

In court the Shipp boy wore a neat suit of blue serge. Kummer said he had bought it for a Christmas present, but turned it over to the boy after the juvenile officers took him.

TWO FIRES IN SAME PLANT

Two fires within a few hours of each other damaged the stock and building occupied by the Ginsberg & Lindeman Mercantile Co., 817 North Ninth street, early yesterday. Members of the firm estimated the damage at about $5500.

The first fire was discovered at 12:10 a. m. on the first floor. The damage was estimated at $1500 to stock and $1000 to building. At 3:20 a. m. a private watchman discovered the blaze had rekindled and sounded another alarm. The second fire damage was estimated at $2000 to the stock.

6TH AND FRANKLIN — Where the Crowds Go

CANDIES

Manufacturing of Candies that are on the market today were made early in the season, and made at the high cost of sugar. We have delayed purchasing our supply of Candies until the last minute, for the reason that we knew the decline in sugar would make it less than half the prices it was several weeks ago, so that we would be able to give our patrons the benefit of fresh made Candies at lesser prices than any other store in the City of St. Louis. As usual we give the customers the benefit of our buying.

Do not buy a nickel's worth of Candy until you price Remley's. The same thing applies to nuts and everything else in this wonderful establishment. It is our aim to give St. Louis a Merry Christmas at a lower cost than they have had in the past four or five years.

J. W. BARRETT NAMES HIS SIX ASSISTANTS

Attorney General-elect Also Selects Chief Clerk—Four of Assistants to Get $2500.

Jesse W. Barrett, Attorney-General-elect, yesterday announced the names of men who he has selected for his six assistants, four at $2500 a year, one at $2400 and one at $2000. He also has selected his chief clerk, but will not announce his name until later. The office of chief clerk pays $2000 a year.

The selections announced are as follows:

Assistants at $2500—Merrill E. Otis of St. Joseph, to have charge of civil matters generally; Albert Miller of Hillsboro, to have charge of criminal cases; Marshall Campbell of Sedalia, to direct prohibition enforcement; Robert J. Smith of Kennett. At $2400, Stratton Shartell of Neosho, to have charge of inheritance tax. At $2000, J. Henry Caruthers of Cape Girardeau, in charge of corporation tax.

Shartell will begin work when Barrett and his staff take over the office, Jan. 10, as chief clerk, as Barrett has arranged for two of McAllister's assistants, H. P. Ragland and George V. Berry, in charge of inheritance tax, to remain in the office for a time to aid the new men in taking over the office with as little loss of efficiency as possible. Shartell will take up the inheritance tax work later.

Otis is probably the more important of the assistants, having been an assistant to the City Counselor of St. Joseph and to the Prosecuting Attorney of Buchanan County, and having been defeated for Congress in the Fourth District as the Republican nominee in 1914. He is a graduate of the University of Missouri academic and law departments, and is an applicant for appointment as United States District Attorney in the Western District of Missouri. That appointment will not be made until August, however, and Barrett has agreed to release him in the event that he is chosen for the Federal post.

Miller is 40 years old, was Prosecuting Attorney of Jefferson County and was a delegate to the Republican National Convention.

Campbell, now City Attorney at Sedalia, is a son of the Rev, Stephen B. Campbell of St. Louis, District Superintendent for the Methodist Episcopal Church, studied at Drury, Springfield and Warrensburg Teachers' College and Missouri Wesleyan and served in the United States embassy in London during the war. Dry forces are said to regard his selection with satisfaction.

Shartell is a son of C. M. Shartell, a former Congressman from the Fifteenth District, is a graduate of the University of Michigan and served as a Lieutenant of field artillery during the war.

Smith is the only Republican ever to have been elected to office in Dunklin County, having served one term as Prosecuting Attorney.

TWO FIRMS MAKING VACUUM CLEANERS ARE CONSOLIDATED

The Remmert Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis, which has a capitalization of $300,000, has been consolidated with the Hugro Manufacturing Co. of Warsaw, Ind., manufacturers of vacuum cleaners, with a capital stock of $1,500,000, to consolidate the interests of the two concerns in the marketing of vacuum cleaners, washing machines and other electrical household appliances.

W. L. Groth, president of the Hugro company, will be president of the consolidated companies, and William Remmert, president of the Remmert concern, will be vice president and a director. The factory in St. Louis will remain here, but will do business on a larger scale.

Miss Helen Humphrey Buried.

The funeral of Miss Helen Humphrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Humphrey of 5596 Bartmer avenue, was held Friday afternoon from Maple Avenue Methodist Church, followed by burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery. Her death Wednesday followed a six months' illness. She was a graduate of Washington University in the class of 1916, and before her illness she was assistant manager of the southwestern district office of the Young Women's Christian Association, in the Syndicate Trust building.

WOMEN URGE CARE IN NAMING MAN FOR WITHERS' PLACE

Letter Sent to Board of Education by Voters' League Suggests Help in Selection.

FOR COMMITTEE OF CITIZENS TO AID

Term of Superintendent of Instruction, Who Is Not Candidate for Re-elction, Ends in February.

A letter urging the Board of Education to exercise exceptional care in choosing a successor to Dr. John W. Withers, who is not a candidate for re-election as Superintendent of Instruction, and requesting that the "assistance and co-operation" of a citizens' committee be invited before making a choice, was sent to the board members and to numerous organizations yesterday by the three presidents of the St. Louis League of Women Voters. The letter was signed by Mrs. Harry E. Sprague, Republican president; Mrs. C. B. Faris, Democratic president, and Mrs. E. T. Senseney, Independent president.

Organizations to which the letter was sent were requested to indorse the movement and write to members of the board about it.

Jesse McDonald, a member of the board, who had not received his letter at the time the matter was discussed with him, said the members of the board would be glad to receive helpful suggestions from any person and that each member independently will canvass the situation thoroughly before a selection is made.

Dr. Withers' term will expire in February and his successor probably will be selected sometime that month, McDonald said.. The entire board, and not a committee, usually acts upon the election of a superintendent.

Woman Among Two Suggested.

Only two persons are said to have been suggested to the board so far as possible successors to Withers, Dr. Henry J. Gerling and Miss Lillie R. Ernst, both assistants to Withers.

The letter sent out by the League of Women Voters' presidents was as follows:

"We are sure you consider the office conferred upon you by the citizens of St. Louis as a great public trust, and you undoubtedly believe, as do we, that directing the welfare of the 100,000 school children of our city is the most sacred responsibility which we can bestow upon a public servant.

Wither's Departure.

"It is difficult to nurture child-life in a home where parents are in discord, or lacking in the spirit of co-operation. It is difficult to maintain a business corporation in which the directing powers are at variance. The significance of 'a house divided against itself' has long been established. To intelligently promote the education and develop the power of the youth of our city, is the home problem multiplied many times and vaster and more far-reaching than the task confronting any of our great business corporations!

"We are just now closing an exceedingly unfortunate chapter in the history of our schools and the Board of Education of St. Louis. For reasons which e'er long may be made clear to all, an educator of the highest national repute, acting as directing head of our school system, is passing out, having failed for almost four years, to secure the harmonious co-operation of the members of your honorable board. To the citizens of St. Louis the selection of Dr. Wither's successor becomes a task of the greatest moment, and one in which they wish to helpfully participate. A man pre-eminently qualified, an outstanding figure in the field of American educators, must be found to measure up to the difficulties of this position and to the dignity of St. Louis as a city leading in modern school methods.

Care Urged in Selection.

"We earnestly beseech the members of the Board of Education of our city to hold constantly in mind at this time the high standing which all school men concede to St. Louis and to take abundant time and precaution to select one of the foremost national educators who can maintain our present enviable position. Other important municipalities have seen their schools pass into the hands of political spoilers and will watch with deepest interest if such a calamity should confront St. Louis.

"Surely child-life in our city is not to be gambled with or sinned against! Surely motherhood in our city is not to be outraged! Any offense committed against our children's best welfare at this time would meet with a storm of protest at the April election such as has never been recorded here! Surely you, who primarily hold this sacred public trust, will make no hasty or unwise selection of a Superintendent for our schools. A weak or mediocre individual would certainly soon find himself in an even more difficult position than that which Dr. Withers has considered intolerable!

"In conclusion we respectfully request that your honorable board invite the assistance and co-operation of a citizens' committee composed of men and women of recognized leadership and noted for their high sense of duty and devotion to community welfare, that the wisest possible selection for this important office be made for the city which you are appointed to serve."

The NUT from PECAN UNIVERSITY

by HUGH S. FULLERTON..

© 1920.

Slough was as sore as a bruised shin bone, and you couldn't blame him. We jumped onto Hanson in the first inning and hammered out five runs and the game was on ice. Horton passed two guys, hit another, made a wild pitch and Slough hollered for Hank to stop it. Hank went in cold, hit the first guy, walked the next and laid a groover up for old Sammy, who belted it up against the left field fence—blowie! And away went Mister Ball Game.

I was kinda sticking back of the pillars in the hotel lobby after dinner trying not to be too conspicuous, but Slough caught a glimpse of me and give me the high sign to come over.

"Mike," he says, "go buy five one-way tickets to Madagascar, give one to each of them damn pitchers and see that they catch the first boat. Then you get on a train and don't come back until you bring a pitcher with control. Get me? Control! Con-trol!

That's the way with Slough; whenever the pitchers get wild, which is pretty often, he yells for old Mike to go out and dig up two Mathewsons and two Walter Johnsons, and deliver them to him by 3 o'clock the next day.

"All right, Slough," I said. "Got any idea where I'll find one?"

"There's a pretty fair pitcher down at Philly named Alexander," says Slough.

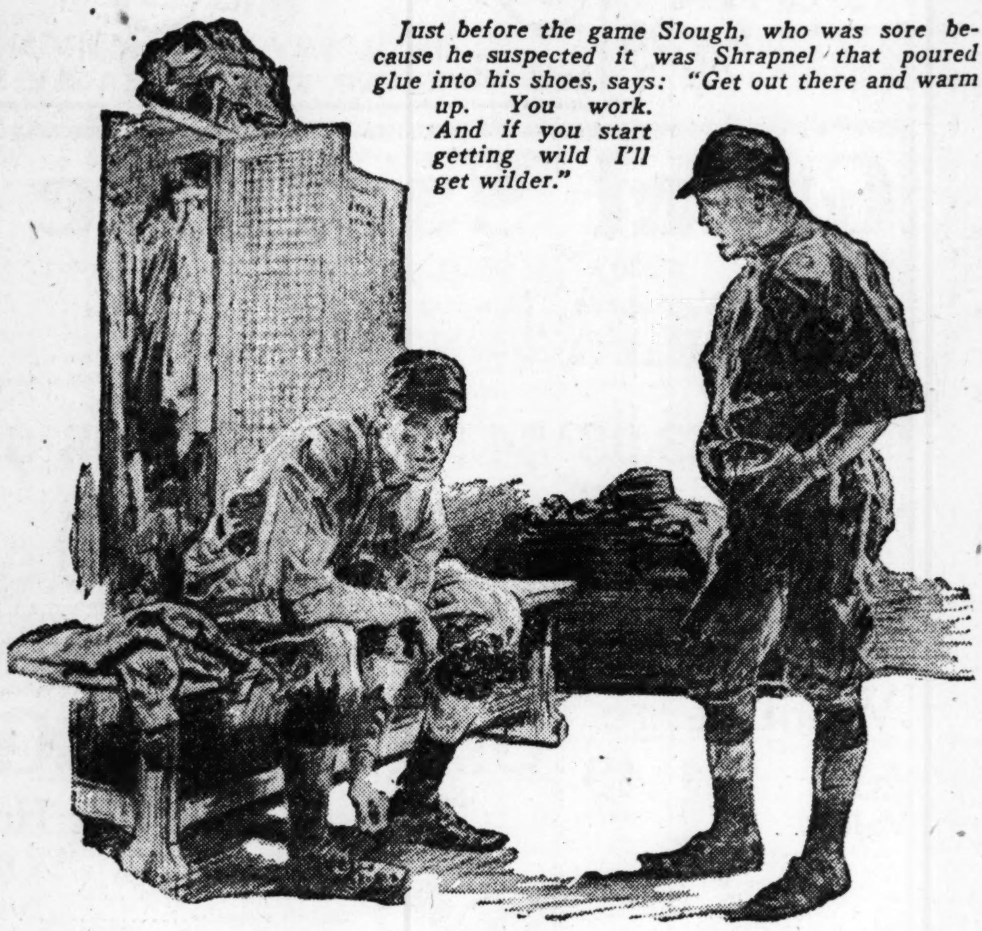
You see, I looked over Alex when he was in the bushes and reported that he wouldn't do, because he lacked control. He did, too. But it ain't any use to argue with Slough, and when I heard him mention Alexander I went to pack. Slough's unreasonable when them pitchers is wild.

I caught the midnight going West, dropped off at South Bend to look over a left-hander Doc Carson had tipped off. One peek and two squints was plenty. He telegraphed his curve so you could see it from the turnstile; so I went down to Evansville to watch a lanky right-hander Harry Stahlhofer had been trying to sell. He looked pretty good, too, had a nice break to his curve and hopped his fast one around the corners; but he had averaged seven bases on balls a game, and I knew what Slough would say if I brought in a knock-kneed guy that had seven passes a game.

So I thought I'd run up to Grand Rapids and see if there was a pitcher there. They trotted out all the live stock, but only one of them knew how to stand on the slab, and he wound up like a 1906 automobile.

I was sitting in the lobby of the Pantlind the next morning, looking over the sporting sheet of the News, and I see something that made me jump. Fellow named Musser, pitching for Muskegon against South Haven, shut them out without a hit or a base on balls. That wasn't all; he only struck out three batters, and the shortstop, second and third basemen had fifteen put-outs. You know what that means? Little old measly pop flies. That fellow was pitching baseball! I asked the best way to get to Muskegon, and was there before noon.

If a scout doesn't keep his eyes open those bush managers are worse than a bunch of salted mine promoters, so I don't ask any questions, but goes around snooping after Musser. Everyone in Muskegon knows all about that game, but no one knows Musser—new man. I had to hunt up the manager and take a chance of having acid enough to test his gold bricks. But this one was different. When I asked about Musser he said, "Shush-sh-sh-shhh!" and I has to walk him around in front of the mirror so the bartender can't hear before he'll say the word. Then he leans over and says, "Shush-sh-sh! College man. Rich daddy. Pitching under fake name. Afraid he'll lose his amateur standing. Hired him to pitch one game, won a sockful. Musser wouldn't even stay to supper. Shush-sh-sh-shh!"



Just before the game Slough, who was sore because he suspected it was Shrapnel that poured glue into his shoes, says: "Get out there and warm up. You work. And if you start getting wild I'll get wilder."

I had to stay overnight and next morning I picked up the Times, and, glancing over the local news, I see something that made me commence to notice things: Pitcher namer Grinner, pitching for Manistee against Ludington; no runs, no hits, no base on balls, seventeen put-outs on pop flies.

They told me if I ran I could catch the boat, and I gets to Manistee at 2 o'clock. The town was baseball crazy. Everyone tells me they got the wholedam state of Michigan—that's the way they say it up there—beaten. But no one knew Grinner, and I had to hunt up the local manager. "Shush-sh-sh-shhh!" he said, and took me around back of the garage. "College man. Rich father. Pitching under a nom de ball, afraid of losing his college standing."

Pretty tough luck to lose two pitchers with control, and it seemed worse when the bulletin board that night showed our team got licked, 9 to 3, and only five hits off Skeeter. Every time I saw a Western Union sign I pulls my hat down for fear Slough'll see me and start telegraphing for pitchers.

I couldn't get out of Manistee until evening, so me and the manager sat around and fanned, and he told me about what great ball players they turn out in Michigan, confining himself chiefly to John Clarkson and Bill Killifer, and not saying much about the ones I wanted to know about.

"We only got a fair team here this year," he says finally. "If you want to see two good teams you ought to be in Saint Joe tomorrow. Berrien Springs and Saint Joe is going to play for the championship."

I was in the front row at Saint Joe when the game starts. Half a dozen pitchers was warming up, and not one of them looked good enough for Class Z. I was looking over the time-table to see when I could catch a boat to Chicago when the umps announces the batteries. That gang that had been warming up for Berrien Springs dives for the bench.

"Bronson and Jornson for Saint Joe," says the umps. "Hemlock and Ash for Berrien Springs."

Hemlock walks out. He has his pants pressed, and when he takes off his cap I see his hair is combed straight back and his face is real pretty. Then I see his shoulders. Say! they made him look like a try square, and the first move he makes I throws away the time-table and begin to see things. He didn't have nothing—not a thing! He has a slow and a slower, and then some and control. Why, say, that fellow could have pitched little pills at a bottle all day and never missed the mouth once. That hick catcher keeps signaling for curves, and Hemlock just shakes his head and keeps dinking up slow twisters, and them Saint Joe boys swung so hard they grunted, and all the time that ball kept popping into the air. Hemlock was friendly with his shortstop. I see him now every once in a while, and the shortstop would spit into his glove, and the batter would roll an easy one down to him. The crowd never knew it was watching a marvel pitching and got the idea Honus Wagner was playing shortstop.

After the fifth inning I'd seen enough, and I eases over to where the manager of the Berrien Springs is making his bets. I slips him my name and asked who the pitcher was.

"Shush-sh-sh-sh-sh-h-h!" he says, looking scared.

"Oh, yes!" I said. "College man. Rich father. Afraid of losing his amateur standing."

"How did you guess it?" he asked, looking scared again.

"I know them college boys," I says. "Where is he stopping?"

"Down at the Lakeside. He dressed there, so he could catch a train right after the game."

Not a run or a hit did Saint Joe have up to the seventh, and not one of them had got a solid wallop at that ball. Then the pitcher nods to the shortstop and the batter rolls one down to him. He messed it and the first Saint Joe runner gets to first. The crowd was yelling, thinking they was going to win, the score only being 7 to 0, and that runner steps about 19 inches off the bag so as to give his chest room to swell. He was still smiling when the first baseman jabs that ball into his ribs. Talk about balk motions! Say, that fellow had anything beat I ever see. He handed that ball over to first, and I'll swear if the batter didn't swing half way round at it, thinking he was pitching.

I jumped a foot off my seat. I know I've seen that balk motion somewhere, but for the life of me I can't recall where. That guy was a right-handed Mattie Kilroy, and I wasn't taking any chances of losing him. I chased down to the Lakeside, got the key to his room, and was sitting on the bed waiting for him when he comes down from the game. He busted into the room, and then he grins and says:

"Hello, Mike! What brings you here?"

"Well," I says, "I'm here via Muskegon and Manistee, looking for a pitcher named Grinner and, not wanting to lose another one, I camped here waiting to see you. I'm personally acquainted with that balk motion of yours, but I'm darned if ever I see that slow ball and I don't know you."

He stood there grinning while I studied him and tried to think where I'd ever seen him.

"Wait a minute," he says, and dives into the bathroom. He splashes around in there for four or five minutes; then he comes out with his face changed. It was old Shrapnel Stevens.

"SHRAPNEL!" I yelled. "Why, you old grave robber! College guy? Under cover? Rich dad? Afraid of losing your amateur standing? No wonder I didn't know you. So you're Hemlock?"

"Yep," he says, grinning; "I'm Hemlock, and Musser, and Grinner, and about forty others. I'm the champeen college guy. I got a book full of them nom de prunes, and I've been an aluminum of half the colleges in America, and I'm takin' a post hole graduate course this summer."

"You're the guy they've been shushing me all over Michigan about, are you?" I ask. "I got to thinking Michigan was densely populated with no-hit, no-run pitchers with control and was running circles looking for one to take back to Slough. Them we got makes Ed Ruelbach look tame. How do you get away with that college stuff?"

"Easy," says Shrapnel: "I shush 'em the college would can me and the old man would disown me if I played ball. I got a frat pin offen a pawnbroker in Detroit. I have to make up some to look the part, and I'm afraid to pitch hard for fear the healthy bloom of youth will run."

"No wonder I didn't know anything but the old balk motion," I says. "When you was with us, six years ago, you didn't have nothing but a fast one. Now you're all slows. What's become of the old smoke?"

"She's gone," he says sadly. "I can't dent a custard pie. The old soup bone can't get up steam no more."

"She sure could burn them through," I said. "Remember that exhibition game up at Cumberland when the Marshal wanted to pinch you for manslaughter after you beaned five of them? What have you been doing?"

"Getting control," he said sadly. "You remember the night Slough canned me? Well, he chased me out of the hotel just because I gave eleven bases and hit two, and told me to git out and not come back till I got control. I've got it."

Right there the big idea came to me.

"We'll do it!" I said. "Shrapnel, if you're game, we'll do it!"

"Do what?" he asks, looking as if I had gone bugs.

"Put it across on Slough," I said. "He sent me out and told me not to come back until I found a pitcher with control. You're it."

"I don't dast," said Shrapnel. "He'd bust me on the jaw if he caught us."

"He ain't going to catch us until we put it over on him," I said, getting excited. "Then he won't dare, for fear we'll tell."

It took me an hour to argue Shrapnel into trying it; but he agreed, and I wired Slough: "Arrive tomorrow with pitcher with control."

To Be Continued Tomorrow and Concluded Tuesday.

HARVARD GLEE CLUB TO GIVE CLASSICAL PROGRAM

Student Aggregation to Be at Odeon in Annual Concert Here on Dec. 29.

A program of classical music, choral and instrumental, will be offered by the Harvard Glee Club at its concert, on Wednesday evening, Dec. 29, at the Odeon.

Among the composers represented in the list of concerted numbers are Palestrina, Bach, Rubinstein, Mendelssohn, Brahms and Handel. H. E. Scott Jr., '22, a violinist, will be the soloist, playing Handel's Sonata in A Major, and numbers by Kreisler and d'Ambrosio.

"FREEDOM OF IRELAND" FILM AT ODEON TONIGHT

Four Days' Engagement Is Under Auspices of Organization.

"For the Freedom of Ireland," a film drama by Hal Reid will be shown tonight from 7 to 11 o'clock, and tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday from 1 to 11 p. m., in the Odeon. The engagement is under the auspices of the St. Louis chapter of the Friends of Irish Freedom. Added features are songs by Barney O'Mara, Irish tenor, songs and dances by the McBride children, and news pictures of present-day scenes in Ireland. A talk by Mayor Kiel, and the reading of a message from Mrs. MacSwiney, widow of the late Mayor of Cork, are scheduled for tonight.

The author, Hal Reid, who established a reputation in melodrama before moving pictures were generally known, appears in the role of Father Michael Mullain. Incidents of the picture are the escape of Eamon de Valera from prison in Ireland, and receptions given to him in the United States. Through the story of political and military strife runs a romance of two individuals, devoted to the cause of Ireland.

Dr. F. H. Ewerhardt of Barnes Hospital will give a second lecture on "Sex Hygiene" for the members of the Y. M. H. A. at 3 p. m. today in the club room, 3645 Delmar boulevard.

UNIFIED DELIVERY PROPOSED TO CUT HIGH MILK PRICES

Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, Chairman of Women Voters' Food Committee, Favors Municipal Control of System.

QUOTES RESULTS OF ROCHESTER SURVEY

Refers to Gronna and Fess Bills as Worthy of Support Because of Tending to Lower Prices.

A system of municipal control of a unified delivery system was offered to the consideration of the League of Women Voters as the ultimate solution of high prices for milk yesterday in Hotel Statler by Mrs. Edward P. Costigan of Washington, wife of a Federal Tariff Commissioner, who is chairman of the Food Supply and Demand Committee of the National League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Costigan's discussion was concerning what women can do at this time to relieve high prices of food. The bases of her recommendation on milk, she said, were certain excerpts from a report of the Federal Trade Commission investigation, which, she said, recently was or is about to be released by the commission.

She quoted as from the commission's findings the result of a survey in Rochester, N. Y., in which it was found that one milk distributing company, replacing several which were functioning, would reduce the distribution costs from $750,000 a year to $220,000. Figures contributing to this money saving were that 90 men could do the work under a unified system, whereas 256 now are employed; that the number of horses used could be reduced from 380 to 50, that 25 trucks could replace 250 wagons and that the city could be supplied with milk with a delivery mileage of 300 a day, whereas vehicles of the distributing companies now are traveling 2500 miles each day.

States Act After Survey.

Mrs. Costigan said that the Rochester survey caused the boards of agriculture of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware to unite in a similar survey in their states, the findings of which were the following suggestions for improving milk distribution: (1) Public ownership of pasteurization plants; (2) Public ownership of milk distribution system. (3) Farmers' stations in the city for the marketing at wholesale of whole milk, and (4) that the distribution of milk should be regarded as a public utility.

Mrs. Costigan's discussion of milk was received with interest because the St. Louis League of Women Voters was, with the Council of Jewish Women, the moving influence that led to the formation of the Citizens' Milk Committee in St. Louis to inquire into the character of milk being supplied here and to continue as a permanent sentinel over all phases of that industry. The committee at this time is devoting its effort to framing a new milk ordinance and obtaining its passage in the Board of Aldermen.

Mrs. Costigan quoted the results of other investigations into the subject, declaring: "There has been no investigation of milk prices, but has concluded that there should be public control of a unified delivery system as a sure means of keeping up the quality and keeping down the price."

Supports the Gronna Bill.

Mrs. Costigan told of legislation pending at this time, which, she said, the League of Women Voters is supporting as tending to lower prices and better food conditions. The first of these is the Gronna bill in Congress, providing for the establishment of a Federal livestock commission with power to inquire into practices of the meat packers and to limit their dealing in other foodstuffs, as they now do, to a degree that is not harmful to free competition in those foodstuffs.

Another is the Fess bill, an amendment to the Smith-Lever bill, increasing the appropriations for Federal aid to State school instruction in home economics. She said also that the league was recommending to its various State organizations the consideration of measures for proper food inspection and for the establishment of markets in which the producer could meet the consumer and thus eliminate the middleman, who, she said, contributes to high living costs.

JAPANESE DRAFTING LAND PLAN

Announcement Made Measure Will Meet Provisions of Pending Treaty.

TOKIO, Dec. 18.—The Jiji Shimbun prints a report that new legislation, providing for foreign land ownership in Japan is being drafted to "meet the provisions of the treaty now being negotiated in Washington."

Talk on Japanese Situation.

"The World Attitude Toward the Japanese Situation" will be discussed by William F. Woerner, St. Louis lawyer, before the Women's Advertising Club of St. Louis at 12:15 p. m. Monday in the Daniel Boone room of the Hotel Statler. A prize will be given for attendance. Guests are invited.

IMPORTED CANARIES

We guarantee every bird we sell to sing

Guaranteed Singers

We are glad to let our patrons know that we are again able to offer them German trained singing Canaries, which we have not been able to do for the last five years.

So far as we can learn, we are the only house in the city that has imported birds to offer for the holiday trade.

They are the famous St. Andreasberger Rollers. One imported bird is worth six of the domestic trained birds.

Price, guaranteed singers, $15.00 each.

Bird Cages

Our line of Bird Cages is complete. We have ever so many styles and sizes to select from. The prices vary according to size and style, ranging from $4.25 upwards.
The different styles include Japanned, Brass, Polished Brass, Colored and Bamboo Cages.

Goldfish and Aquariums

We are headquarters for Goldfish of every description. Fancy domestic Comet Goldfish, 15 cents each.
Imported Japanese Fan-tails and Telescopes, 75 cents each and upward.
All sizes and styles of Fish Globes and Aquariums.
Fish and Bird supplies.

CHAIN OF MARKETS FOR FARM PRODUCE INCLUDES ST. LOUIS

Nine Terminal Centers Approved by National Board of Farm Organizations at Final Session.

SEATTLE MAN IS NAMED SUPERVISOR

Delegates Also Oppose Anti-Strike Legislation and Favor Better Financial Facilities for Farmers.

The National Board of Farm Organizations, which yesterday ended its three-day conference on readjustment in the marketing of farm products, at the closing session at Hotel Statler selected St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago, Omaha, Sioux City, Oklahoma City, Minneapolis, Seattle and Buffalo as the nine terminal cities in which to establish marketing centers and large elevators controlled by farmers.

A proposal for the establishment of this chain of elevators, with the idea of ultimately eliminating entirely the present system of grain marketing and the speculative grain elevator operators, was indorsed Friday night by the delegates attending the conference. More definite plans for the functioning of this co-operative elevator marketing system, which will involve the expenditure of millions of dollars, will be worked out in the next few weeks by committees and by a genenral supervisor.

Charles S. Barrett, chairman of the National Board of Farm Organizations, announced late yesterday that C. W. Nelson, general manager of the Tri-State Terminal Co. at Seattle, Wash., had been offered the position of general supervisor of the proposed marketing and elevator project. Nelson is expected to accept, although he would not make a definite statement. He is said to be an expert in all matters pertaining to co-operative marketing of grain, and has spent much time in foreign countries studying various co-operative marketing systems.

St. Louis District Committee.

A committee was appointed yesterday to represent the farmers in the territory of which St. Louis will be the terminal market under the proposed plan. Those named are: Leroy Melton, Greenville, Ill., national secretary of the Farmers' Equity Union; J. L. Carey, Carrollton, Mo., of the Farmers' Union; J. C. Lamborn, Kinmundy, Ill., president of the Illinois Farmers' Union, and M. Ball of Montgomery City, Mo., of the Missouri Farmers' Association.

The St. Louis terminal committee will meet Jan. 4 with committees appointed for the eight other terminal districts, for the purpose of calling a delegate convention of all existing farmers' co-operative grain marketing organizations that are natural feeders of each terminal market to work out more specific plans for financing the terminal marketing project. The place of meeting has not been decided.

The delegates at the closing session also adopted a resolution protesting against the Poindexter anti-strike bill. The resolution stated that, although the harmful effects of strikes was realized by the delegates, there were circumstances which, under existing conditions, made united protest the only means for self-preservation of the workers.

The resolution reads: "In these unsettled times Congress should seek to remove the causes of strikes rather than to make strikes a felony The bill will cause far greater harm than good, and will cause strikes rather than prevent them. Legislation along similar lines enacted in other lands has been abandoned, as public opinion will not sustain them. We believe that the propaganda upon the strike question circulated within the past few months, especially among farmers, has been entirely misleading."

For Farm Loan Union.

The delegates also adopted a resolution favoring the organization of a national union of farm loan associations, similar to the American Bankers' Association. The resolution stated that the 4000 farm loan associations had had no opportunity of securing self-determination at Washington, and that the policy of the Federal Farm Loan Board had been to discourage attempts on the part of the associations to organize into State-wide federations.

The delegates voiced a protest in the resolution against various amendments to the Federal Farm Loan act passed by Congress in the last two years, asserting that no opportunity was given "for consultation between the law-makers and the associations."

Urges Farmers' Bank Here.

A. O. White, a banker of De Soto. Mo., a delegate at the conference, in an address, urged the establishment of a co-operative farmers' bank in St. Louis and the other terminal cities in connection with the new marketing plan, each bank to be a $1,000,000 concern, the stock being sold to producers and consumers. He explained that the lack of credit to farmers and country banks at present made the organization of co-operative banks a necessity.

The delegates in one resolution declared themselves in favor of national legislation for the effective control and regulation of the packing industry, and advocated the passage of the Kenyon-Kendricks bill, pending before Congress.

Select Your Piano or Player-Piano Now for Christmas Delivery

OF course you will want music in your home on Christmas day and there should be music in your home every day throughout the year. By selecting one of these instruments now you can have one delivered for Christmas-giving, and you and the entire family can enjoy it Christmas morning and every day throughout the years following.

Sohmer

There are many advantages in buying the Piano or Player-Piano here; one of the most important is the fact that back of every instrument is the guarantee of this seventy-year-old institution.

Another reason is that you will always get full value for any instrument purchased.

Another, that you can choose from such renowned instruments as the Sohmer, Kurtzmann, Fischer, Acoustigrande, Brambach, Milton, Vandervoort, and Newton; also the celebrated Welte-Mignon reproducing mechanism.

The reason for choosing now is that there are only five more days between now and Christmas and it will be necessary to select at once to insure Christmas delivery.

Our easy payment plan makes it possible for every home to have a Piano or Player on Christmas morning, and all that is required is a small down payment after you make your selection and the balance can be divided into small monthly installments.

Our life insurance clause fully protects you against any loss during the period in which you are making your payments.

Therefore, let nothing prevent you from coming to Vandervoort's, the Music Center of St. Louis, tomorrow morning and make your selection.

Give Her a Free-Westinghouse Sewing Machine for Christmas

THE Free-Westinghouse Sewing Machine is more than a Sewing Machine, it performs all of the usual duties of an ordinary Sewing Machine in the most satisfactory manner, without the labor attached to other machines, and in addition it is an attractive piece of furniture when not in use. It closes up and becomes a pleasing writing desk or console table. Mechanically the Free-Westinghouse is an excellent Machine; the control of this Machine is so perfect that it can be used at any speed and on any kind of sewing, from the very finest to unusually heavy work, with the same excellent results.

Come in tomorrow and ask to see one demonstrated. Easy terms of payment will be arranged so that a small initial payment is all that is required to have one delivered to you for Christmas-giving. The balance can be divided into small monthly installments.

ATTITUDE OF WAIT AND SEE PREVAILS IN STOCK MARKET

Dividend Omissions Weaken Some Securities—Effect of Tax Payments Shown on Prices.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The Evening Post, in its weekly financial review, says:

"The heavy liquidation in stocks on Monday and the sharp recovery on Tuesday were followed by days of dwindling activity and irregularly declining prices. During the latter part of the week it became apparent that very little market existed for certain classes of stocks, so that offerings of a few shares broke prices badly. This was especially marked in the case of the sugar stocks, and by Friday night Punta Allegre and American Beet had lost about 9 and 12 points respectively on comparatively slender trading.

"Lack of demand for these stocks reflects the fact that sugar has now joined the group of commodities which have about returned to pre-war prices. Its fall has been spectacular enough. Raw Cuban sugar at New York, which sold for 23.6 cents in May, now sells for 4.6 cents. The price in the five years before the war averaged 4 cents. Responsibility for the collapse rests partly on the reckless speculative profiteering which carried prices to such heights as to attract Java sugar to this market, and partly to the fact that the world crop which is now coming on is much larger than last year's. The estimated increase is a million and three quarters tons, or 11.5 per cent, and of this increase about two-thirds are in beet and one-third is in cane. Europe is recovering her production of beet, but even so her new crop still will be less than half the pre-war. On the other hand the world's production of cane is about a fourth greater than before the war. Altogether the world's crop will be a million and a third tons less than in 1913, but as Russia will account for nine-tenths of this loss, it would seem that the shortages will be in Europe and that there should be a good supply of cane sugar in this market.

Effects of Dividend Cuts.

"Other industrial stocks also weakened in the face of dividend omissions and signs that the business depression is likely to be far reaching. Independent steels could find little encouragement in the picture of dwindling activity presented by that industry, while motors and rubber stocks reflected the feeling that a quick return to high prosperity is very unlikely. The rails, too, had a difficult week, losing from 1 to 2 points.

"Taken altogether, the market demonstrated that the public took a pessimistic view of the business outlook. Aside from professional trading, Monday's selling plainly testified to a necessity to secure cash to meet tax payments. Tuesday's rally showed the shorts anxious to cover. But with Wednesday came the end of tax payments and unmistakable evidences of easier money, yet the market lapsed into lassitude, refused nourishment, and showed a striking lack of desire to buy anything, even at relatively fair concessions. Its attitude clearly is one of wait and see.

"Aside from individual embarrassments in the matter of meeting taxes, the unusual and large financial readjustments of the week went off with gratifying smoothness. Redemption of the $700,000,000 issue of certificates of indebtedness, as against a new issue of $500,000,000, provided the banks with immediate funds, while the slower presentation of checks for tax payments created a surplus of funds which, even if temporary, was reflected in the lending of a certain amount of call money at 6 per cent. Here again we have erason to be thankful for the Federal Reserve system, which skillfully facilitates changes that in former times occasioned disturbances of considerable severity.

Liquidation Continues.

"Cables from Europe tell the same story of heavy liquidation with which we are familiar here. Commodities fall in price, forcing liquidation of securities in order to meet loans; investors lose hope that commodities have reached bottom and refuse to buy securities, waiting for goods prices to reach a stable basis for trade." Meanwhile securities and commodities are liquidated internationally, alternately easing and tightening money rates in the different centers, and throwing alternating pressures, in the one direction or the other, on the foreign exchange mechanisms. The result, naturally is confusion, erratic fluctuations, and the development of a highly nervous atmosphere. On the whole, however, it is apparent that here and in England, at least, the banking position is sound and that after the year-end settlements are made, it should improve progressively. In the new year, then, we should enter a period of price stabilization attended by dull trade, from which a revival in the spring reasonably might be expected.

"Lack of buying support was again apparent on the opening of the stock market this morning. Offerings were for the most part in small lots and prices, which varied considerably on consecutive sales, showed a downward tendency. The rails, which yesterday held fairly well, were weaker today, the more active issues showing losses of a point or more. Oil stocks were soft, Mexican Petroleum breaking 5 points, and Royal Dutch 2⅝. At the close prices were in general fractionally lower. Sterling also slumped, selling for $3.49¾ or 1¾ cents below yesterday's closing.

"The Celaring House bank statement shows a very large increase in loans, $115,000,000, with a much smaller increase in net demand deposits, the latter amounting to only $12,400,000. The change is the more interesting in connection with the large demands to assist in tax payments, probably made on the banks this week. The excess reserve still amounts to $8,200,000 or $3,000,000 less than last week."

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $8,222,200 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is a decrease of $3,025,710 from last week.

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The reaction that started late yesterday afternoon in the foreign exchange market became more pronounced this morning. There was a marked absence of inquiry, and moderate sales caused sharp declines, demand sterling selling early in the day at $3.49½ compared with its high of $3.54 yesterday. Swiss sold at the new low record of 15.04. French also was weak, checks declining to 5.94, and Italian reflected the continued Government supply. Norway was exceptionally strong.

Exchange on European centers up to Friday showed a marked improvement. Dealers were called on to execute buying orders for moderate amounts, but these orders became steadily more numerous, and toward the end of the week offerings were so scant that the orders could only be filled by advancing bids after higher levels had already been established. Part of these requirements were filled through sales by dealers for short account. Sterling was most directly influenced by these larger requirements, demand selling early in the week at $3.44½ and steadily advanced until the rate reached $3.54. French exchange followed sterling closely, but did not have so extensive an advance, checks on Paris ranging from 5.81 cents to 6.12 cents.

There was even greater urgency in the demand for exchange on Denmark than in the preceding week, crown checks on Copenhagen making a further advance from 14.40 to 15.30, and a vigorous upward movement occurred in exchange in Holland, reflecting the heavy sales of securities in this market for Amsterdam account. Canadian exchange was acutely unsettled, sales being made at over 15 cents discount, making a new low record. It was insisted by some that this position is artificial, but others expressed the view that it is the natural outcome of the West supplying the demand for gain and checking the movement from Canada.

Brazilian exchange broke abruptly, milreis falling to the new low of 13.20. Austrian also sold at a new low during the week.

Transactions in Italian exchange were at times in large volume, the Italian institute placing blocks of as much as 25,000,000 lire in single contracts.

Range Between 1914 and 1920.

The following table gives the highest and lowest rates touched by New York exchange on the various European countries since the war began, all of the subjoined quotations being based on actual trade sections:

London, high, $7, Aug. 4, 1914; low, $3.18, February 1, 1920.

France, high, 33¼c, Aug. 4, 1914; low, 5.70, Nov. 11, 1920.

Holland, high, 52⅝ Aug. 9, 1918; low, 29.00, Nov. 6, 1920.

Germany, high, 27.5, Aug. 4, 1914; low, 1.01, Jan. 28, 1920.

Italy, high, 25c, Aug. 4, 1914; low, 2.30, Nov. 8, 1920.

Switzerland, high, 25.97c, May 20, 1918; low, 15.05c, Nov. 8, 1920.

Austria, high, 23c, Aug. 4, 1914; low, .20, Dec. 17, 1920.

Sweden, high, 47.00, Nov. 2, 1917; low, 16.30, Feb. 4, 1920.

Denmark, high, 39.00, Oct. 27, 1917; low, 13.05, Nov. 8, 1920.

Spain, high, 30.00, April 17, 1918; low, 11.83, Nov. 13, 1920.

DEALINGS SMALLER ON CURB; OILS STEADY

Mid West Refining Down 1 Point—Fluctuations in Most Shares Narrow.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Dealings were much smaller on the curb market today, a few of the specialties coming in for attention on a demand from commission houses for small lots. However, fluctuations were irregular and confined within narrow limits. Professionals did some business, but operated on both sides, apparently balancing their books over Sunday.

The Standard Oil shares were little changed from their previous close. Mid-West Refining, on small transactions, dropped about a point.

Simms Petroleum displayed a steady tone, and Carib Syndicate, Skelly Oil, Salt Creek Producers and many others were about unchanged. In the miscellaneous list, United States Steamship attracted attention because of the heavy trading around the previous low market. Radio common was unusually weak. Sweets Company, American Writing Paper, Aetna Explosives, British-American Tobacco and one or two others were steady.

Bonds were decidedly less active than recently.

Mining stocks were quiet with irregular changes in the silver issues.

Wool Prices Are Lower.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—During the wool auction series, which ended yesterday, 79,000 bales were offered and 24,000 sold, of which 13,000 bales were purchased for the Continent and 11,000 for the home trade. Fifty-five thousand bales were held over. Compared with the last sales, Government-owned and Australian wools and also free wools closed from 10 per cent to 20 per cent lower, and capes from 15 per cent to 30 per cent down.

Dry Goods

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Wide sheetings today were revised to a bisis of 50 cents for 10-4 Pepperell bleached. Cotton goods were steady with trading lighter. Yarns showed a slight increase in inquiries. Burlaps quiet and wool markets steady. The underwear trade still complained of little new business.

LOCAL STOCK EXCHANGE HAS VERY ACTIVE WEEK

Sales in the Aggregate Amount to 44,807 Shares and $107,500 Worth of Bonds.

Local Bank Clearings

YESTERDAY	$22,163,591
FRIDAY	27,809,352
THURSDAY	35,886,234
WEDNESDAY	29,638,020
TUESDAY	21,369,615
MONDAY	28,985,796

Trading on the St. Louis Stock Exchange the past week was the broadest and most active witnessed in a similar period for years. Transactions, in the aggregate, on one day established a record. During the six days 44,807 shares of stock and $107,500 worth of bonds were traded in. Yesterday'c sales amounted to 2417 shares of stock and $6000 in bonds.

In several cases price recessions were marked. National Candy common and Temtor common issues had wide ranges.

It was the view of brokers that much of the offering of securities was to be credited to a desire to establish losses in connection with income tax returns.

COMMODITIES MUST DROP FURTHER, IS VIEW IN LONDON

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—The fall in commodity prices, credit rumors and unemployment are dominant factors in the general situation. Already the labor party is demanding weekly doles of £2 for unemployed men and 25s for women. Without discussing the humanitarian side of these question granting of the demands would mean further encouragement to slackening in industry, while the doles themselves would constitute fresh inflation, with an effect on prices the more marked because of curtailed production.

Deflation May Be Prolonged.

A. H. Gibson, practical economist here of the Anglo-South American Bank, has prepared an elaborate article in which he foreshadows a steady fall in commodity prices during the next five to seven years. These expectations are based partly on increased productivity. He estimates that within the period given commodities will stand at 25 per cent above the pre-war level and wages 60 per cent above pre-war. The increase in wages finally will be made possible by increased efficiency of management and increased output per man.

Liquidation Continues.

Liquidation proceeds steadily, and the bankers magazine end of the year valuation of 387 representative stocks will show a fall in market value for the year of about £250,000,000, while the same securities compared with July, 1914, values show a depreciation of £1,000,000,000. On top of this has come the fall in commodities, dearer money and the avalanche of new capital issues.

It is small wonder, therefore, that credit rumors abound, especially as worse conditions prevail at continental centers. Finally, the best judges consider that commodities must go lower before the movement is ripe for subtsantial recovery. Consequently many failures during the next few months are inevitable.

All the big banks, however, are inherently sound, and most of the difficulty in the case of industrial concerns is in those which, instead of using war profits for reserves, has distributed stock dividends, thus making themselves overcapitalized. If, however, the Federal Reserve Board and Bank of England policy is not interfered with by socialistic demands, it will finally bring sounder conditions.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispach.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The record of the past week is one of continued depression in business, further cutting and passing of dividends, further wage reductions and little light thrown upon the question how and when all this is going to end. There have been more interviews with prominent men, all of whom take the ground that the present readjustment, terribly severe as it is, has been necessary, that its duration will not be long and that it will leave the position of industry sound anl the outlook bright. But none of these individuals cares to venture a prediction as to how much farther trade and prices must continue on the downward path until the turning point is reached.

It is a situation where the best minds of the business community are puzzled. They all agree that our credit structure is strong, that there is no danger of a collapse and that the rapidity of the slump during the last four months, and especially during the last month and a half, is the best guarantee that it cannot keep on for long. But where expressions of opinion are very reserved is on the question of what is going to happen during the next few weeks, and particularly after the start of the New Year.

The shelves of merchants and distributors must be cleared before orders can begin to pour into the mills and factories and the wheels of industry set in motion again.

There has been much fresh uncovering of weak spots during the last few days on the Stock Exchange, There has been further forced liquidation by people in distress. Yet there has been nothing like the same degree of general weakness that there was in the market of the third week of November and of the second week in December. Much interest has been aroused by the similarity of the downward movement of 1920 and that of 1907. The decline in stocks has been quite as severe, quite as extensive as it was in the 12 months which culminated in the financial crisis of October-December 13 years ago. Moreover, there has been a surprising correspondence between the main downward swings and the occasional rallies of the two periods. Those who set store by the parallel of the two movements so far, go on to point out that while the general average of stock exchange prices touched bottom in the latter half of December, 1907, it was not until the following February and March that recovery set in. The first half of 1908 was a season of dullness in Wall Street, as well as outside, but an upward movement was set in motion which gained in momentum until it resulted in the great railway boom of the summer and autumn of 1909.

The recollection of what happened after 1907 is decidedly interesting and may be pertinent as a guide for the present situation. Still it has to be remembered that there are wide differences between present conditions and those of the former time.

There has not been, nor will there be, any acute money stringency, any banking crisis like there was in the closing months of the panic in 1907. We know this now by the way Federal Reserve system has been able to preserve its reserve ratio through the strain of the last three months' and we know it, too, by the evidence that, while just as firm a hand is being kept on credit expansion, the money supply is easing and after the first of the year the fall in interest rates already begun will become still more pronounced. On the other hand, commercial conditions are worse now than they were in 1907. The losses in agriculture are a feature which was not present then, the losses in industrial lines have been made widespread and severe. Therefore, it would naturally seem that it will take business longer to recover than it did on the past occasion and this is something which the security markets will have to take into account.

Hopeful Developments.

In the midst of the preponderating sentiment of uncertainty and unsettlement the week has not been without its hopeful developments. One of these is the formation of the new foreign finance corporation with a capital of $100,000,000 authorized under the Edge Act to extend credit abroad in the sum of $1,000,000,000. This is regarded as a step toward solving the problem of the foreign trade upon which the solution of domestic difficulties very largely depends. To make this experiment a success will require the generous cooperation of the investment community. The capital is to be raised through the sale of debenture bonds. It may be imagined that the syndicate which underwrites these bonds will represent the most formidable array of banking power and resources that probably will have ever been seen in this country. Success for the undertaking will mean that an enormous foreign buying capacity will be let loose upon the home market to absorb the surplus and restore commodity prices to a normal level.

There is no connection between the preliminary organization of this great foreign trade corporation and recovery in exchanges which became very marked toward the close of the week. But this recovery is almost a favorable sign since it fits in with the testimony that commercial Europe is getting on its feet. The latest figures which cover November show that British exports and imports have drawn still closer together than they were in October. The excess of imports was less than $60,000,000 and it now appears that the excess for the year will be some $400,000,000 less than was estimated some time ago by the British Board of Trade. This excess will be so far offset by the so-called invisible items that Great Britain will have a net trade balance at the close of the year well over $1,000,000,000.

Saturday's Market.

Today there was acute weakness in various individual stocks under selling partly inspired by the fear that dividends will not be maintained, and that very unpleasant losses have occurred as the result in the drop in inventories and partly due to the necessities of the sellers themselves regardless of all consideration of what the stocks concerned were really worth.

Wide open breaks occurred in some of the sugar stocks, the oils and the shipping issues. American beet Sugar, for instance, went down 3 points between sales, Atlantic Gulf broke a similar amount in the space of a few minutes, American International crashed down a new low and Mexican Petroleum, which on previous days had stood up solidly, broke badly.

Apparently the attention directed to the steadiness of the railway list yesterday and the day before was sufficient to draw the fire of bearish operators. These stocks were not as weak as most of the industrials, but still they fell away pretty sharply with special pressure directed against Reading, Chesapeake & Ohio, Illinois Central and Delaware & Hudson. On the other hand, Steel common with the knowledge that powerful support is ready around the present level is not disturbed, although Republic Steel was very weak at a new low.

Sterling exchange reacted heavily, losing a good part of the gain of the two previous days, thus suggesting that short covering had had a good deal to do with the runup. One of the features of the day was an increase in the discount of Canadian funds which established them at a new low record. Quite likely the possible passage of a protective tariff that would shut out Canadian wheat had something to do with this movement.

The Bond Market.

Liberty Bonds were very uneven in the movements today. The fourth 4¼s were slightly higher while the third loan bonds were lower and the first 3½s were likewise off a trifle. The most interesting development in the market for Government bonds was the decline in Canadian Governments, the 5s of 1931 were down nearly a point at 86. The weakness in Canadian was directly due to the further decline in Canadian exchange carrying rates to a new low for the present movement. New York Central 7s sold as low as 100⅛ as against 101 yesterday. The debenture 6s, however, held steady at 90. The Union Pacific 4s at 80 were the same as they had left off last night, but were down a half point from yesterday morning. Southern Pacific refunding 4s at 73¾ were off a half point. These were fair illustrations of the course of high grade investments issues in general. This class of bonds was not affected by the unsettlement in the market more than a half point. Speculative issues were naturally lower, yet they, too, stood up well as compared with stocks.

WHEAT IS STRONG ON BIG EXPORT DEMAND

Foreign Buying Offsets Bearishness of Government's Final Estimate on Crops.

Eager demand from Europe during the past week made the wheat market jump, notwithstanding bearish crop reports and the nervousness over economic outlook.

Exporters were buyers of wheat both before and after the Government report showing grain crops in the United States much larger than had been generally supposed. Whether or not European demand for wheat was accelerated by likelihood of emergency legislation in Congress to afford relief to farmers did not become evident, but there seemed little doubt that at times the amount of foreign purchasing was more than double the normal daily average. Rapid advances meanwhile in sterling exchange tended to help the wheat market upward, and so, too, did a reduction in the estimated surplus of Australian wheat. On the other hand, unemployment figures and other adverse elements of the general business situation led to temporary violent setbacks.

Corn and oats relatively were not strong, owing to the big supply in sight.

Provisions showed much irregularity, influenced by the circumstance that price changes for grain and hogs were often directly conflicting.

WHEAT IRREGULAR, COARSE GRAINS FIRM AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—It was a choppy mraket for grains today, the bulls experiencing much difficulty in maintaining values. There were waves of advances and declines of some variance and just before the close a reaction set in which made wheat close irregular with prices 1c lower to 1¼c higher, March finishing at $1.63½ to $1.63¾ and May $1.58¾ to $1.59¼; corn was ½c lower to 1⅛c to 1⅞c higher; oats were up ⅝c to ¾c and provisions were 20c to 40c down.

While export demand for wheat was not in evidence the market showed a very firm undertone the greater part of the day and averaged higher. There was some selling here and at Winnipeg attributed to foreign account and also hedging against purchases of cash grain in the Southwest, but there was no pressure of cash grain on the markets and premiums were fairly well maintained. Just before the close a sale of 150,000 bushels was made here to go to store. The British commission was out of the market today.

Coarse grains showed independent strength and advanced readily with active buying by strong commission houses, part of which was attributed to taking profits on previous sales. Sentiment was much less bearish than of late, despite prospects for a larger movement of corn next week.

Trade in oats was featured by heavy buying of the May delivery by a leading professional.

Provisions were affected by reports that foreigners were canceling purchases and ranged lower, although the strength in grains led to fair buying.

Less Wheat Sowed in Missouri.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 18.—The entire acreage of wheat seeding in Missouri amounts to 2,820,000 acres, according to a bulletin issued by the State Board of Agriculture, today, which is 1,480,000 below the seeding of 1918, but is 600,000 acres more than the average seeding before the war period.

The condition of Missouri wheat is better than usual. Based on a perfect crop, the condition of the wheat now is 90 per cent, as compared with a condition of 84 per cent last year and 88 per cent average during the last 10 years.

Wheat Embargo Removed.

OTTAWA, Dec. 18.—The Department of Trade and Congress today received a cablegram from Buenos Aires announcing that the Argentine Government has removed the wheat export embargo.

Coffee.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—There were slight rallies in the market for coffee futures during today's early trading, but they were not fully maintained although buyers found some encouragement in the steadier tone of Brazil. First prices weer 2 to 5 points higher with active months selling 4 to 6 points above last night's closing figures right after the call. March touching 6.88 and May 7.25. Later May sold off to 7.22 and closed at 7.21 bid, with the general market closing net unchanged to 2 points higher. December, 6.23@ January, 6.35; March, $6.82; May, 7.21; July, 7.52; September, 7.75; October, 7.85.

Spot coffee dull; Rio 7s 6¼ to 6½c; Santos 4s 9½c to 10c.

FRESH MEAT DEMAND SLOW; LIVESTOCK DOWN

Heavy Beef Steers Sell on Lowest Basis Since 1916—Yearlings Bring Record Price.

COMPARATIVE LIVESTOCK RECEIPTS.

	Last week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Cattle and calves	19,850	19,269	32,529
Hogs	85,839	84,789	104,843
Sheep	12,391	13,781	16,747
Horses and mules	418	598	3,429
Totals	118,498	118,537	157,548

A continued slow demand for virtually all fresh meats at the large Eastern markets had a depressing influence on the trade in live stock at St. Louis the past week. Further depreciation occurred in the values for beef steers, hogs, sheep and lambs, forcing the general price average to the lowest level in several years.

The most violent break in cattle was on heavy beef steers, an extremely narrow demand for such forcing values down 50c@$1 and reducing the selling level to the lowest point since 1916. The top on weighty beeves was $10 and numerous good droves had to go through a range of $7.75@9.50.

Medium-weight steers did not suffer so great a decline as the heavier sorts, market averaging about 25@50c down. Yearling steers, on the other hand, were in fairly strong demand, the usual Christmas orders coming in. Top yearlings in full loads for the week was $15.50 and two head sold at $35.25 per cwt., thus setting a new record. The bulk of yearling stock held steady for week with the possible exception of some common sorts which were extremely dull Thursday and Friday.

Butcher cows, canners and cutters finished steady to 25c lower for period, while beef and butcher bulls have shown no material change. Stocker steers were in only moderate call and declined 25c on an average, feeder weights ruling still lower in spots.

The market for veal calves was extremely irregular and closed for week right at $1 lower. Top on best lights Friday was $10.50.

Low for Year on Hogs.

Hog values, following sharp declines the past week, rest at the lowest level of the year, or since 1916, market ruling 50@60 cents lower on hogs than a week ago and unevenly 15 to 50 cents lower on pigs and light shipping hogs. At one time during the week best heavy hogs were down to a $9 basis or a flat dollar lower than the close of the preceding week. Owing to a slight reaction this kind is now quotable at $9.25@9.40. Rough hogs are about 75c lower, selling from $7@8 per cwt. Receipts were slightly heavier than for the corresponding seven-day period last week, totaling 85,839 head, but as compared with a year ago, a loss of approximately 19,000 is shown. Featuring inquiry was from Eastern order buyers for stock weighing 170 pounds and down, and particularly on 130 to 140 pound stock. This class of stock sold up to $9.75 in the week's final session, topping the better weight stock by 35 cents per hundredweight.

Sheep Lowest in 16 Years.

Current sheep quotations are the lowest in 16 years, no fat sheep having sold here on a $3.50 basis since 1904. Lambs are down to the 1916 level, with $10.50 the extreme choice ewe and wether lambs. Market this time is demoralized with a similar condition prevailing at some of the other leading Western centers. Western liquidation, the collapse of the wool market and enormous imports of New Zealand and South American frozen lamb and mutton have exerted a powerful influence on the market. Present runs of aged stuff are unprecedented for this time of year, indicating that farmers all over the country are taking alarm over the abnormal conditions prevailing. During the forepart of the week values on lambs reached the $12 market or steady with recent advances, but the present level is 50 cents lower than last week's close on lambs and about $1.50 off on sheep. The latter have been mean sale all week. Cull lambs are quotable from $2@6.50, and cull sheep from $1@3, the latter hardly paying expenses for the shipper. Receipts were just fair and the general quality good. Total run amounted to 12,391, as against 13,781 last week and 16,747 for the corresponding period of 1919. At this time last year sheep and lambs were selling $6 to $6.50 above present prices.

Horse Trade Averages Steady.

On another light run of approximately 100 head, trade in horses the past week was about steady with fair action prevailing on some of the medium grades of southerners. The present range of prices is as follows:

HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice drafts (1400 to 1800 lbs)	$140@200
Eastern chunks, good	100@150
Choice southern horses	60@100
Fair to good southern horses	35@ 65
Fair to medium southerners	20@ 40
Plain southern horses	10@ 20
Plugs	5@ 10

Irregular Trade in Mules.

The trade in mules failed to show any material improvement and on a moderate run, market proved extremely irregular. Demand for all classes was limited, though the most call appears to center on miners and pitters.

Cotton—Spot quiet; middling, 15.65c.

Sugar Market

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The local market for raw sugar was quiet and as no fresh business was reported prices were unchanged at 3⅝c for Cuba cost and freight, equal to 4.63c for centrifugal. There were buyers at quoted prices, while offerings were light with holders asking slight advances.

The recent decline in refined failed to attract any increased demand and business continues light and of a hand-to-mouth character. Prices were unchanged at 7.90c to 8.00c for fine granulated.

A little scattered covering and support from trade interests gave the sugar futures market a steady undertone and closing prices were unchanged to 4 points higher. January closed at 4.20c; March 4.40c; May, 4.55c; and July 4.71c.

Popcorn ad Nuts.

POPCORN—White rice on the cob at $1.75; mixed at $1.50 per 100 lbs.

PEANUTS—Tennessee farmers' stock at 5c and Spanish do at 4½c per pound; cleaned jumbo at 15c.

BETTER REPORTS ON GOODS TRADE CAUSE BUYING OF COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec 18.—There was a little southern hedge selling here at the opening of the cotton market this morning and first prices were steady at a decline of 6 to 15 points with January selling off to $15.30 and March to $12.15. Better reports from the goods trade promoted scattered buying which soon carried the market up to within a few points of last night's closing figures. Sales of print cloths in the Fall River market for the week were estimated at only 25,000 pieces, but this represented the biggest week's business in two months and western wholesalers noted an improvement in retail demand. It is reported that the New Southern Banking concern organized yesterday will begin operations by endeavoring to facilitate exports of low grade cotton.

Demand failed to broaden on the early bulge and the market was quiet later in the morning with prices easing off under liquidation by early week buyers or scattered Southern selling. January eased off to 15.15c and March to 15.12c, with the general market closing fairly steady at a net decline of 10 to 28 points.

Cotton futures closed barely steady; December, 15.12c; January, 15.16c; March, 15.15c; May, 15.25c; July, 15.30c.

St. Louis Spot Cotton.

Spot cotton was steady in St. Louis today. Quotations: Good ordinary, 7c; low middling, 11c; middling, 15c; good middling, 16.50c; fair middling, 17.50c.

Cider.

CIDER—At $15 per barrel.

NEW REPUBLICAN CLUB TO RESIST FACTIONAL RULE

Officeholders and Committeemen Excluded From Membership in Body Formed by Pre-Primary Housecleaners.

A new factor in the spring mayoralty campaign made its appearance yesterday in the Citizens' Republican Club, a new organization with the announced purpose to back no candidate or faction, and barring from its membership officeholders and party committeemen.

Men and women alike are to compose the new club, which will elect permanent officers at a meeting at the Planters' Hotel in Parlor A, at 3 p. m. Wednesday. Among the officers will be 56 directors, a man and a woman from each ward.

Temporary officers in charge of the preliminaries are as follows: Chairman, E. J. Russell, architect, member of the firm of Mauran, Russell & Crowell, with offices in the Chemical Building, and a member of the City Plan Commission; vice chairman, Mrs. Ernest Kroeger, member of the Wednesday Club, who presided at the convention of women last Monday which recommended four women as candidates for the Board of Education; secretary, Sol Swarts, an attorney; treasurer, Joseph W. Bray.

The probable effect of the new movement on Mayor Kiel's candidacy for a third term is a matter of considerable speculation.

Any Republican, not a party committeeman or an officeholder, is eligible to membership in the club, Russell said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, explaining that it will expect to support candidates likely to give St. Louis a good administration. Permanent headquarters are to be opened, and the standards to be applied to candidates in the coming municipal campaign will be used to measure other candidates in future State and national campaigns, according to Russell.

Big Victory a Responsibility.

"We take the tremendous Republican majority of Nov. 2 as a responsibility upon Republicans to give the city, State and nation a good administration," he said, "and not, as some politicians may construe it, a license to do anything they choose."

Twenty-five lists are being circirculated throughout the city to enable Republicans to enroll in the organization. Among the men said by Russell to be interested in the club are Daniel N. Kirby, of the law firm of Nagel & Kirby; B. J. Taussig, former City Comptroller; John H. Holliday, attorney, who was active in behalf of Lieut.-Col. Dwight F. Davis, in his unsuccessful campaign for the Republican nomination for United States Senator; Harry Langenberg, H. B. Wallace, Edgar Rombauer, an attorney; Clarence Taussig; Edwards Whitaker, banker.

Shapleigh and Gratz Supporters.

A. L. Shapleigh, who was active in the pre-primary housecleaners' movement in the Republican party, and Benjamin Gratz, also are said to be in sympathy with the plan and are expected to become members.

The housecleaners in the pre-primary campaign received the backing in St. Louis of City Collector Koeln, and many of the men attacked as "machine controlled" were defeated for Republican nominations. The housecleaners issued a questionnaire to candidates and after receiving the replies, issued a sample ballot to voters.

One purpose animating the moving spirits behind the new club, according to Russell, is to create an avenue of expression for the large body of Republicans here who are independent of any of the factions now ruling affairs of the party locally.

If Gov.-elect Hyde or any other Republican similarly situated comes to St. Louis, either to visit or to seek party counsel, at present he is compelled to go to one or other of the factions, with the result that much of the real strength of the party is without voice in affairs. The new club will change all that, Russell said.

Special From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Dec. 18.

FRANZ RINTELEN, Captain in the Imperial Navy, supreme agent of the fatherland in the United States in 1915 and object throughout the war of the extraordinary solicitude of the German Government, ended two weeks ago at the Federal Penitentiary, Atlanta, Ga., the service of three sentences aggregating 50 months imposed on him for conspiracy to prevent the shipment of munitions to the allies, for the fraudulent securing of a passport and for conspiracy to place bombs aboard steamships in the transatlantic trade, all committed before we entered the war.

The release of this arch plotter against American neutrality came as the result of executive clemency exercised on the recommendation of Attorney-General Palmer. A wave of astonishment followed upon the announcement of this action, resting finally in protests to President Wilson himself against the mercy that seemed to have been shown an enemy alien while Americans remained in prison.

To these protests the official answer was that Rintelen had served the full measure of his penalties and that because of an error in one of the commitment papers he had been denied credit for seven months to which he was entitled. To correct this error and to serve the "interest of justice," the Attorney-General proposed that the sentence be "commuted to expire at once." This proposal the President indorsed "Commuted as recommended," and Rintelen was set free Thanksgiving day.

This explanation seemed to many to leave a good deal yet to be told. To get at what more there might be behind the affair, if there really was anything more, The New York World began an inquiry which has brought to light not only much about the release of Rintelen but much about the man himself that has not been told before, and much about his vivid career of intrigue which had as its purpose not only the matters for which he was convicted, but the fomenting of war with Mexico, the smuggling of supplies to Germany upon a wholesale scale and the stopping of the flow of munitions to England and France even at the length of buying up the whole huge product of this country.

What Was Established.

The World's inquiry established, first of all, that the official contention regarding Rintelen's sentence was a true one, and that as a matter of fact he should have been released five weeks before he was. The inquiry established further, however, that in correcting this mistake there was apparently every desire to smooth the way for the German and permit him to use his freedom as he desired. Evidences of this seeming desire are to be found in these facts:

That the error in the record of Rintelen's confinement was not corrected in the record itself, but by commutation, which always carries with it the implication of its true meaning, " a reduction or change of the penalty imposed by a judicial sentence."

That Rintelen attained this end by his mere application and without recourse to the usual method of habeas corpus proceedings.

That the immediate deportation which the law provides for alien convicts was waived in his case, and upon the giving of a $5000 bond he was permitted to leave when he might choose within a month.

Automatic Bar Avoided.

That the automatic bar against return to this country which would have been raised by his deportation was avoided by this voluntary departure, so that he may come back whenever he pleases.

That since his departure from Atlanta he has been free from observation, even by the authorities, and none of them knows where he has been or is, nor does any of them have any official interest in him.

These other circumstances, upon which The World does not assume to put any construction, appeared from the inquiry:

Rintelen's attorney at law in the matter of his application was Aldine Chambers of Atlanta, a member of the Georgia State Committee in charge of Attorney General Palmer's campaign for the Presidential nomination, who managed this campaign in Fulton County and who as a delegate to the San Francisco convention voted for Mr. Palmer to the last.

The man known as his legal representative in New York, where his bond was procured, is Clem E. Dunbar, who was in charge of the Palmer campaign throughout Georgia, but is now a resident of this city, in business with the Eastern Potash Corporation, American end of the great Schmidtman interests of Germany.

Rintelen, who had lived in New York from 1906 to 1909 as representative of the Disconto Gesellschaft, the second most powerful bank in the empire, was ordered back when the spring of 1915 made it clear that American popular opinion could not be stirred to the point of breaking down the blockade of Germany or of stopping the flow of munitions from American factories to the allied fronts. His task was to attempt what Dr. Bernhard Dernburg had already failed to do and what Dr. Heinrich Albert, with all his resources, was failing to do. He was to undertake, if necessary, even to fulfill the boast he had made in Berlin: "I'll tell Wilson what's what!"

His Order Was Obeyed.

Rintelen came not as a banker but as a Captain-Lieutenant of the imperial navy. He was "on duty" in the territory of a friendly nation. He held authority paramount in all things, and superior in some, to that of Ambassador von Bernstorff. Even such men as Capt. von Papen and Capt. Boy-Ed obeyed when he directed. Over the rank and file of German agents and nationals his power was absolute.

By the middle of April, 1915, Rintelan was at work. Known chiefly as Frederick Hansen and with his headquarters at the Transatlantic Trust Co., William and Liberty streets, he set about simultaneously planning for the shipment of foodstuffs into Germany despite the blockade, launching a publicity "campaign of amity" between America and the fatherland, starting strikes that should tie up munitions works, seeking to bring about war between Mexico and the United States, scheming for the placing of bombs on steamships bearing supplies to the allies and giving thought as free moments came to the shipment of arms to such places as Haiti, where trouble for this country might be provoked.

To sum it up in this way makes the program sound fantastically impossible, but this is just what Rintelen undertook. In four months he was compelled to admit that it could not be done, and he started homeward to propose a more fantastic program still—nothing less than the financing of a project for buying up all the munitions that all the factories of the United States could turn out, the purchases to be piled in the fields or dumped in the sea; anything so that they might be prevented from reaching the hands of the allies.

This homeward journey was the beginning of the end for Rintelen. Failing to get a passport as Edward V. Gates, an American citizen, he forged the name of Edward V. Gasche to one granted a Swiss. Under this he sailed Aug. 3 on the Noordam, to be held up at Falmouth by the British and sent to a detention camp. With Rintelen on this journey was Andrew D. Meloy, a promoter, of 55 Liberty street. Being an American citizen, he was sent back to this country, arriving Sept. 30 on the Nieuw Amsterdam. The following day a Federal grand jury began to dig into the record Rintelen had left behind him.

First of all, it heard from Meloy the story of the forged passport, indictments resulting on Oct. 18.

Delving deeper, the grand jury began to lay bare negotiations between Rintelen and Labor's National Peace Council for strikes that should tie up the munitions works of the country. Thereupon Germany entered a long and spectacular series of attempts to bring about Rintelen's release.

High Bid for Exchange.

First of all, Berlin proposed that he be exchanged for Lieut. Gerard Goschen, son of the British Ambassador to Germany when war came. Great Britain rejected the proposal.

Then Berlin raised the bid and London was told that for Rintelen she might have her choice of five, 10, 15, 20 and finally 21 of the British officers held prisoner in Germany.

A military basis of exchange proving impossible, Berlin turned to the civil side and offered for Rintelen the Postmaster-General of Canada, Dr. Henri S. Beland, who had been captured at the fall of Antwerp. Starting the negotation through the Papal Nuncio at Munich and getting for it both the good offices and the indorsement of Cardinal Gasparri, the Papal Secretary of State, Germany once more failed to attain her end. Her final threat of reprisals on American prisoners will be told of later.

With this extraordinary ratification of Rintelen's importance to Germany there came on Dec. 12 an abrupt change of tactics. In the name of Wilhelmstrasse, Ambassador von Bernstorff formally disavowed Rintelen and all his works.

By the end of 1915 Rintelen had been indicted for conspiracy with David Lamar, Henry B. Martin and others of Labor's National Peace Council to bring about the munitions works strikes. By the time the United States had gone to war with Germany the story had been completed of his schemes down to the conspiracy for the bombing of ships, the indictments for which were the basis of his third trial.

Our declaration of war left Great Britain free to return Rintelen to this country for trial. He reached New York for the third time on April 25, 1917.

Two days later his trial on the charge of conspiracy with Labor's National Peace Council began under Judge Edward E. Cushman. It resulted in his conviction, with Lamar and Martin. On May 21, 1917, he was sentenced to imprisonment for one year. He was returned to the Tombs and on Nov. 26, 1917, pleaded guilty before Judge Mayer to the passport fraud and was sentenced

We All Like to Be Remembered on Our Birthday or on Christmas Day.

Today is my birthday, and I was reminded of it by finding at my breakfast plate several letters of congratulations, as well as a number of little birthday gifts.

Christ was born in a manger and given to the world on the day we now call Christmas.

Isn't it befitting to celebrate this great event by remembering loved ones and friends with gifts or even Christmas cards?

It shows the spirit of the giver and means more to the recipient than can be expressed in words.

We welcome you this week to

The Store of Unusual Gifts

It is all decorated in its Santa Claus dress and you will enjoy a half hour among this beautiful furniture, collected from all parts of the world, for your inspection.

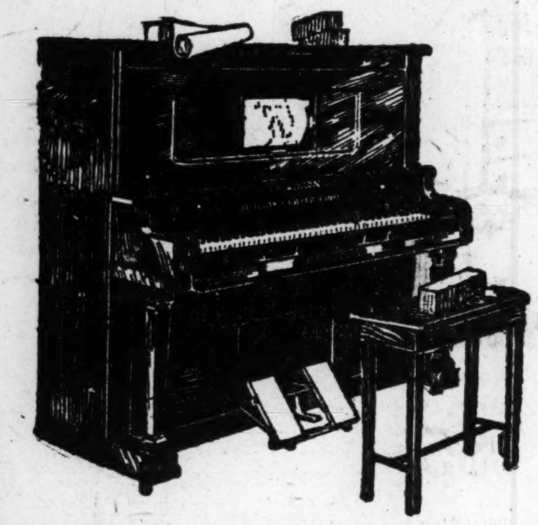
Surely it is to be Music this Christmas

For Aeolian music is music at its best—be it phonograph music or piano music. Because the Aeolian Company through all the years has held fast to the ideal of better music through better musical instruments, today nineteen great factories are nesessary, and this organization takes its place as the foremost maker of musical instruments in all the world.

Because the Aeolian Company strived for and achieved quality, economy has followed as a matter of course. We believe that today no organization can or does produce musical instruments as economically as does the Aeolian Company. Every Aeolian instrument is one of lasting worth. And the reasonable prices and convenient terms make it possible for every home to possess at least one Aeolian instrument.



The Chilton Player-Piano

Terms as low as $15 a month

The Chilton Player-Piano is not an ordinary player-piano. It is an instrument of unusually high quality in every detail. The player action (full 88-note) is the latest improved type, giving such flexibility of control that the person playing becomes master of the keyboard, varying tempo, dynamics and phrasing at will. The case design is exquisite, the cabinet work masterful and the finish beautiful. The Chilton may be had in either mahogany, fumed oak or polished oak.

Aeolian Made—Aeolian Guaranteed

Included with the Chilton at this low price are a combination bench and ten dollars' worth of music rolls of your own selection. It may be purchased on convenient weekly or monthly terms.

The Duo-Art

A magical piano that reproduces with exact fidelity the actual playing of great pianists. The Duo-Art is the only reproducing piano receiving the double tribute of preference by the great house of Steinway and the great pianists.

Here is a partial list of pianists that record their playing exclusively for the Duo-Art, declaring it the only reproducing piano to which they can entrust their artistic reputations.

The VOCALION

The Graduola

The Graduola, the completing touch that turns the phonograph into a musical instrument, is an exclusive feature of the Vocalion.

To control the music with the Graduola as the orchestra leader imposes his will on his players is to have phonograph records that never grow old or tiresome.

It is to be able to play one record again and again and to have it each time a new rendition subtly shaded with your emotions of the moment.

The Graduola turns its fortunate possessor from a mere listener into a musician. And you never grow tired of a phonograph that you can play.

A phonograph is not a gift for Christmas Day alone—it should be a gift to endure through the years. Then why be content with any phonograph, except the world's best? The Vocalion is a good phonograph to look upon with its rare depth of finish, beauty of design and exquisite woods. The remarkable tone of the Vocalion thrills with its lifelike quality. Rich, full and beautiful, the music of the Vocalion bears no semblance to the conventional phonograph tone.

The Vocalion is equipped with a Universal tone-arm. Without attachments or cumbersome adjustments it plays all makes of records. The Vocalion is the phonograph produced by the world's foremost makers of musical instruments. Out of that unequalled experience has come an unmatched phonograph. And there is one feature that is possessed by the Vocalion—a feature that sets it apart from all others and transforms it into a personal musical instrument.

For a
Phonograph Owner

A package of records makes an unusually appreciated gift. And if those records are the new Vocalion red records—well, somebody will enjoy a wonderful musical treat Christmas morning.

—or for a
Player-Piano Owner

You know it is not possible to have too many selections—some of the new popular airs will be received with open arms. A dozen or a half dozen Melodee rolls—the rolls with the song words printed, not stenciled—pretty hard to think of anything better, isn't it?

to 20 months' additional imprisonment.

On Dec. 4, 1917, Rintelen was shifted from the Tombs to the Westchester County jail at White Plains under an order signed by Judge A. N. Hand. This order was the cause of all the later confusion over the actual term of his imprisonment, for it bore the notation, "Execution of Sentence under the commitment to date from Dec. 4, 1917—indictment No. 8295," this indictment being that under which sentence in reality had begun May 21, nearly seven months before. Who wrote or who ordered this notation has not been established.

Shifted from the Westchester jail to the penitentiary for a time as a janitor—Rintelen returned to the Tombs, Jan. 19, 1918, to stand trial before Judge Harland B. Howe on the bomb conspiracy charge. Sixteen other Germans were named in this conspiracy, the specific allegation being that a bomb had been put aboard the steamship Kirk Oswald, which sailed for France May 1, 1915. She was said to be one of 34 vessels on which fires or explosions had been attempted or achieved, the Lusitania on her last voyage being included in the list.

Rintelen's Sentence.

Of this charge, too, Rintelen was found guilty, and on Feb. 5 was sentenced by Judge Howe to serve one year and six months and to pay a fine of $2000, Judge Howe, declaring as he pronounced judgment:

"If this Court had the power to deal with this defendant as he deserves, the sentence would be very, very severe. If he were sentnced to imprisonment for life, or even to forfeit his life, it would not be too severe.

"He will be obliged to serve this sentence after the others have expired. All three sentences will not adequately punish him for this one offense."

This excoriation provoked a last protest from Germany against the treatment of her master agent in this country. It took the form of this note to Washington, transmitted

The Joy of Giving!

VHOEVER would experience the fullest joy of giving must take time to choose personally and with care the gift that will be most appreciated.

ery wife, mother, daughter or sister is hoping and wishing most of all this Christmas for a

Wayne Electric Clothes Washer

What a perfectly glorious gift!—solving forever the greatest problem, the greatest burden of homework—the drudgery of washday! A Christmas gift that never wears out and is always a constant reminder of your thoughtfulness!

Exclusive Wayne Features

The Principle

It is perfect in results because correct in principle. It will wash, without the slightest danger of injury, the most delicate lingerie, the most fragile lace or fabric; with equal ease and satisfaction it will wash the rag rug and the most commonplace of household linen. There are no pegs, slats, paddles or metal hazards to tear or injure anything. The true rocking motion of the "WAYNE" is obtained by means of curved steel rockers of which the cradle is an integral part. In this "Rocker Cradle" the Removable Copper Tub is placed. A crank and a connecting rod transmit the motive power, rocking the cradle, and thus agitating clothes and water. This rocking motion throws the clothes and hot suds back and forth in the tub; forces the suds and hot water through the linen, producing the desired result—snow-white clothing, washed clean, without the slightest possibility of injury.

"Hobby-Horse" Washing Action

It is the only Electric Clothes Washer built with the famous "Hobby-Horse" action—so gentle in its work—but so sure in its results.

Only 17 Moving Parts

It is the simplest Electric Clothes Washer ever built—only 17 moving parts—built to last a lifetime without giving trouble.

Removable Copper Tub

It is the only Oscillating Electric Clothes Washer of the Cabinet type, built with a Removable Copper Tub, a most essential feature—making the few working parts of the "WAYNE'S" mechanism easily accessible, plus the added comfort of having a perfectly sanitary tub, easy to clean inside and out.

Welded Steel Cradle Rocker

It is the only Electric Clothes Washer built that carries the entire load of the tub on a Welded Steel Cradle, which does away with all Springs and the Old-style Center Bearings.

The Master Phonograph

Like rays of sunshine the Sarola comes to your home to bring pleasure and unlimited joy and entertainment. With Christmas approaching, the gift problem is uppermost in the minds of everyone. Surely there is no gift more appropriate or more acceptable than the Sarola. It is something that every member of the family will enjoy. It is something that will transform dreary Winter nights into evenings of pleasure.

The Sarola, with its marvelous tone (due to oval tone chamber or amplifier, "throat" shaped) and exquisite cabinet designs, excels the ordinary phonographs in every respect. Dad and mother can have music to their liking, opera or sentimental melodies; the younger folks their jazzy music and instrumental selections; and even the kiddies can have quaint little nursery rhymes and folk songs.

SAROLA MODEL-G

The Sarola Model G at $125 (illustrated above) is an artistic Queen Anne design. Comes in genuine mahogany and solid walnut. Perfectly proportioned and skillfuly contructed. Priced at $125

We want to impress upon you the importance of buying your Sarola immediately. These wonderful phonographs are selling so rapidly now that unless you act quickly you are apt to be disappointed so far as obtaining the particular model you desire. Why not come in bright and early tomorrow morning? It will be our pleasure, indeed, to demonstrate to you the superiority of the Sarola, as well as play your favorite selections.

through the Swiss Minister on April 20:

"Up to the present time the efforts of the German Government to effect an improvement in the situation of Capt. Lieut. Rintelen, who passed into the hands of the American authorities by reason of acts of the British Government contrary to international law, have been unsuccessful. The attempt to bring to a halt the criminal proceedings brought against him in America and to secure his release has likewise been without result.

"In order to lend greater emphasis to the protests which have been lodged with the American Government, the German Government contemplates some appropriate measures of reprisal. It would, however, prefer to avoid the contingency that persons be taken and made to suffer because the Government of the United States was apparently not sufficiently cognizant of its international obligations toward a German subject."

Lansing's Reply.

On June 7 Secretary of State Lansing replied to this proposal:

"In reply I have the honor to advise you that this Government cannot consider the release of Rintelen, nor interfere in the due process of law in his case."

After this no further overtures were made, and having been transferred to the Essex County Jail on Aug. 5, Rintelen finally reached Atlanta on Oct. 3. There he was giv-

FRANZ RINTELEN, JUST RELEASED, WAS ONCE CHIEF AGENT IN U. S.

on the usual statement of the record as it stood against him. This showed that with the Cushman sentence beginning to run Dec. 4, 1917, it had not been completed until the date he reached Atlanta, so that he must spend there the full period of 38 months, less good behavior, imposed by the Mayer and Howe sentences.

Rintelen protested vigorously, but Warden Zerbst held that he had no choice but to be governed by the regulation of the Department of Justice that "when a man is admitted to prison his term has begun." No further issue was made of the confusion, and no appeal was taken to the Department of Justice from the Warden's position.

He Retains Chambers.

As fall approached Rintelen retained Aldine Chambers of Atlanta to make application for his release as he counted the term of his imprisonment. Chambers will not say how he came to be retained, and Rintelen has not broken his silence upon any topic. It is a fact, however, that Chambers was a member of the State Committee which waged the primary campaign in Georgia in behalf of Attorney General Palmer, and that he was in charge of the campaign in Fulton County, which includes the City of Atlanta. He was, furthermore, a delegate to the San Francisco convention and there voted for Palmer to the last.

Rintelen's application was made to the Department of Justice on Sept 25. It set forth in detail his argument as to the dates and periods of his sentences, and added a petition for "a complete pardon" besides release. It set forth that Rintelen, "an officer (rank, Captain) in the German Navy," had been "on duty" in this country during 1915—an interesting detail in view of the disavowal made through Count von Bernstorff—the inference being that what he did during that time was not of his own choice but in obedience to orders.

It added that the prisoner had a family in Germany which he had not seen for six years, "that not a life was lost and no real harm resulted from his activities in this country," and finally "that he is truly repentant."

Two months to the day from the filing of the petition Rintelen was free and the country was asking. Why?

The Attorney General's Answer.

The answer was made through various channels. In complete detail it was made by the Attorney General himself to the writer on Dec. 8.

"There is no mystery about this," said Mr. Palmer, "except the mystery that the newspapers themselves have made. They all said, upon the announcement from this office on Nov. 24, that Rintelen's sentence had been commuted. Most of them said in their headlines that he had

The Choice Prizes of Life Are Won by the Strong and Healthy

The weak, soft, flabby-muscled—those who are deficient in vigor and vital force—have ever had to suffer the humiliation of being ruthlessly shoved aside by their stronger rivals.

A clear, ruddy complexion; bright eyes; hardened muscles; and a well knit-together body of elastic step and sway, constitute a trump card in any game—whether of love or business.

If you feel that you are outclassed, lacking the stamina to stand up and claim your own, don't delay another day in commencing to take

LYKO

The Great General Tonic

It will restore that confidence you need to combat the ever-opposing forces of social and business life; it will give you the heart and spirit to do and the courage to challenge the world to your right to a place in the Sun, because it will rebuild your physical strength and mental power to a state of perfect health, strengthening your run-down system with better nourishment because of its great aid to digestion. "LYKO" is a refreshing appetizer and an exceptional general tonic in those subnormal conditions of the physical and nervous systems, such as muscular and mental fatigue, nervous exhaustion, general weakness, or debility following a protracted illness or the result of a wasting disease. been 'pardoned,' but not one of them carried a statement made by me at the time of the original announcement which made clear the whole circumstances of the matter. My statement wasn't news, so it was not printed, and so there has come the mystery you speak of.

The records of the Washington Bureau of The World do not show that any such statement was received. The records of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press do not show that any such statement was received, and its service for the night of Nov. 24 carried neither statement nor reference to it.

Mr. Palmer was asked what this statement set forth. He gave over then the text of his recommendation for commutation. This, under the heading "In the Matter of the Application for Pardon of Franz Rintelen, Alias Franz von Rintelen," reviews his three convictions and three sentences, then continues:

"There was a full inquiry into the case and a report to me by Assistant Attorney-General Robert P. Stewart. On this I made the recommendation to the President, on which he acted. The facts shown by this inquiry were these:

"From the court records it appears that the first sentence above mentioned was treated by the jail and prison authorities as not commencing to run until Dec. 4, 1917, so that under the aggregate of the three sentences, less good behavior time, he would not be entitled to be released from the penitentiary until March 11, 1921.

"It is the petitioner's contention, however, which appears to be borne out by investigation conducted by this department, that the first sentence began to run May 21, 1917, instead of Dec. 4, 1917, as stated in the altered commitment. This particular case was prosecuted by Mr. Isaac R. Oeland as a special assistant to the Attorney General. Mr. Oeland is a lawyer of high standing and strict integrity and his statements are in every way worthy of entire credence. He states in a letter addressed by him to me under date of the 18th inst. as follows:

" 'I was present in court when Rintelen was sentenced, and my recollection is that his sentence was to begin to run from May 21, 1917.

" 'Mr. Chambers has further called my attention to the fact that a commitment appears in the Marshal's office under date of Dec. 4, 1917, and that there is a notation on this commitment that sentence begins Dec. 4, 1917. I do not know how this notation came to be made, but I feel sure the same is an error.'

"On the whole record it seems to be in the interest of justice that petitioner should be allowed credit from May 21, 1917, to Dec. 4, 1917, practically seven months, inasmuch as he was in custody during the period and the entire subsequent period to date. If allowed credit for this period his aggregate sentences would have expired on Oct. 18, 1920, and this would have included a period of 30 days' imprisonment for the nonpayment of the fine assessed against him.

"I, therefore, recommend that his sentence be commuted to expire at once, but as under the law he is subject to deportation immediately upon his release he desires to be permitted to leave the country voluntarily at his own expense after he shall have had an opportunity to close up certain personal matters here. This, he indicates, will require a week or two. The commutation of his sentence, therefore, should be conditioned upon his departing from the United States for Germany not later than Jan. 1, 1921, and should require that he execute to the United States a bond in the penal sum of $5000 with sureties to be approved by the Attorney-General guaranteeing performance of the above condition."

Mr. Palmer was then asked:

"Was commutation the only way in which this 'error' of which Judge Oeland speaks could be corrected? 'Commutation' means 'shortening' to most people, and this is one of the principal reasons for the discussion of this case that has been going on."

"I inquired especially about that," replied Mr. Palmer, "and it seemed that commutation was the direct road to the end sought. I was reluctant to direct the Warden at Atlanta to terminate the sentence except in accordance with the text of the commitment he held. It might easily have established an undesirable precedent. I have no concern in whether this man is a German or not; I am only concerned in doing justice."

"Why was Rintelen not made liable to deportation as the law provides for such convicts?"

"Deportation is a long process and uncertain of accomplishment. Permitting him to go voluntarily meant quicker action in getting him out of the country."

"Doesn't this way leave Rintelen free to return to the United States whenever he pleases, while deportation would automatically bar him from admission?"

"Why all this fuss about this case, anyhow? Queries have been coming in from everywhere about it."

"Well, Rintelen is the first conspicuous German convicted during the war to be freed."

"Not at all, not at all. I paroled—paroled—von Bopp and von Shack from Leavenworth the other day and there was no fuss about them."

(Franz von Bopp, Consul-General at San Francisco, and Baron Eckhard von Schack, Vice Consul-General, were sentenced to five years' imprisonment on May 9, 1916, for violation of neutrality. They were released on parole the third week in October.)

"A transcript of the application was sent to all concerned through the routine channels," Mr. Palmer then explained, "and they replied upon the terms of the application. It was from the complete record of the facts in the case and these replies that I made my recommendation."

Brushing your teeth will not save them

—if you neglect your gums

Although the daily tooth-brushing is nowadays a universal habit, men and women of middle age in ever-increasing numbers develop pyorrhea. And no matter how white and clean your teeth may be, you may lose them if pyorrhea develops through gum neglect.

Soft, sore, bleeding or receding gums are the early symptoms of pyorrhea. Its cause is irritation and infection of the gum tissue. This infection—if neglected—spreads to the bony root sockets which hold the teeth in place. Then the teeth loosen, fall out or must be extracted.

Keeping your gums healthy is the only way to prevent or check pyorrhea. Pyorrhocide Powder does keep the gums healthy; and aids in restoring them to health if pyorrhea has developed.

Pyorrhocide Powder is medicated with Dentinol, a germicidal and healing agent used by the leaders of the dental profession in the treatment of pyorrhea at the dentist's chair. It is the only dentifrice whose value in treating and preventing pyorrhea has been proved in clinics devoted exclusively to this phase of oral prophylaxis.

Used daily, Pyorrhocide Powder tones up the gums and also cleans and polishes the teeth. It removes the mucoid films which harden and form tartar, thus doing away with the chief cause of pyorrhea.

The economical dollar package contains six months' supply. At all druggists and dental supply houses.

Free trial package to prove what real gum health means

Send coupon for free sample of Pyorrhocide Powder. Note how it leaves a refreshed, cleanly feeling of the teeth and gums long after brushing. To you who have used other dentifrices, it will prove a revelation. We will also send our educational booklet on the Prevention and Treatment of Pyorrhea.

1800 AUSTRIANS THANK AMERICANS FOR LIVES

Former Prisoners Tell How Men of 27th Infantry Saved Camp, in Grip of Influenza.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 29.—Eighteen hundred Austro-Hungarians, prisoners of war in East Siberia, thank American officers of the Twenty-seventh Infantry, part of the American Expeditionary Force which served there, for their lives, health and what happiness a prison camp can give.

Their spokesman, Lieut.-Col. Ferdinand Reder, formerly of the Austro-Hungarian army, told the Associated Press correspondent he felt it his duty, upon arriving here after six years in the prison camp of Krasnaja Rjetschka, near Khabarovsk, to tell of the American aid.

"We owe our lives to the American officers of the Twenty-seventh Infantry Regiment, to Col. C. H. Morrow, Capt. E. Larkins, Surgeon Burdett and Lieut. John James," said Col. Reder.

Influenza in Camp.

"Influenza broke out in our camp in October, 1918. The physical condition of the prisoners was at that time so reduced that the disease spread with frightful rapidity. Hardly anyone was spared, and there soon were 800 serious cases. No medicines were available. The shortage of food was more and more terrible and we were all convinced our camp would soon be one vast cemetery without a living soul to tell the sad tale.

"At this horrible pass, when we were all a prey to despair, Col. Morrow and "E" Company of the Twenty-seventh Infantry Regiment, under the command of Capt. Larkins, arrived and took charge of our camp. The Americans brought provisions for a month and soon our miserable hospital was transformed into a model establishment, and the epidemic was quelled.

"Made Life Worth Living."

"Col. Morrow then set about making our lives worth living. Workshops of all sorts were arranged, schools opened, a library, a theater, baths and a coffee house were built and grounds for every kind of sport were laid out.

"After all those weary years we felt raised to the dignity of manhood again. And now we should like all the world to know that we owe our lives, our health and happiness, our power for good in this world to the noble American officers of the Twenty-seventh Regiment, to the great American nation."

LESSONS ON THRIFT PART OF SCHOOL DAILY PROGRAM

Plan to Have Children of Eighth Federal Reserve District Start "Success Funds."

A big thrift program for school children of the Eighth Federal Reserve District is planned. There are now over 125,000 school children in Missouri, Arkansas and Kentucky, the three states comprised in the district, who are regular purchasers of thrift stamps through their school savings societies, and it is hoped to greatly increase the number and amount of their purchases next year. Regular lessons on thrift are included as part of the school daily programs in many towns of the district, lesson schedules being prepared by the Savings Division.

It is the plan of the Government to have every child start "a success fund," so that by saving and purchasing the thrift stamps he might have money put away which would help with a college course or serve as a stepping stone for business on leaving school. The habit of careful saving and investment in Government funds formed by the children is considered of even greater importance than the actual money saved.

The new issue of $1 savings stamps which will start in January will interest adults who do not care for the 25-cent thrift stamps. The dollar stamps are exchangeable when sufficient numbers have been bought for the $5 savings stamp or the new $25 Treasury savings certificate, which will be another new issue the Savings Division will push next year.

CHICKEN SERVED 365 DAYS IN YEAR AT PORT AU PRINCE HOTEL

Guests Desiring Bath Shown to Little House 50 Feet Away, Where Shower Can Be Had.

By the Associated Press.

PORT AU PRINCE, Dec. 18.—Labor and living are cheap in Haiti. There is a hotel in Port au Prince, rated as the best, that charges only $4 a day for a room and three square meals. True, the rooms are small, with the ancient washbowl and unlockable, with concrete floors and rugless, but they are clean and comforable. The same meals could not be obtained anywhere in the United States at double the price. Luncheon is a regular dinner, and dinner is much like an eight-course feast. There is fruit in abundance in Haiti, and a boy standing on the front porch, overlooking the sea, often picks the breakfast oranges. The favorite dish is the chicken, served 365 days in the year without the least variation. Nobody ever wants to see a chicken after staying three weeks in Haiti.

But Haiti has not reached the point where it may bid for tourist travel. A man, stopping at the best hotel here for the first time, feels rather foolish when he asks for room and bath and is conducted to a little house 50 feet away, where one may get a shower. It's a hard life for women.

The best, however, is in sharp contrast with the worst, for the laborer gets 20 cents a day, and thousands of natives live only on fruit that grows wild everywhere, the year round, like the roses.

The Doctor's Advice

By Dr. Lewis Baker

"Actor" writes: "A friend informs me that you recommend a sure treatment for dandruff and falling hair. Please answer at once."

Answer: The local treatment I always advise is plain yellow Minyol—it is quickly effective.

"Mrs. Belle C." writes: "I am informed that I have kidney trouble and that it is fast approaching a serious stage. What would you prescribe?"

Answer: If your symptoms are the usual ones, such as puffs under the eyes, swelling ankles, accompanied by headaches, pains, fever, chills, etc., I would advise the immediate use of Balmwort Tablets, a very fine remedy for such difficulties sold in sealed tubes with full directions for self-administration.

"Soldier" writes: "I am an ex-soldier and my system is all run down. Nervous, irritable, pale, listless, fickle appetite, and I want to be ambitious like I was a few years ago."

Answer: The high-grade tonic properties in Cadomene tablets urges me to suggest their use in your case. I have witnessed remarkable restorations from their use.

"Modern" writes: "Would you advise Arbolone tablets for obesity?"

Answer: Yes!

"Fond Mother" writes: "Please recommend a first-class cough medicine free from opiates and suitable for adults and children."

Answer: Obtain from druggist a 2¼-oz. package of concentrated essence Mentho-Laxene. With homemade sugar syrup this makes a full pint. Directions to make and take are with each package. There is nothing better or cheaper.

"Young Wife" writes: "I thank you, oh, so, much, for telling me what to do to increase my weight. I have gained just twenty-one pounds in three months and the Hypo-Nuclane tablets you advised are wonderful. My sister was skeptical, but now she it taking them and also gaining weight.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

J. E. CANNADAY, M. D., 1273 Court Bk., Sedalia, Mo.

Send this notice to some poor sufferer from eczema. It will be a kind act by you.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card-holders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

OIL-FIELD DEVELOPMENT AND PETROLEUM MINING, By A. B. Thompson. A much more comprehensive work than his earlier "Petroleum Mining." This book goes into both the engineering and geological phases of the industry in all countries. With maps and charts.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS AT WORK, by A. B.Sweetser. A member of the American peace commission in Paris, of the provisional secretariat in London, and on the staff of the International Labor Conference at its first gathering in Washington, the author presents the league as a "new link in the chain of human relationships made imperatively necessary by the annihilation of distance as a barrier between states.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE AND THE WAR, by W. Roch. Follows in detail his attitude toward Germany previous to the war and those activities which led his friends to declare when the armistice was signed that Lloyd-George had won the war.

SERVICE AT COST PLANS, by H. C. Clark. Laws, ordinances and conditions under which "service at cost" is administered by several companies, demonstrating the relation which should exist between the public and private capital engaged in public service.

THE CONNECTICUT WITS AND OTHER ESSAYS, by H. A. Beers. Prof. Beers of Yale is one of the few remaining writers who reflects the atmosphere of the days of Emerson. The essays on Thackeray, Milton, Riley, on drama and letter writing, and on a half dozen other topics, are charming bits of literary history.

POINTS OF FRICTION, by Agnes Repplier. A collection of essays reprinted from various magazines, on topics of the day.

LADY GEORGIANA ADELAIDE (RUSSELL) PEEL. Compiled by Ethel Peel. Lady Georgiana Peel's intimate association with the life of celebrated people of the day of Queen Victoria gives to the book the atmosphere of the most attractive side of England's social life.

ELIZABETHIAN ULSTER, by Lord Ernest Hamilton. The continuous strife between the chieftains of Ulster and the other sections of Ireland is discussed in detail, throwing light upon conditions found in later times.

THE MAINTENANCE OF PEACE, by S. C. Vestal. Lieutenant-Colonel Vestal believes in military preparedness. His conclusions are the exact opposite of those urged by pacifists, and involve dependence upon force, for internal peace, and as assurance of the readiness of nations to give aid to each other in case of attack.

Nov. 20 New Holiday in Mexico.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 18.—Mexico has a new holiday to add to the many already observed. Congress has decreed that Nov. 20 shall be a legal holiday, commemorating the revolt of Francisco V. Madero against the Huerta regime.

BREAKS WINDOW AS PROTEST AGAINST DISPLAY OF GEMS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 18.—An elderly man, well dressed and of distinguished appearance, smashed the window of one of the most fashionable jewelry shops in Paris on the rue Saint Honore yesterday with his heavy gold-headed cane. He made no attempt to gather in any of the gems. An angry crowd gathered in a few seconds and surrounded the man while the shop proprietor went for a gendarme.

"Stand back!" shouted the old man, swinging his cane. "This is the man you should lynch," pointing to the sign on the door of the shop, bearing the proprietor's name. "It is immoral in these times of stress and misery to expose in a window such articles for sale.

"There is the cause of all the trouble," he ended, pointing to an enormous diamond, which still remained in the window. "Look at the price tag on it." They did. The tag bore the words: "Price, 1,000,000 francs." (normally $200,000.)

As the proprietor and a gendarme came into view the crowd opened up and the elderly man vanished.

LAST WEEK FOR SALE OF CHRISTMAS SEALS

Women in Charge of Work Plan to Put Forth Extra Efforts.

The Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis will close its 1920 sale of Christmas seals on Christmas eve, and will speed up every line of the sale during the few days remaining. Mrs. W. T. Donovan and her committee of the Catholic Women's League, who are in charge of the selling force of girls at Union Station, have planned for almost double the number of matrons and girls on each of the three "shifts" at the station to take care of the last-minute Christmas rush of travelers through Union Station.

Mrs. William Dee Becker and her helpers in all the postoffice stations also are enlisting additional workers who will not only sell the little Christmas stickers to persons mailing their Christmas bundles this week, but will assist them in placing the seals artistically on the bundles, cards and other mail sent through any of the stations. A corps of more than 300 women will be engaged in this phase of the seal sale alone.

Friday will be City Club day for the sale of seals. Mrs. A. G. Wichman and a group of girls will invade the club during its annual Christmas frolic and will take part in that frolic by showing the men how to help "put over" health in St. Louis. Health bonds, holiday buttons and seals will be sold there. Mrs. Wichman's assistants will be Misses Florence Hanna, Maude Kirkpatrick, Alice and Mildred Kernan, Beulah Childers, Ann Flannigan and Margaret Judge.

To assist the educational side of the sale the Tuberculosis Society conducted last week a city and county wide health week, during which the subject of health as a community problem was impressed upon the public in every possible way. Most of the large organizations of the city, civic, religious, commercial and professional, assisted this campaign by giving space for speakers from the Tuberculosis Society on their program, and by distributing health literature to their members. Among the organizations co-operating were the Chamber of Commerce, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Women's Advertising Club, Kiwanis Club, Electrical Board of Trade, Advertising Club, Junior Advertising Club, Optimists' Club, Salesmanagers' Bureau, Town Club, Methodist Ministers' Association, Ministerial Association of the M. E. Church, South, Congregational Association, Church Federation of St. Louis.

The clergy of the city also are taking part in the Health Week program by talks from their pulpits and distribution of literature at their services today, which has been designated as Health Sunday.

Among the pastors who will give talks today are Rabbi Samuel Thurman, United Hebrew Temple; Rabbi Leon Harrison, Temple Israel; Percival Chubb, Ethical Society; the Rev. Ivan Lee Holt, St. John's M. E. South; the Rev. Otto Press, St. Paul's Chapel; the Rev. M. H. Markley, Scruggs Memorial; the Rev. H. A. Meyer, St. Louis Park Baptist; the Rev. A. Pasquita, First Italian Baptist; the Rev. S. H. Woodrow, Pilgrim Congregational; the Rev. F. W. Wahl, Eden German M. E.; the Rev. William B. Lampe, West Presbyterian; the Rev. H. L. Reader, Webster Groves Baptist; the Rev. F. C. Reiner, Greeley Memorial; the Rev. Henry W. Mizner, St. Stephen's Mission; the Rev. W. D. Sidman, Fry Memorial; the Rev. Theo. Haefele, St. John's Evangelical; the Rev. E. S. White, Holy Communion; the Rev. P. G. Van Zandt, West Park Baptist; the Rev. R. L. Evans, Sutter Avenue Presbyterian; the Rev. George A. Percival, Harney Heights Presbyterian; the Rev. Joseph W. George, First Congregational; the Rev. John W. Day, Church of the Messiah; the Rev. Edmund Duckworth, Church of the Redeemer; the Rev. H. T. Bahnsen, Trinity Evangelical; the Rev. Edward N. Goff, Covenant Presbyterian; the Rev. George Henry Coman, Immanuel Congregational; the Rev. John Best, Hope Congregational; the Rev. William E. Wheeler, St. Mark's Lutheran; the Rev. J. L. Gadell, St. Engelbert's Catholic; the Rev. James Thomas Coffey, St. Leo's Catholic; the Rev. J. J. Thomson, St. Mary Magdalen's Catholic; the Rev. P. J. Dooley, Church of the Sacred Heart; Dean Carroll M. Davis, Christ Church Cathedral; the Rev. Paul E. Nelson, Boyle Memorial; the Rev. R. E. Foard, Christy Memorial; the Rev. H. Bartels, St. John's Lutheran; the Rev. J. J. McGlynn, St. Rose's Catholic; the Rev. W. L. Shea, Church of the Assumption; the Rev. J. Courtney Jones, Emanuel Episcopal; the Rev. R. D. S. Putney, St. Philip's Episcopal; the Rev. John Nugent, St. Catherine's Catholic; the Rev. George R. Dodson, Church of the Unity; the Rev. H. C. Combs, Compton Heights Baptist.

The Rev. R. D. S. Putney of St. Philip's Episcopal Church will give over his entire evening service to the Health Sunday program, and will present an illustrated talk on the city-wide tuberculosis program.

Just five days—

Just five days left before Christmas! Just five days in which to complete your Christmas shopping! And, of course, you still have one or two gifts to buy. Most everyone has. Perhaps you put off buying them because you didn't know just what to get. Have you considered Furniture? Our two stores are replete with splendid gift suggestions—for men, for women, for children, and for the family—gifts that are charming in appearance and that have the added charm of usefulness. A few are mentioned here. Many more, of equal attractiveness, will reveal themselves to you when you come in.

For Wife or Mother

The Hoosier

The purpose of the Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet is to emancipate womankind from household drudgery—to change kitchen work from a burden to a pleasant and easily accomplished task. And the fact that the Hoosier has been welcomed into more than two million American homes proves that it is accomplishing that purpose.

The Hoosier is like a servant in the kitchen

A silent, uncomplaining servant. It holds all needed kitchen utensils and most of the everyday kitchen supplies, puts them all within easy reach, makes them easy to put away. It saves hours of time and miles of steps for the housewife every week.

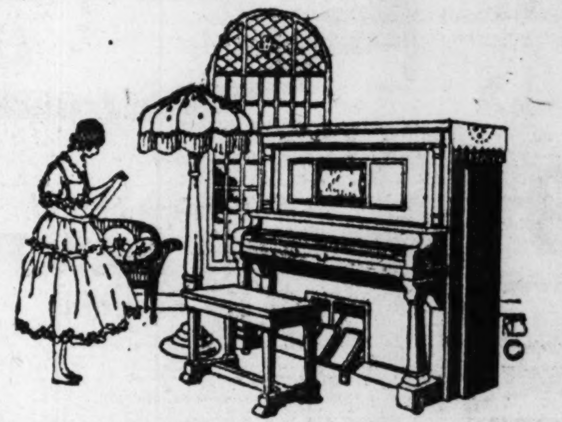
It's easy to give a Hoosier

Pay down just one dollar, and the Hoosier you select will be delivered to your home. Then the balance can be taken care of in convenient monthly payments.

$1.00 Delivers Your Hoosier

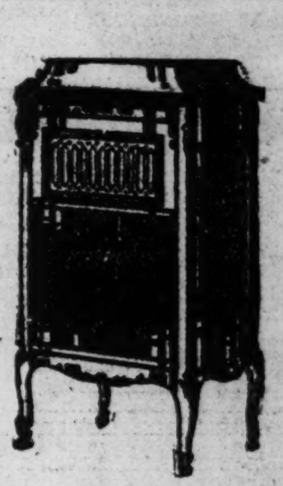
All Our Cedar Chests Are Offered at* 1/4 Off *The Regular Prices

Cedar Chests are beautiful, they endure, they protect furs and fine clothes from dust and moths—these qualities win feminine appreciation. Every woman who hasn't one, wants one. Of that you may be sure. Our stock of Cedar Chests is complete and affords an unusually wide range of choice. Dozens of splendid models await your selection—both plain and copper-bound—all made of genuine Tennessee red cedar.



The Kauffmann Player-Piano

The Kauffmann is a beautifully finished Player-Piano, worthy of a place in any home. It is a full 88-note Player with remarkable splendor of tone and wonderful responsiveness of action. Among its features are a transposing device, automatic sustaining pedal and an adjustable re-wind spool. Choice of oak, walnut or mahogany case. Easy payment terms—no interest.



For Your Family

The Pathe

In nothing is the spirit of Christmas better expressed than in music. No gift is more welcome nor more appropriate to the season than the gift of music. A Pathe Phonograph is something that every member of your family will enjoy—on Christmas day and every day in the New Year.

Why Should You Choose the Pathe?

Because no Phonograph is better, and because no other is quite so convenient. The Pathe has no superior in tone quality. It plays all makes of records perfectly. And you never have to change the needle. It has no needle. Instead, its reproducing point is a tiny sapphire ball that never wears out. And this tiny ball can't rip or scratch your records. Pathe prices, $50 to $1000. Easy terms if you want them.

$25 Worth of Records FREE With Every Cabinet Pathe

Kitchen Table and Chair $12.75

Christmas can add to the beauty of even the kitchen. Here we have a Table and Chair, both beautifully enameled in white, that will add to the appearance of any kitchen. The table has a white porcelain top. Both pieces for $12.75—a truly practical gift.

Wing Rockers $23.75

Gracefully modeled and strongly built of solid mahogany in the desirable dull rubbed finish. Seat and back are handwoven of brown cane. An unusually good value and an enduring and handsome gift.

Fibre Rockers $14.75

An attractively designed Rocker, made of durable fibre and with comfortable spring seat. Both the seat and the back are covered with cheerily patterned cretonne. Splendid for living room, sun parlor or bedroom.

Electric Boudoir Lamp $3.50

An added note of cheeriness for Milady's boudoir—if you give her one of these Lamps. Base is of solid mahogany; shade of silk in blue, rose or gold. Lamp is 18 inches high and is complete with cord, plug and socket.

For the Kiddies

You'll find a lot of things here that the youngsters will hail with delight. Go-Carts and Carriages for little sister's dollies; Chairs and Rockers for children's use; Doll Furniture, too—miniature Beds, Dressers and a hundred other things.

PLAN WASHINGTON U. MEMORIAL

Bronze Tablet to Dead Soldiers to Be First Step.

A bronze memorial tablet, containing the names of the Washington University men who lost their lives in the recent war is to be the first stey toward an imposing memorial building on the University campus.

It is expected that the tablet will be ready for unveiling before the commencement in June. It is to have a place in one of the existing buildings until its permanent place in the memorial structure is ready. There is a campaign in progress to enroll every student, past and present, also members of the faculty, in the memorial organization.

WHAT HOLDS A WOMAN BACK IN LIFE

—Is it because man has more iron in his blood?

Why lack of iron brings on both PHYSICAL and MENTAL WEAKNESS and often gives a woman an aged, haggard appearance.

Psychological experiments have shown that WOMAN IS MAN'S EQUAL IN TESTS OF INTELLIGENCE, yet man usually beats her at most everything. The best cooks, the greatest scientists, architects or physicians are as a rule men.

Yet mental and brain power tests still show man has no advantage, then why his apparent superiority? It is a well established fact that WOMEN ARE GENERALLY MORE ANAEMIC THAN MEN, more of them suffer from iron-starvation of the blood.

Then is it, after all, "IRON" that GIVES US THE "STRENGTH OF WILL," FORCE AND ENERGY TO GO AHEAD AND WIN? We know that lack of iron brings on a devitalizing weakness and saps both our bodily and mental vigor.

WOMEN UNDOUBTEDLY HAVE THE INTELLIGENCE AND MENTAL CAPACITY to accomplish great things but we believe that they do not back up their mentality with the proper physical force and energy. Neither your body or your brain can work right on pale, thin, watery blood, THERE ARE 30,000,000,000,000 RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES IN YOUR BLOOD AND EACH ONE MUST HAVE IRON.

Look out Mr Man, don't laugh. Scientists have shown that women can do the intellectual or brain power tests just as well as you can and are therefore just as smart.

It is really only lack of physical force that often holds her back in life. It is true that you, Mr. Man, have more iron in your blood as a rule and this gives you an advantage, but one day woman may wake up and fill her blood with strength-giving iron — this will not only increase her bodily strength but her mental vigor as well, so look out, Mr. Man.

IRON STARVATION

Women especially need iron more than men as their indoor life, duties of motherhood, worry and nervous strain that they are under, saps the iron from their blood and renders them more anaemic.

Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living cells and tissue. Without it, nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—you do not get the strength out of it. It is astonishing how very few women, after thirty years of age, have sufficient iron in their blood and it is almost equally surprising how many girls are afflicted in the same way. Lack of iron not only brings on a devitalizing weakness but it makes a woman look old very quickly as it takes away the youthful freshness from her lips and cheeks and the sparkle and life from her eyes and often gives her face a haggard, "drawn" look.

When you get up feeling tired in the morning; when you find yourself nervous, irritable and easily upset; or you suffer from headaches, pains across the back, shortness of breath or heart palpitation; when you can no longer do your day's work without being all fagged out at night, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration or until in your weakened condition you contract some serious disease, but take some organic iron like Nuxated Iron at once to help enrich your blood and revitalize your worn-out, exhausted nerves. But be sure the iron you take is organic Nuxated Iron and not metallic iron which people usually take and which is made merely by the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Organic Nuxated Iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. You can even eat it if you wish. It often increases your bodily and mental vigor, strength and endurance in two weeks' time. Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "Nuxated" on every package. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. For sale by all druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD-GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

PRISONERS NEVER ESCAPE THOUGH GATE IS ALWAYS OPEN

Honor System in Vogue Among Convict Workers at Michigan Penitentiary Factory.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSON, Mich., Dec. 18.—"Don't cut the wire or climb the fence. If you want to run away, use the gate."

This is the sign hung on the fence at the brick and tile factory conducted by the Michigan State penitentiary and that is a constant reminder of the honor system in vogue at the prison.

The brick and tile factory is located 18 miles northwest of the prison and 95 "honor men" are employed. There is no watchman, the superintendent and a number of yard foremen being the only "free" men in the institution. A number of the prisoners are serving life sentences.

A railroad runs within 200 yards of the prison property and freight trains stop nearby to take water. Allowed to come and go almost at will, but few of the prisoners have left the property, despite the ideal chances offered for escape. There have been no escapes at the factory for the past four months. A wire fence incloses the property but the gates are left open day and night.

Inmates at the institution virtually govern themselves. About eight months ago, or soon after the factory was put in operation, one of the men escaped and later was caught. He was returned to the factory and asked to address a mass meeting of the inmates. The permission was granted him and he proposed an "honor club" among the prisoners that would serve to enhance the honor system. Members of the club, under its by-laws, were to aid one another in living up to the honor system. The club was formed and the inmate who escaped was elected president.

The club named committees whose function it is to settle disputes among the men and promote good fellowship and understanding between prison officials and inmates.

"The sign on the gate appeals to the honor of the men," said Warden Harry L. Hulburt of the prison. "They know we trust them and but few men will violate that trust."

CHRISTMAS APPEAL TO "CARL"

An appeal for "Carl of Louisville, Ky.," to communicate with his family during the Christmas holidays has been received by the Post-Dispatch in the following letter:

"Carl: We all miss you very, very much. Christmas is almost here, and unless you are with us it will not be a happy one. Please, Carl, let us hear from you. Let us know where you are. Don't stay away any longer, but come home for Christmas. Everything will be all right. E. P. D., Louisville, Ky."

URGES LAW TO STOP FOREST DEVASTATION

U. S. Forester in Report Says U. S. Will Soon Be Dependent on Pacific Coast for Lumber.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Forests east of the Rocky Mountains are being devastated so rapidly by cutting and burning that the nation soon will be dependent for the bulk of its construction lumber upon the forests of the Pacific Coast, William B. Greeley, United States Forester, declares in his annual report, made public today. The situation Greeley says, is one that affects the public welfare of the entire country, and he urges a Federal law to stop the devastation of the remaining forests, and to put the idle forest lands at work.

"Two-thirds of the original forests of the United States have been culled, cut-over, or burnt, and three-fifths of their merchantable timber is gone," said Greeley. "The country is taking about 26,000,000,000 cubic feet of wood annually from its forests, and is growing about 6,000,000,000 cubic feet. We are cutting timber of every class, even trees too small for the sawmill, much faster than they are being replaced in our forests. There are still large quantities of timber in the United States, but they are not in the right place.

Sixty-one per cent of what is left lies west of the Great Plains, far from the bulk of our population, agriculture and manufactures. The exhaustion of one forested section after another in the Eastern states has been reflected in rising transportation costs.

"The distance between the average sawmill and the average home builder is steadily increasing, and we shall soon be dependent for the bulk of our construction lumber upon the forests of the Pacific Coast. These conditions have had a vital bearing upon the high cost of lumber, which, during the year, reached a prohibitive figure for many uses, and checked the building of homes which is so urgently needed.

Used Up Our Forests.

"We have used up our forests without growing new ones. At the bottom of the whole problem is idle forest land. The United States contains 326,000,000 acres of cut-over and denuded forests containing no saw timber; 81,000,000 acres of this have been completely devastated by forest fires and methods of cutting which destroy or prevent new timber growth. The area of idle or largely idle land is being increased by from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 acres annually as the cutting and burning of forests continue.

"To stop the devastation and put idle lands to work the first step must be the enactment of a Federal law whose two chief provisions are (1) a comprehensive plan of Federal cooperation with the states in fire prevention and the development of forestry practice, and (2) extension of the national forests through purchases, through the inclusion of other timber lands now in Federal ownership and through exchange."

National Forestry Policy.

Speaking of a national forestry policy, Mr. Greeley said the program laid down by Col. Graves had been further developed.

"This program," he said, "is based on the conviction that the problem of halting forest devastation is fundamentally a national, not a local, problem, and must be faced and handled as such. At the same time it is felt that the speediest, surest and most equitable action can be secured through dependence on the police powers of the states for the enforcement of such reasonable requirements as should be made of private owners and on the State Governments for providing organized protection of private lands against fires.

"Because the problem itself is essentially national—that is one affecting the public welfare of the entire country and requiring to be attacked as a whole, not piecemeal—both Federal leadership and a large measure of Federal aid are obligatory. It should be obligatory upon private owners to apply the safeguards necessary to prevent devastation. There is a practical unanimity of agreement that the first and most essential step is a nation-wide protection from forest fires, applicable to all classes of forest land and borne jointly by the landowners and the public."

GERMAN MINERS DEMAND THE SOCIALIZATION OF COAL FIELDS

Chancellor Notified of Intent to Try to Force Law Through the Reichstag.

By the Associated Press.

BOOHUM, Germany, Dec. 18.—The General Committee of the German Coal Miners' Federation has notified Chancellor Fehrenbach that they intend to force through the Reichstag a law for the socialization of the national coal fields.

In an open letter to the Chancellor the committee called upon the Government to make an unequivocal declaration on the issue. The miners also demanded to know how soon the Government proposes to submit to the Reichstag the draft of the new law.

The miners' letter to the Chancellor sets forth that, in view of the promise given to the miners by the Government last March and in order to fulfill the Spa agreement and supply the home demands for fuel, the miners have willingly agreed to work overtime in order to stimulate production.

They now charge the Government with procrastination, and allege that they have been deceived in the deliberations carried on by the Socialization Commission and the conference in committee sessions of the Imperial Economic Council.

BOOKS SAID TO BE A FACTOR IN RESTORING PATIENT'S HEALTH

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Dec. 18.—Sioux City's hospital library service has proven that books may be truly said to possess healing qualities. Physicians state that books have proven to be a factor in restoring the health of patients.

Sioux City is the pioneer in this service, which has received the recognition of the greatest hospitals and public libraries in the country. The service was originated by C. W. Sumner, city librarian.

Twice a week the little library trucks that are constructed after much the same plan as the modern tea wagon visit the room of each patient able to read in each of the six hospitals in the city. The work is under the supervision of a trained librarian. Hospital librarians that know a patient's reading wants almost better than he does himself are the welcomed visitors on "library days." With true salesmanship, they demonstrate their wares, "feel" the situation and make suggestions that fit the "psychological moment."

The patient's interest in something outside himself is aroused. The librarian's visit is a diversion; the book or magazine selected is a subject of interest after the librarian leaves, and then the nurse comes in and finds her patient satisfied and happy. The restless spirit that often cannot be subdued in the convalescent patient is absent.

From 2000 to 3000 books are circulated monthly and each does its work in keeping up the patient's morale.

Each hospital has its own library and truck. The books are fumigated regularly and are never allowed in rooms where contagious disease is present. The books for the service were donated by the people of Sioux City.

IRISH UNITY CERTAIN TO COME FROM HOME RULE LAW, SAYS BRITISH LIBERAL

American Correspondent of London Daily News Predicts Realization of Erin's Essential Aspirations From Bill That Became Effective Yesterday.

By P. W. Wilson.

American Correspondent of the London Daily News and Former Member of Parliament.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.

BY agreement of Mr. Lloyd George on the one hand and Mr. De Valera on the other, the United Kingdom and especially Ireland is today in the throes of civil war. This war is none the less cruel, as events in Cork have luridly revealed, because it is what Spaniards in irony call guerilla—a little war—which only mean that on both sides the rules of war are ignored. So terrible is guerilla warfare that martial law is actually welcomed in the southwest of Ireland as an alleviation.

Recognizing these facts to the full, I propose, however, to look the future in the face. Feelings are fearfully embittered, but two things are certain—first, that the Sinn Fein army is being either scattered or interned, much as the Boer forces were interned in the concluding stages of the South African war; and, secondly, that the Government home rule bill has passed both houses, and will proceed, after amendments are arranged, to the King for royal assent.

Writing, as I always do on Ireland, with one end and only one end in view, namely a peace honorable to both sides, I shall say nothing at all about the responsibility for all the needless suffering recorded in the last six months, which history will award to the various parties concerned. Nor shall I enter into the details of the Lloyd George bill (effective yesterday), for it is not on details that the measure is to be judged and in any case, under the British parliamentary constitution, the details can always be adjusted, as they were in South Africa.

The two points that matter about the bill are first that it denies or postpones a separate and independent Irish sovereignty, and secondly that it defers the great hope for which Parnell and Redmond labored, namely Irish unity under one legislature and cabinet at Dublin. For these reasons, many British Liberals declare with Mr. Asquith that the measure is valueless—a mere pill to cure an earthquake. To that unrelieved pessimism, I am not prepared myself to surrender.

Position of Government.

In considering the future, it is essential to estimate the position of the Lloyd George Government. It is fiercely attacked from many sides. But we must assume, whether we regret it or not, that the nation will rally, as nations always do, to the executive, in a moment of danger. The terrorists have played into Lloyd George's hands, and as long as he remains in power, he will insist on carrying through his policy, which is, on the one hand, forcible suppression of Sinn Fein, and on the other hand, the creation of twin parliaments. In Britain's Irish policy there has been infinite vacillation. But the idea now is a consistent line, whatever happens.

Ulster accepts the bill and will set up her Parliament at Belfast. While the Carsonites there will be in power, they will be faced for the first time by strong Labor and Catholic minorities. Long dormant industrial abuses will be brought to light. Realities will supplant, or at least supplement, sectarian passion and prejudice. And a very different conception of "Ulster" is likely to emerge. I am one who believes that the cure for extremes is discussion. An Ulster Parliament will kill the Orange faction.

But will the second parliament arise in Dublin? In the south and west, hitherto, what is called "the partition and plunder" act has been ridiculed. Partition it certainly is, for the time being, but plunder—that is a rhetorical embellishment. All that money can do to heal wounds is or may be provided for in the measure.

There were two horns to the British dilemma over this Dublin parliament. If freely elected, it would simply be the Dail Eirean over again—that is one. If, on the other hand, the parliament be elected under any kind of compulsion, it would be merely a sham. Therefore, it has been argued, unless Britain is prepared to grant independence outright it is useless for her to concede any kind of parliament for Sinn Fein Ireland.

The dilemma is met, somewhat unusually, by a provision which imposes the oath of allegiance on candidates for the parliament, not when they have achieved election—as is the usual custom—but before they are nominated for the poll. This means that unless a Sinn Feiner recognizes British sovereignty in advance of the actual contest, he cannot stand for the parliament at all. He must, in fact, appeal for votes as an admitted British subject or not at all.

The contests over an oath of allegiance with Bradlaugh in the 80's and somewhat similar controversies over the five members excluded from the State Legislature at Albany do not encourage one greatly to hope that the above artifice will be administered easily. Still, to King Henry IV of France Paris was worth a mass, and Sinn Fein—hard pressed to a conference—may think that Ire-

Annual "Forefathers' Dinner."

The annual "Forefathers' Dinner" of the New England Society of St. Louis, celebrating this year the three hundredth anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims, will be held Tuesday evening at the Buckingham Hotel, King's highway and West Pine boulevard. Speakers will be James Hamilton Lewis, former U. S. Senator from Illinois, and Charles H. Brough, Governor of Arkansas. Longfellow's short sketch of John Alden and Priscilla will be presented.

Warning

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for 21 years and proved safe by millions.—You must say "Bayer."

say BAYER Aspirin

SAFETY FIRST! Accept only an "unbroken package" of genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," which contains proper directions for Headache. Earache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago, and for pain generally. Strictly American!

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents—Larger packages.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

SAYS IRISH UNITY WILL COME FROM HOME RULE BILL

land is worth a word or two of hard swearing.

The main question has been whether extreme republican opinion would allow the Parliament at Dublin to meet at all. In India, for instance, the extremists are boycotting the new legislatures, established under the Montague act. My belief here is that in hardly any case of a neglected legislature of which we have record, has the whole constabulary refused to send its member. It is true that Mr. Redmond withdrew from the Parliament at Westminster, where his Sinn Fein successors have yet to take their seats. But that is very different from declining to form one's own national parliament. Despotism has often dissolved parliament without their own consent, but parliaments seldom commit suicide. The old Irish Parliament had to be heavily drugged with bribes before it ceased to exist. Therefore, I assume that Dublin will, in fact, see a parliament assemble, with a considerable emergence, possibly, of the old Nationalist bodyguard and all the panoply of ancient forms and ceremonies.

Sentiment on Ireland.

British sentiment on Ireland today is curiously similar to that sentiment during the concluding stages of the Boer war. The nation is angry with its own conscience and Liberals are openly denouncing what Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman called "methods of barbarism." The concentration camps on the South African veldt, where 15,000 women and children, if I remember aright, died, seemed to impose forever an impassible barrier to a reconciliation between Boer and Briton. Yet 10 years later Boer Generals fought for South Africa under the British flag, one of them—Smuts—sat in the inner council of the war cabinet—and on the League of Nations, South Africa, while calmly discuss-

"I wish Santa would bring me an Edison," says daughter.
"What a wonderful musical gift for all," thought mother.
"That's the gift—I'll get them an Edison," thought daddy.

A WONDERFUL GIFT FOR ALL—ALWAYS

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph With a Soul"

Are You Puzzled?

There are thousands of different name phonographs on the market. All claim supremacy—none offer proof except the Edison.

Edison's Proof of Perfection.

is to place the original singers alongside the instrument for a comparison test with you to be the judge—can you ask for a better proof?

Don't Start Xmas With a Loss

So many people are trading their phonograph for the New Edison, in every case they are taking the loss. There'll be no loss if you buy the Edison first—that's the answer.

Ask About Our Xmas Budget Plan

It brings the Edison right into your home in time for Christmas without squeezing your pocketbook. The payment will be extended all through the year 1921—and you will enjoy real music in your home in the meanwhile.

SAYS IRISH UNITY WILL COME FROM HOME RULE BILL

ing secession from the empire, chooses to be represented by Lord Robert Cecil, son and namesake of the Prime Minister (Lord Salisbury), who waged the Boer war.

These results were due to the character of the British and South African peoples, and also to the fact, obscured in the heat of battle, that Britain was really fighting for the unity of the commonwealth, not its subjugation. For a time it seemed like sheer Czardom—the Czardom that united Russia. But a very different day suddenly dawned.

What saved South Africa was the general election of 1905. The very millions who had shouted for war in the Khaki election, six years earlier, now shouted for a grant of responsible government in the conquered territory. If then, in Ireland you have parliaments, however imperfect, actually sitting in Dublin and Belfast, immense forces must be liberated, so one ventures to hope, which will be directed not to a technical independence of British sovereignty, but toward the real Irish objective—namely, national unity. Administrative links between the two legislatures will be forged by daily necessity, and possibly in far less a period than we imagine. Ireland will enjoy a Federal Constitution.

Anticipations in Case.

We must anticipate in Ireland, as in South Africa, a secessionist party, like that led by Herzog. That is inevitable. But we must also recognize that while Britain, when she has lost her bearings, often blunders badly, no country can, on occasion, display a more assured tact. Strange though the statement will seem to American ears, England and her people like the Irish. The funeral in London to MacSwiney and the terrible outburst of anger in Britain over Balbriggan and other reprisals demonstrate this popular, if not always official affection. And it is also a fact that, for many years past, the Irish have cherished no quarrel against the royal family, as such. Even in the case of the Prime Minister, I find it difficult to believe that he has embarked on his present stern and yet obviously deliberate stand against the Sinn Fein without entertaining a conviction that the ultimate outcome would be appeasement. It is not too much to say that if Lloyd George fails to obtain this final result, his place in history will be greatly impaired.

While saying this, however, I may perhaps indulge in prophecy. The British people will, I believe, support the present coalition through the immediate crisis in Ireland, but not for any considerable period afterward. The surgeon will then have done his work and the physician must be called in. There must be and there will be a new coalition, Liberal and Labor, and independent of Sir Edward Carson. It will be this coalition, this new political alliance, which will broaden and deepen the liberaties of Ireland, as inaugurated in the present measure—unless indeed a general peace is declared by negotation at the outset. Development has been the story of all reforms in the United Kingdom, income tax, suffrage, land purchase, religious equality or education. Ireland may prove to be no exception to the invariable rule.

Ecclesiastical Attitude.

Feeling is too seriously inflamed to admit of any useful discussion of controversial aspects of the situation. The highest ecclesiastical authorities of the dominant churches, both in Ireland and in England, with the announced approval of Rome, have declared—through Cardinal Logue and the Archbishop of Canterbury—for a cessation of these desperate hostilities. In view of all that has been urged against Britain I may perhaps express the view that in the Old World, since the war, small nations as well as great nations have been on trial.

All of us are at times imperialist at heart—apt to press our claims to inordinate lengths—inclined to cherish the ancient grudge when the actual grievances, even when they survive at all, are fast disappearing Nothing that is characteristic of Ireland—whether it be her language, her faith, her literature, her drama, her poetry, her education and even her flag—nothing of all this, not her claim to be recognized as belonging to the League of Nations —is opposed today by Britain or any party in Britain. What Irishmen so rightly prize—their individuality of race—is advance dbeyond all question by a measure, much misunderstood here—somewhat misunderstood, I think, even in Britain. In its present form the bill is not a final settlement of Ireland's parliamentary claim.

It starts handicapped by bitter fighting, of which the only mitigation, if such it can be called, has been that the combatants were not

A LIFELONG CURE FOR PILES

Persons who are afflicted with Piles are in constant misery. There is especial danger in such diseases, as you are liable to get Cancer of the Bowels or Consumption. Piles make a person dread the time when the bowels must operate, as it is always accompanied by the most excruciating pain.

Years ago it was supposed that the only cure for Piles was to have them cut out. That cure, however, was more painful and dangerous than the disease, and many people preferred to suffer along with it.

DR. HENRICH'S PILE TREATMENT

Has demonstrated that the Surgical Operation for Piles is a thing of the past, because the knife nor scissors never did and never will cure Piles permanently. "The Henrich Cure is Safe and Sure"—that's what every man and woman knows that has tried and been cured by my Mild Medical Method. Read what a cured patient says:

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 22, 1920.

W. P. Henrich, Ph. G., M. D.

Dear Doctor—I want to thank you for curing me of a very bad case of Bleeding and Protruding Piles, after using all kinds of medicines and ointments, which did me no earthly good.

Your treatment is very mild, so I did not have to quit work, hence it did not cause me any pain.

It is surely nice that you can now be permanently cured without undergoing a dangerous surgical operation nor losing any time from your business.

I heartily recommend your wonderful treatment to all sufferers from any kind of Piles. Respectfully,

EDWARD YAEGER, 2733 La Salle st.

Dr. Henrich's Pile Treatment is effective in all varieties of Piles—Itching Piles, Bleeding Piles, Protruding Piles and Blind Piles. It acts promptly and the cure is for life. Examination and Advice is Free. Call this week, Room 205, at the Scott Building, between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m.

"Wrinkles? Use This Now. See The Difference Tomorrow"

Very Remarkable Results Which Can Be Produced in Making the Face Look Young and Beautiful, by Simple Methods. How to Stop Hair Falling and Remove Superfluous Hair.

By Madame Maree

EVEN at your middle age you can get rid of nearly all those wrinkles. Get a two-ounce package of eptol from your druggist. Mix this with a tablespoonful of glycerine in a half pint of water. The cream which results is very rich, and yet can and should be used liberally. This will make the texture of the skin much finer, and as a result of it becoming more plump, the large and small wrinkles will soon be found to have almost entirely disappeared.

MISS G. M. P.—You will be able to get rid of those blackheads in a few moments. You don't have to wait weeks to produce the result. Sprinkle a little neroxin on a wet cloth and rub the blackheads with this for a few minutes and when you look in the mirror you will see nearly every blackhead gone. Repeat the application of neroxin for several days and you will be rid of them completely.

• • •

GOODNESS—It is more difficult for hair to grow luxuriantly when the scalp retains that film of scale and fatty accumulations which forms on all scalps. The only way to remove it absolutely is not to use soap, but something which will dissolve it away. For this purpose use a teaspoonful of eggol in a half cup of water as a shampoo. This will let your hair breathe, grow luxuriantly, too, and give the hair a remarkably silky sheen. For twenty-five cents you can get enough eggol to last for over a dozen of these splendid head-washes.

MISS N. A.—A beautiful complexion can be accepted as an assured fact, if the proper means are employed. Every skin possesses the possibilities of being remarkably beautiful. This result is assured by the following formula. Do not buy an already prepared cosmetic, but make up your own cream as follows: It takes but a few moments and then you are certain of the results. Get one ounce of zintone from your druggist. Mix the contents of this with two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a pint of water, and your cream will be ready. After you use this freely for a week or so your complexion should be spotless, queenly and beautiful.

LILLIE—Certain materials are very quickly absorbed by the hair-roots and are acted upon by them very promptly. Such, for instance, is the following which has been found to be a most remarkable hair-forcer. You need nothing else to make your hair grow to splendid length and vigor. It will make hair stop falling at once, and fill in bald spots within a few weeks. Mix one ounce of beta-quinol with half a pint of water and half a pint of bay rum, or with a pint of witchhazel instead of the water and bay rum. Any druggist will supply you with the beta-quinol.

MISS T. R. T.—Women who know the best and simplest way to remove superfluous hairs go about it by dissolving them away. They do not use many of the pastes and powders commonly sold. They do not use anything to irritate and redden the skin. The only way to dissolve away hair and so that it leaves no reddening or irritation, is to moisten the hairs with sulfo solution which can be obtained at any drug store. It will never fail to satisfy you completely.

• • •

SEARCH—You ask what is the best face powder it is possible to get. I will answer that it is "Fresca Beauty Powder," which is sold in drug stores in the different tints. It is exquisitely fine, blends perfectly with the skin-tint, and stays on most beautifully. Imported powders cannot excel it.

Your Figure

Has Charm Only As You Are Fully Developed

Beauty of Form

Can be cultivated just the same as flowers are made to blossom with proper care. Woman, by nature refined and delicate, craves the natural beauty of her sex. How wonderful to be a perfect woman!

Bust Pads and Ruffles

Never look natural or feel right. They are really harmful and retard development. You should add to your physical beauty by enlarging your figure to its natural size. This is easy to accomplish with the NATIONAL, a new scientific appliance that brings delightful results.

FREE BEAUTY BOOK

If you wish a beautiful womanly figure, write for a copy of the treatise by Dr. C. S. Carr, formerly published by the Physical Culture Magazine, entitled: "The Bust—How It May Be Developed." Of this method Dr. Carr states: "Indeed, it will bring about a development quite astonishing."

This valuable information, explaining the causes of non-development, together with photographic proof showing as much as five inches enlargement by this method, will be sent FREE to every woman who writes quickly. Those desiring book sent sealed, enclose 4c postage.

CHRISTMAS CAROLERS' PROGRAMS ANNOUNCED

Many Musical Clubs and Quartets to Sing for Children's Aid Society.

"Light a candle in your window Christmas Eve for the Children's Aid Carol Singers" is the city-wide appeal made by the Children's Aid Society and indorsed by Bishop Tuttle, Archbishop Glennon, Rabbi Harrison, Dr. John W. MacIvor and other clergy of many denominations, Mayor Kiel and leaders of civic and social service organizations.

Never before has the Aid Society been so in need of funds as the demands are constantly increasing, and there are more children than ever before dependent on the Aid Society. Every candle Christmas Eve means direct aid for some poor, sick or dependent child, who will be helped to a chance at decent, normal living.

There is still time to organize carol bands, as some parts of the town have few bands so far, and anyone willing to organize for the carol singing is asked to notify Miss Alice Pettingill, chairman of the Carol Committee, 803 Equitable Building.

Programs at Clubs.

A number of Christmas carol programs will be given during the week before clubs and organizations, the first of which will be tomorrow afternoon for the Central Council of Social Agencies at the Y. W. C. A. at 3 o'clock when the Chaminade Junior Glee Club of Junior High School will sing. Tuesday, the Musical Research Club will have a coral program at the home of Mrs. J. Alex. Goodwin, the president. Wednesday at 3 o'clock there will be a public carol entertainment at the Wednesday Club, when Percival Chubb will speak on "Ancient Carols," and a musical program will be given. On Thursday the Women's Club will have a carol program with soloists and quartets, and a reading of "Why the Chimes Rang," by Gustavus Tuckerman.

In addition to the carol singing Christmas Eve, there will also be a noonday festival, with carols sung at many of the hotels and restaurants by well-known musicians, Mrs. Roland Usher, Mrs. Sidney Schwab and Miss Hadley Richardson, chairmen of the noonday singers.

At some of the hotels there will be singers both Friday and Saturday noons. On Thursday at the Statler the Georgia Lee Cunningham Quartet will sing, and on Friday the Morning Choral Double Quartet, and the choir of St. Margaret's Church, led by William P. O'Leary. At the Jefferson Hotel Friday the Yale College Double Quartet will sing.

At the Planters Hotel Friday the Loyalty League will sing, with Mrs. Graham Sears as leader. Mrs. Carl Kimmel's quartet will sing at Melscheimer's Restaurant Friday. On Thursday Miss Minike, with Mrs. F. C. Papendick as accompanist, will sing at the Grand-Leader Cafe, while at the same place Friday John Rohan will be the soloist with other carols by the Yeatman High School singers, Miss Eugenie Dusschal leader.

Harvard Quartet to Sing.

On Friday the Harvard Quartet will sing at the Busy Bee Tea Rooms, and Mrs. Widney Conant's double quartet at the St. Louis Lunchroom. A trio composed of Miss Helen Jennings, Miss A. Beuhler and Mrs. A. W. Meier will sing at both the Benish Restaurant and Leonhard Confectionery on Friday. The Children of America Loyalty League will sing at the Famous & Barr Restaurant on Thursday, and on Friday the Central High School Glee Club, Arthur Davis leader, will sing there.

The Chaminade Junior Glee Club of Soldan High School, Miss Teresa Finn director, will sing at the American Hotel and American Annex Friday, as will also the choir of St. Margaret's Church. At Vandervoort's Tea Room on Thursday Mrs. Widney Conant will have three trios. On Friday at the same place a mixed quartet composed of Mrs. Carlos F. Hurd, Miss Edith Varney, Tom Black and E. E. Murker will sing, followed by the Junior High School Glee Club, Miss Ethel Hudson director.

COMMISSION MEN'S CONVENTION

Will Be Held Here on Jan. 12, 13 and 14.

The twenty-ninth annual convention of the National League of Commission Merchants of the United States, which will be the twenty-eighth anniversary, will be held at the Hotel Statler, Jan. 12, 13 and 14, for election of officers, and for consideration and discussion of all problems affecting transportation and the marketing of fruits, vegetables, butter, eggs and poultry.

The scope of the league's operation and representation extends to 75 of the largest and most important cities and marketing centers of the United States. The necessity for providing instrumentalities for meeting changed conditions under the readjustment period will be discussed. Its sessions will be open to the public.

SAYS IRISH UNITY WILL COME FROM HOME RULE BILL

Ulster on the one side and Sinn Fein on the other, but Sinn Fein versus England—a much more manageable contest. What the Prime Minister has done is grave—he has in effect lifted a sharp sword and cut the Gordian knot. The Gordian knot consists of the very heartstrings of us all, and in the stroke there is for millions a sharp, an unspeakable agony.

So was it when Abraham Lincoln severed the chains of slavery in the United States—denying separate nationhood to the South. So was it, at least in the pain of necessity borne by both sides. I press the comparison no further than the sufferings recorded. I do not believe that any human problem is insoluble or should be so regarded. And, in the case of Ireland, a progressive and evolutionary recognition of full nationhood may be much nearer than it would appear to be, on the troubled surface of these present disorders.

THE HOUSE OF FINKELSTEIN EXTENDS

YULETIDE GREETINGS

TO OUR CUSTOMERS AND CO-WORKERS

Our Mr. Finkelstein, after an extensive survey of the Eastern Fabric Markets, brings back this good news:

That after a period of abnormal market conditions, prices "Shot up like a rocket," have now "Come down like the stick." The House of Finkelstein feels optimistically inclined, and predicts that the merchandise market has already reached a stabilized condition of normalcy.

The House of Finkelstein has shown its faith in the prediction by tremendous purchases, made at the psychological moment, WHEN QUALITY MATERIALS WERE AT THE LOWEST PRICE EBB. Not in recent years, even in pre-war times, has the House of Finkelstein made as fortunate purchases.

GREETINGS
TO OUR TRADE

To our thousands of customers we extend cordial Christmas Greetings, and as a substantial Holiday token of our good will, and faith that normal business conditions now obtain, The House of Finkelstein announces a DRASTIC REDUCTION in prices on every garment in our extensive line. This gives our customers the benefit of our opportune buying, without sacrificing an iota of the well-known quality of Finkelstein merchandise.

So attractive are the prices and materials of our 1921 New Spring Line that Mr. Finkelstein has already booked orders for more than 5000 Dresses from the New York Market alone.

M. FINKELSTEIN

"We make every dress we sell
And make them well."

GREETINGS
TO OUR EMPLOYES

The House of Finkelstein extends to all of its employes Hearty Christmas Greetings, and announces that on Monday, Dec. 20, we will start production at full capacity.

Notwithstanding the fact that more than 500,000 garment workers have been notified of a big cut in wages,

We Will Not Reduce Wages

We are confident that with good wages, our pleasant surroundings and ideal working conditions, we can count on the co-operation of our efficient force to help us maintain the spirit of our slogan,

"WE NEVER SLEEP."

Make 1921 the banner year of THE HOUSE OF FINKELSTEIN.

The House of Finkelstein stands for making every possible concession to both Employes and Customers.

This is the policy which has resulted in the steady and consistent growth of the House of Finkelstein in the past, and will continue to contribute to its growth in the future.

Let's All Pull Together for A Happy and Prosperous New Year.

CARE URGED TO PREVENT FIRES FROM CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

Use of Metallic Tinsel and Non-Inflammable Ornaments Recommended by State Insurance Head.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 18.—Precautions against fires originating in Christmas decorations is urged by A. L. Harty, State Superintendent of Insurance, in a special holiday statement. Seven instructions for the prevention of fires during the Christmas season were given by Harty, the active practice of which will help protect lives and preserve property, he said. The instructions are:

Do not decorate your Christmas tree with paper, cotton, celluloid or readily inflammable ornaments. Use metallic tinsel and non-inflammable decorations. Powdered mica or asbestos fiber may be used.

Do not allow Christmas trees to remain inside buildings after the holidays. Fine needles and other varieties of evergreen foliage become dry and easily ignited after a short stay indoors. Numerous fires occur in January from this reason.

Watch the children. Do not let them handle mitches or light and relight candles on the trees. They easily set fire to their clothes and fatal injuries frequently result.

Use electrical illumination for the Christmas tree, when possible, having an experienced electrician make the installation.

Remove castaway papers, boxes and excelsior, which were used for packing presents.

Churches, schools, bazaars, etc., should use non-inflammable decorations only. Gas jets and open flames should be kept away from combustible materials. See that the exits of the buildings are adequate for the quick departure of the assemblage and are in good working order.

Mercantile establishments should observe the foregoing directions as to decorations, and in addition arrange their stock in the safest possible manner, avoiding especially the overcrowding of the building.

MUSICAL SHOWS FOR CHRISTMAS WEEK

"Buddies," a War Comedy, and George White's "Scandals" Are Holiday Offerings.

Two musical shows, both opening tonight, are the Christmas week offerings at the theaters. One, at the American, is a big-scale revue, George White's "Scandals of 1920," the second of this young manager's projected annual series. The other is a comedy of the war, "Buddies," by George V. Hobart; it will hold forth at the Shubert-Jefferson.

George White, a graduate of the "Ziegfeld Follies," is seeking to set the pace for that institution. His first production, seen here last February, was a turmoil of dancing and jazz, with a chorus selected for looks and tripping ability, a number of clever entertainers, and burlesques on current topics. Little effort was made to rival the Ziegfeld show in scenic settings.

This year's opus contains many of the same principals—including White himself; Ann Pennington, one of the most popular of dancers; La Sylphe, expert in kicking and contortion; Lou Holtz, a blackface comedian, and Lester Allen, a nimble dancer. Again there are topical travesties on more or less up-to-date questions; and it is promised that in costuming and scenery last year's work is much surpassed.

The book is acknowledged by Andy Rice and George White, George Gershwin pleads guilty to the music and Arthur Jackson to the lyrics; while William Collier admits a hand in the staging. There are two acts of nine scenes each, opening with an episode called "Pandora's Box." "Painted Girls" is another scene. La Sylphe has a number called the "Spider Ballet," and Miss Pennington appears as a doll dancing on top of a piano, a Mexican banditress and a Chinese maid, among others.

"Buddies" a Gotham Success.

"Buddies" was produced at the Selwyn Theater, New York, on Oct. 28, 1919, and ran for upwards of 300 performances. It was described as possessing spontaneous comedy, unforced pathos, an element of melodrama, and music, by B. C. Hilliam, which has charm, lilt and fitness. Hilliam was the composer of "The Long, Long Trail."

The scene is a farmhouse in Brittany, following the war, where nine doughboys are quartered. There is a winsome daughter of the household, in whom the love interest centers, and also a French villain, who is busy in his machinations to win the damsel's hand. It is promised that there will be no military uproar back stage, and no trench scenes.

The company is a traveling one, not the New York cast, which included such stars as Peggy Wood, Donald Brian and Roland Young. But there is good mettle in the actors heading the present troupe—Denman Maley, a skilled light comedian; Olive Reeves-Smith, Joseph Herbert Jr. and the veteran Ignacio Martinetti.

Miss Zoe Akins' play, "Declassee," with Ethel Barrymore, comes to the American on Monday evening of next week. Beginning next Sunday night a musical comedy, "Take It From Me," will be presented at the Shubert-Jefferson.

Funmakers at Orpheum.

Comedy is the holiday flavor of this week's Orpheum bill. First there is Frank Dobson and his "Thirteen Sirens" in a musical tabloid. Herbert Williams and Hilda Wolfus, the former a side-splitting buffoon, have a skit called "From Soup to Nuts." "Double-Crossing," with Francis Yates and Gus Reed, is another mirthful offering. Bayonne Whipple and Walter Huston present a novelty called "Shoes." Others on the bill are: Roy La Pearl, trapeze performer; Mme. Rialto, in a dance act, called "Look!" the Four Deadings, jugglers, and Joseph and Nellie Norcross, whose combined ages are said to total 144 years, in "A Song Glimpse of Yesterday."

Features at other theaters will be: Columbia, Henry B. Toomer and company, in "The Wife Saver;" Grand, Frescott and Hope Eden, in a mind reading act; Rialto, John Sully in a musical act, "Under the Apple Tree," and Empress, a Christmas act, "Syncopation in Toyland."

PERSHING STOCK COMPANY TO OPEN CHRISTMAS AFTERNOON

Light Opera Performers, With Roger Gray, to Appear in "Miss Springtime."

The Pershing Light Opera Company, with Roger Gray as manager, will make its bow at 2:15 o'clock Christmas afternoon, with a performance of the musical comedy, "Miss Springtime," at the Pershing Theater, Hamilton and Delmar avenues. There will be an evening performance at 8:15. This playhouse, which has recently been a movie theater, was the former home of the Park Opera Company, in which Gray was leading comedian.

Besides himself, there will be seen as principals of the stock organization Matt Hanley, character baritone, who served in the same capacity with the Park company; Maud Walton, prima donna; Marion Kilcoyne, contralto; Edna Wakefield, ingenue; Ellen Best, soubrette, and Henri Antrim, tenor. Ross Mobley of New York has been engaged as musical director.

There are 18 chorus girls, several of them members of the old Park company. The standard admission price will be 99 cents, with two matinees at a lower rate each week.

Rehearsals are being held daily. The offering for the second week will be "Going Up," a musical comedy given here some two years ago by a touring company.

Sleeps Any Old Way Now

"I am 50 years old and never was sick until 8 years ago when I got stomach trouble. I have spent a fortune for medicine which did not cure. I kept on suffering and getting worse. A fellow worker told me about Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. After taking three doses I felt like a different man; before taking it I could not lie on my back nor right side. Now I can sleep any old way." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. The Story of an Organization Built to Serve YOU.

A Personal Letter from Thomas Kendall Kelly

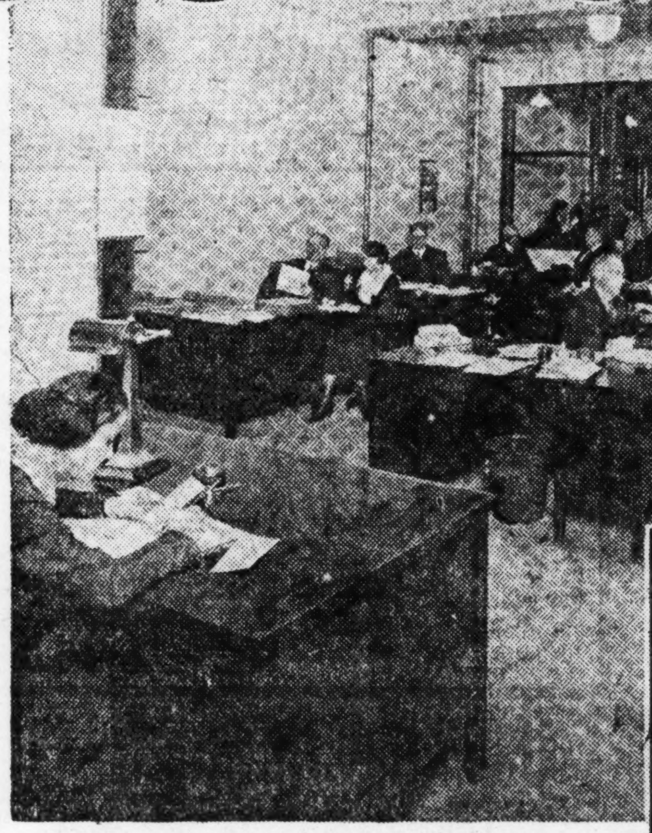
In placing this evidence of our complete organization, which is endorsed by wholesalers, manufacturers, banks, and thousands of merchants from coast to coast, before you—the members of the mercantile world—

I feel it is a duty I owe as I have been sending you recommendations monthly for years, telling of the master results we have been securing for merchants of North America for a quarter of a century.

I am repeatedly told by clients, visiting our Home Offices, that if you, and the other 346,412 merchants, with whom our name is a household word, only realized what a complete, enthusiastic, loyal and capable force we have at your service, you and every other aggressive retailer would demand one of my expert sales managers instantly.

In presenting for your choosing, our three hundred and ten advertising, merchandising salesmen, all executives, I know that you will agree with me that positive and creditable results are assured. Because these men have, added to their own broad experience, our University training in intensive merchandising under the personal supervision of our older, associated sales managers, who have been affiliated with me for years, and because their work has brought me 14,973 recommendations from satisfied customers—I submit them to you for your decision.

It was my vision twenty-six years ago and it has been my life-work to originate an organization sufficient to supply the needs of the retail merchants of America, so that I might lighten their burden. I have realized this by amalgamating the highest type of merchandise brains into one great unit for the purpose of rendering a service, to expand trade by honorable, original, clean and brand-new selling methods, that can only be found in Kelly Service—a service available to every merchant in each State of the Union, as well as every Province in the Dominion of Canada.



MERCHANDISING, ADVERTISING AND SALES DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENTS

Today, through our half million dollar responsibility, our more than one million dollar resource, it is a well known fact to the best men in this line and those who wish to enter this profession that the Kelly Sales System is eager at all times to make an attractive remuneration to men qualified to render our service after sufficient training.

Our responsibilty and guarantee of steady employment the year around has created a waiting list of over five hundred applications, from recognized merchandising men all over the country.

Through learning, in my boyhood days, the shoe manufacturing trade as well as my years of experience in textile factories, where I handled the raw products from the time the wool was sheared from the sheep, the cotton taken from the fields, I feel that my education in merchandising is thorough.

THOMAS KENDALL KELLY,
President

Foremost Exponent of Better Merchandising in North America.

Today this ad is appearing in the following:

Des Moines Register, Kansas City Star, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Indianapolis News, Cincinnati Enquirer, Atlanta American, Detroit Free Press. Chicago Tribune, Philadelphia Public Ledger, Baltimore Sun, Boston Globe, New Orleans Item, San Francisco Examiner, Los Angeles Times, Denver Post, Seattle Times, Portland Oregonian, Houston Chronicle.

Canada—Montreal Star, Toronto Globe, Winnipeg Free Press.

It appeared Sunday, Dec. 12, in the Minneapolis Journal, Tribune and St. Paul Pioneer Press.

My calling to the salesmanship profession, in which eighteen of the biggest trade journals of America must think I am successful, by reason of recognition given me in their editorial columns repeatedly, together with fifteen years of actual experience personally conducting successful merchandise sales, I feel that Providence has bestowed a favor upon me which I cannot repay except in one way—and that is, by rendering to you and other merchants 100% sales service by sending you real merchandise sales conductors who have graduated from my thorough, personal training.

This is the type of sales manager I want to send you for your sale. Everything he does in your store will be entirely in keeping with the highest type of advanced merchandising. You will receive a selling campaign that will be a credit to your store and in the minds of the public for fifty miles around, as well as results that you will long and favorably remember.

I would like to have you leave to my judgment — the selection of the right sales manager for your January Sale. You know that it is of the utmost importance to have the usual Kelly successful Service instituted properly and that means more in results than you can anticipate because I can only get your endorsement through rendering you absolute satisfaction, and that I must have.

Just mail me the coupon on the opposite page today, please, and by return mail I will send you full particulars without obligating you, of course.

Frankly yours,

Thomas K Kelly

Demand Credentials

Because of the fact we are repeatedly told that ever so many salesmen are traveling upon the T. K. Kelly Sales System's reputation. Even our old customers are approched constantly by salesmen who have no connection with our Organization, but claim they are associated with our firm, or formerly were employed by us.

There are no former employees who are living today whom we could not have retained had we so desired, as you are well aware that sufficient remuneration would retain them. No compensation is too great for our firm to pay if a salesman has the ability and initiative to render our Service in keeping with our plans and successful selling methods.

It has always been our policy to request and demand that every member of our Organization render 100 per cent Service to retain his position, and that is the only kind of Service we have to deliver you. Regarding men who say they can handle your sale equal to us, let me assure you that we could well afford to make them such attractive offers that they would today be connected with the T. K. Kelly Sales System.

OURS IS A 100 PER CENT SERVICE

To meet the demands of our customers it necessitates One Hundred Forty-three people in the Home Office, among them over Twenty men—specialists in Advertising, Merchandising, Commercial Art and Sales Development—that is besides Three Hundred Ten sales managers who are on the road.

After the termination of your sale, our Home Office furnishes you one year free service. This consists of preparing your newspaper advertising, folders, circulars, dodgers, booklets and illustrations. We also prepare brand new, original merchandising plans, as well as teach your clerks to become better sales-people.

There is no more conclusive proof that we can offer you than the many advertising staffs of big department stores, unquestionably skilled in maintaining a high standard of daily volume, who favor our system for conducting intensified selling campaigns.

Our clients show beyond question by the growth and prosperity of their stores, that, with Kelly Service, it is impossible to have slow moving merchandise or dull trade.

IMMEDIATE RESERVATION VITALLY IMPORTANT

With only Three Hundred Ten expert sales managers to supervise personally each Kelly sale, we cannot distribute this sales staff to all the 346,413 merchants with whom our name is a household word.

It necessitates quick action, as already over a hundred merchants have made reservations with us for next month, and we do want you to have an equal opportunity, so tear off the coupon and send it in immediately.

PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION NEEDS

Campaign for Funds to Care for 8000 Next Year.

More than 8000 persons will seek aid of the St. Louis Provident Association during the ensuing year, according to a pamphlet distributed by the association asking for additional contributions to aid in the carrying on relief and social service work here.

Fifteen thousand copies of the pamphlet were mailed to contributors and former contributors in an effort to get them to make additional donations to the association as Christmas gifts to the poor.

Women Voters' Monthly Dinner.

The Business and Professional League of Women Voters will hold its regular monthly dinner at the American Hotel tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock. Mrs. Walter McNab Miller will speak on "The New Aspect of Health Work." Miss Emma Puschner will speak on the work of the Board of Children's Guardians.

Y. W. C. A. OPEN TO GIRLS ON CHRISTMAS DAY

Holiday Program of Organization Includes Children's Parties and Entertainments.

Open house for girls of the city will be the rule for all branches of the Young Women's Christian Association, both Christmas eve and Christmas day, and girls living in boarding houses are especially urged to consider the association their home at this time. Celebrations will be held during the week at various centers, and in addition to the gaieties planned for members there will be many events for the poor and needy children of the city, as social service is one of the strongest features emphasized in the Y. W. C. A. programs.

Tuesday evening the annual "White Gift" celebration will be held at the main Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street, when all members and friends of the association are asked to bring a gift for a child. There will be a short opening program of carol singers followed by a processional of girls and visitors around a big tree in the main lobby on which the gifts will be placed, afterwards to be dispersed to hundreds of poor children. An entertainment by the Wientge School of Expression will be given in the gymnasium.

Children's Party Thursday.

The Y. W. C. A. Industrial Service Center, 1721 Washington avenue, will have a tree trimming party Wednesday evening to prepare for the children's party Thursday afternoon, when, among others, 50 children of the Neighborhood Association and their mothers will be the guests. Next Sunday afternoon there will be a Christmas tea for all business girls at the center with a program by Morse School of Expression students. On Dec. 28 the annual party for girls and their men friends will be given.

The International Institute of the Y. W. C. A., 2338 South Broadway, began its celebrations for foreign-born members last night, and there will be entertainments every afternoon and evening this week, with 14 different nationalities represented in their native dances and Christmas customs.

Christmas Dinners for Girls.

Elaborate dinners Christmas day for girls living at both the Y. W. Hotel, 4298 Olive street, and at the Y. W. residence, 744 Walton avenue, are announced, and a "children's party" will be given tomorrow night at the residence with all the young women boarding there in "kid" costumes and a tree with small gifts for all.

The Wheatley branch of the Y. W. C. A., 703 North Garrison avenue, will give a pageant and Christmas tree party Thursday night, with negro girls who live in the Wheatley dormitories in the cast. A children's party will be given Dec. 27.

ESSEX RECORD CAR DISPLAYED BY DEALERS

One of the four Essex cars which established the transcontinental record last spring is being displayed by the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. The four cars, starting in pairs simultaneously from New York and San Francisco, each lowered the existing record. The best time for the 3347 miles was 4 days 14 hours and 14 minutes. The other three cars came within three hours of the fastest one.

The car is a standard touring car and still bears the United States mail signs which it bore during the run, which was officially timed by the postoffice. Each distributer supplied the driver over the route to the next distributing point, in all about 20 drivers having been used.

AUTO NEWS and GOSSIP

AUTO SHOW MAY BE HELD IN BIG CIRCUS TENTS

Motor Car Association Also Plans Credit Bureau and Employment Bureau and Extension of Y. M. C. A. Automobile School.

Although advised by President P. H. Brockman at the meeting of the Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association Thursday night that they might have to hold their annual automobile show in a tent, the members voted unanimously to hold the show under any conditions.

The automobile show has been a tremendous factor always for the automobile business, and it has also been an important and far-reaching function in advertising the City of St. Louis, which it is now claimed, has become the second automobile center of the United States, next after Detroit, in production and distribution.

Three places are now under consideration for the show. One is the Southern Hotel, now owned by John F. Queeny, president of the Monsanto Chemical Co. Mr. Queeny has the sale of the building under way and is not in position to tie it up until Feb. 14. The second is the new Goodyear building on Forest Park boulevard, west of Sarah street and adjoining the big Ford Motor Co. plant. The third alternative is the holding of the automobile show in tents. The plans for this have been worked out, including the heating of the 10 big tents to be used. The show will, therefore, be held, beginning Feb. 21, to last a week. The Show Committee in charge will be J. T. Salisbury of the More Automobile Co.; J. D. Perry Lewis of the Lewis Automobile Co., and Frank R. Tate of the Tate Motor Co. Robert E. Lee, 3124 Locust street, will be manager of the show and executive officer of the committee.

At its meeting the association decided on a collection bureau and the establishment of an employment bureau for salesmen and office people.

The association will in a body have dinner at the Central Y. M. C. A. Monday night and will afterward inspect the Y. M. C. A. automobile school which was established by the Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association five years ago.

The association raised $1200 in voluntary contributions for the support of the Federated Roads Council of St. Louis, which is in charge of the proper issuance and use of the $60,000,000 bond issue recently passed for good road building.

BATTERY SERVICE CO. OPENS NEW HOME

The Battery Service Co. will open on Monday their new building at Twenty-second and Locust streets. Having been built according to their specifications, the new quarters are designed especially to expedite the giving of battery service. The main service room, with a floor space of 50x155 feet free from posts or other obstructions, will be ample to provide space for giving service on 50 cars at one time.

Complete new electrical equipment has been installed and arrangements made to charge up to 800 batteries at one time. The company was formerly located at Twenty-third and Olive streets, and are distributors for the Willard Storage Battery.

TIRE DEALERS TO FORM NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

A well attended meeting of the St. Louis Tire Dealers' Association held at the Marquette Hotel Friday night heard a proposition from the Automobile Club of St. Louis to take over all service calls for tire changes, for members of the association who now maintain their own service cars and facilities. The proposition was presented by William King, manager of the Automobile Club.

The association also voted to send a committee to Chicago to represent it at a meeting to be held there in January to form a national association of tire dealers. The Chicago meeting is to be attended by representatives of about 40 tire dealers' organizations from as many cities.

LINCOLN SEDAN RECEIVED.

The Lincoln sedan, the second of the Leland-built closed models, was received last week by the McNiece-Hill Motor Co. The new body is mounted on the standard chassis and is of the five-passenger type, with two additional emergency seats which fold completely out of sight in the back of the front seat. The body is of rolled sheet aluminum and made practically without seams.

An innovation in upholstery has been brought out by the Lelands in their method of finishing the rear seat. The upholstery of the back of this seat is made in one unit, so that should it be necessary to have access to the back of the body, such as ironing out a dent in the rear, the entire back of the seat can be lifted out in one piece and be replaced without disturbing the upholstery.

The new model is offered in four optional colors and 12 selections of upholstery.

C. W. NASH ADDRESSES DEALERS IN ST. LOUIS

At a meeting of 80 Nash dealers from Missouri and Illinois, Charles W. Nash, president of the Nash Motor Car Co. of Kenosha, Wis., frankly discussed the many problems at present confronting the automobile industry. Paying tribute to his dealers' organization, he pointed out how the motor car industry had first passed through the engineering stage, during which the present efficiency of motor cars was developed, and this was followed by the production stage, when the enormous plants were financed and built and big production was made possible. The time is now at hand when the dealer will be the big factor and service will be the most vital point in the dealers' success.

The curtailing of bank credits usually extended to dealers throughout the winter months, which enabled them to store cars for the spring business, has made it necessary for, not only the Nash plant but practically all of the big motor car factories, to curtail production to a point where there has been but little accumulation of cars for the spring buying. This, according to Mr. Nash, whose opinion is shared by many other large motor car producers, will inevitably cause a shortage in the more popular cars should business become normal this spring.

NO CHANGE IN POLICY OF DODGE BROTHERS

In answer to many inquiries as to the disposition of the Dodge Brothers' plant, now that the death of Horace Dodge has removed the last of the founders and builders of the company, the Tate Motor Co., local distributors, have made public a telegram received from the factory last Wednesday.

The telegram read, in part, as follows: Knowing that each member of our organization will wish a word from us at this time, we wish to say that the founders of the business built it on such a rock bed foundation of honesty, integrity and good will that not even the passing of our president, Horace E. Dodge, will in the slightest degree affect the continuity of our policies of the business. Under the expressed authority of the owners of the business, we wish to say there will be no pause nor hesitation. The business will be continued as John and Horace Dodge had planned.

RUG THAT SOLD FOR $57,000 AT MUSEUM

Ardebil Silk Carpet, Which Persian Took 34 Years to Weave, on Display Today.

One of the most widely known and most valuable rugs in the world, the Ardebil carpet from Persia, is on exhibition at the Art Museum in Forest Park today, having been lent for an exhibition period of two weeks by the owners, Duveen Brothers of New York City.

It is not only important on account of its unusual perfection of design and color, but because it bears the date when it was completed, 1539 A. D., and the signature of the maker, Maksoud of Kashan. It is thus a historical document of great importance in determining the dates of Persian rugs. It measures 24 feet by 13 feet 7 inches, and the weave is quite fine, there being more than 350 knots per square inch.

The South Kensington Museum in London possesses a similar rug which was presented through the agency of William Morris. With this exception, there is no other known specimen which may be compared with that at the Museum. The Ardebil silk carpet was formerly in the collection of the street railway magnate Yerkes. When his collection was dispersed in 1910 the carpet brought $25,000. It then came into the possession of De Lamar, from whose collection it was sold in 1919 for $57,000.

Medallion Type of Rug.

It is an example of the medallion type of rug, remarkable for its refinement of design and rich color, the ivory, rose and pale blue tones of the design being thrown into strong relief by the brilliant background of deep blue. The center is occupied by a star of 16 points, from each of which hangs a small medallion. The ground about these is filled with winding flowery stalks with cloud bands and arabesques at certain points. A marked feature of the design is the frequent use of the horseshoe and cloud forms, which in Persia were insignia of royalty. This recalls the story of how the Ardebil carpet came to be made.

In 1502 the Timurid dynasty in Persia was overthrown by Shah Ismail I, who founded the Sophi dynasty. One of the first acts of his reign was to piously repair the tomb at Ardebil containing the remains of the Sheikh Sefi, founder of the Sophi family. Among the repairs, a new carpet was ordered to screen the interior arch of the mausoleum leading to the tomb of Sheikh Sefi. For this task Maksoud of Kashan, a promising young weaver in the royal factory, was chosen. The work required more than 34 years, and was not completed until after the death of Shah Ismail. His son, Thamasp I, was so pleased with Maksoud's carpet that as a special honor he allowed him to sign it, an honor unique in the history of rugs.

Inscription on Rug.

The complete inscription on the rug has been translated as follows:

"Outside this thy threshold am I,
Of every other refuge robbed,
Nor beyond this portal find I,
Where to rest my (weary) head.
A work of the servant at the Holy Shrine of Kashan in the year 946
(1539 A. D.)

Pendant from the central medallion of the rug are two lamps. These are symbolical of the two saints resting in the Ardebil mosque for which the rug was intended, the smaller one representing Sheikh Sefi and the larger one Shah Ismail, who died and was buried in the same tomb before the completion of the new rug.

The museum is also placing on view today a collection of 20 decorative screens by Robert W. Chanler of New York. Chanler will be present for the opening of the exhibition.

James Hamilton Lewis to Speak.

OUR OPENING SALE

We have opened in St. Louis, at 3024 Locust St., one of the largest "CUT-PRICE" Tire houses in the Middle West. Through our Eastern connections we are constantly in touch with the big Tire factories, which from time to time must sacrifice their surplus factory stock. We buy their Tires in carload lots for cash and you get the benefit. At this time we want to make a clear statement of our sales policy.

1—We personally guarantee every Tire sold against defects in material and workmanship.

2—We personally will adjust every Tire sold on the same mileage guarantee placed upon the Tire by its factory.

3—All business strictly cash.

4—Out-of-town customers can feel perfectly secure in ordering Tires from us because we will gladly refund purchase price if goods are not satisfactory.

5—We give FREE road service in St. Louis on all Tires purchased from us.

6—It is our aim to offer, at all times, dependable Tires at prices lower than they have ever been offered in St. Louis.

PAVING THE MOTOR CAR'S WAY

A home-made rubber air bag, with a football tube for a valve—would you believe that such a crude contrivance could have had a far-reaching influence upon the development of the automobile?

That it did have such influence, however, you will readily agree when you know that this homely device was the first pneumatic tire.

The man who made the first practical successful pneumatic was a surgeon, John Boyd Dunlop, then living in Belfast, Ireland. He didn't make it for the automobile, for the good reason that in those days—thirty-two years ago—even the wheezing, coughing old "horseless carriage" had not yet arrived.

Instead he made it for his young son's tricycle, which, with its hard-rubber tires, had an irritating way of cutting up the Dunlop lawn.

When the automobile came, it found the pneumatic tire waiting for it. Also, it found a going Dunlop tire-making organization, producing pneumatics for bicycles, with a reputation known wherever bicycles were used.

Fitting the idea of the pneumatic tire to the requirements of the automobile required a number of important developments. Dunlop quickly recognized this fact and acted upon it. As a result the name Dunlop today is intimately associated with the history of the two principal types of tires—clincher and straight-side.

Today the name Dunlop stands not only for the pioneer of the tire industry but also for a great world-wide institution, with factories in many countries and with selling operations extending around the globe. It stands likewise for one of the few very large growers of rubber and for one of the big producers of cotton fabric.

It is this same Dunlop which is now about to begin manufacturing tires in this country. To do this it has erected on the outskirts of Buffalo, New York, a tire-building community covering a tract of 214 acres. This plant, which will be in operation within a few weeks, has a capacity of 12,000 tires a day.

To help insure its supply of cotton-fabric, Dunlop has also acquired its fifth cotton mill—at Utica, N. Y.

All the production facilities and resources for the making of Dunlop products in America are being devoted to pneumatic and solid tires, tubes and tire accessories. These will be the finest that thirty-two years of manufacturing and world-wide experience make possible.

Moreover, Dunlop products will be made and sold in accord with a distinctive Dunlop policy. This policy is one of partnership with public and trade, which views the marketing of tires as something more than selling merchandise and which recognizes that every party to the transaction is entitled to full reward.

Dunlop tire merchants, therefore, will be more than simply middlemen or go-betweens and Dunlop responsibility for tire-performance will go beyond any stated mileage limitations to the end of a tire's life.

Dunlop policy contains a number of points of especial interest to tire-merchants. We will be glad to discuss it further with responsible retailers, who may be interested in becoming Dunlop representatives.

HOW TO MAKE PINE COUGH SYRUP AT HOME

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $2.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and tastes very pleasant.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

TRIANGLE CLUB PLAY AT ODEON THURSDAY

Princeton Dramatic Organization This Year Includes Three St. Louisans.

The Princeton Triangle Club will give its tenth annual Christmas play in St. Louis Thursday night at the Odeon, under the auspices of the Princeton alumni of St. Louis. The club is composed of undergraduates of the university. It devotes itself exclusively to theatrical performances and has come to be the vehicle through which much of the dramatic art and literature at Princeton is taught. Prof. Donald Clive Stuart, head of the department of dramatic art and literature at the university, is the faculty head of the Triangle Club and directs all its work. The students are the actors, the orchestra, scene painters, carpenters, stage hands, electricians and business managers of the annual Christmas performance, which always is taken on tour during the holidays.

This year 100 young collegians compose the cast, chorus and orchestra. The piece is a musical comedy, entitled "They Never Come Back," by E. H. Wever, '21. Wever, who is president of the club, will take a leading role in this year's production. The play has a plot which centers around the appearances and disappearances of a mummy and contains touches of modern psychic manifestations woven into the story in a ludicrous way. The scene is laid in Peru. Some of the actors are men of distinction in track athletics, tennis, football and baseball. "Miks" Callahan, captain of this year's victorious football team, has a leading part, and Walter Folmer, one of the star runners of the 1920 track team, is the "leading lady."

Three St. Louisans in Cast.

Three St. Louisans are in the cast. These are Wallace H. Smith, who has the part of Sylvester, a young Peruvian; Willard Bartlett Jr., who will be a girl reporter, and Joseph L. Werner, who takes the part of a Japanese tourist.

St. Louis will have one performance only, at the Odeon, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

The students will arrive here Thursday morning from Indianapolis and will depart Friday morning for Kansas City. They are traveling on a special train of five Pullmans, diner and baggage cars and carrying their own scenery and other paraphernalia. The costumes are said to be very unusual. The troupe has an orchestra of 35 and a chorus of 50. The musical conductor is a Princeton undergraduate.

Luncheons Planned.

Judge George H. Williams, president of the St. Louis Princeton alumni, will head a delegation of 50 Princetonians, old and young, who will meet the club special in East St. Louis Thursday morning. At the Union Station the students will be met by a fleet of automobiles decorated in the orange and black of "Old Nassau," and a short parade of the downtown section will precede a breakfast at the University Club. After breakfast the visitors will break up into groups and will be guests at small luncheons. Miss Ada Johnson, Veiled Prophet Queen, will give one luncheon for 20 students and 20 girls. Mrs. Willard Bartlett will entertain 30 students and girls and Louis Werner will be host to 17 of his son's fellow-collegians and the same number of girls. Other small affairs are planned.

All Princeton men are invited to a tea dansant which Louis Werner will give in his home at 36 Westmoreland place in the afternoon and the Princeton Alumni will entertain the Triangle Club and this season's debutantes at a dance at the Racquet Club, following the performance at the Odeon.

REALTY EXPECTED TO PROFIT FROM EASING OF MONEY

Activities on Liberal Scale in St. Louis and Suburbs After First of Year Are Looked For.

BUILDING REVIVAL ALSO ANTICIPATED

Prospect for Early Resumption of Construction in Industrial District Called Extremely Bright.

By Berry Moore.

Predicated on the prospect of relaxation in the money tension, the impression prevails that transactions, as well as speculative operations, in real estate in St. Louis and its suburbs, will be on a liberal scale after the first of the new year. As a matter of fact, adverse monetary conditions are believed to have constituted the chief restraint of a broad revival in the real estate field, wherein activities during the last year and a half have been principally in the purchase of houses for occupancy rather than for speculation.

With capital in ample supply as a result of the liquidation now in process, it is suggested that not a few building projects, in abeyance or in formative process, will be prosecuted with more or less success. These include plans for several extensive office buildings and hotel structures, a class of buildings of which the city is in urgent need, as well as a number of industrial plants of a representative order.

The prime movers in the most ambitious of these projects are Isaac T. Cook, whose enterprise has constituted a potent force in the upbuilding of the business area, and the Mercantile Trust Company, with whose resources many large building projects have been launched in both downtown St. Louis and in the industrial district at Natural Bridge road and Union boulevard, in northwest St. Louis.

Bright Industrial Outlook.

According to John F. Shopflin, manager of the switch property department of the Mercantile Trust Company, the outlook is promising in the extreme for resumption on a maximum scale of construction in the big industrial subdivision referred to. Sites are fast being assembled in that district for a number of plants of major capacity, on which construction is to be launched as soon as business re-adjustment has taken place.

As a site for a large industrial plant, John A. Meyer, who is associated with W. D. Wilson of Los Angeles, Cal., concluded negotiations yesterday, through the Switch Property Department of the Mercantile Trust Co., for the northwest corner of Brown and Penrose avenues, in Northwest St. Louis. The site has a frontage on Brown avenue of 160 feet and a depth of 131 feet extending to the tracks of the Terminal Railway Association, which, with a vast ramification of switches, serves the industrial district of Northwest St. Louis. The price paid was that prevailing for ground in that district, according to Schopflin.

A plant to be constructed for the manufacture of lubricating oils and transmission grease for resisting heat and cold. It will comprise a two-story and basement structure, embracing approximately 20,000 square feet of floor space, with a Terminal switch in the rear of the premises. The product will be shipped out mostly in car lots. Meyer has opened an office in the Arcade Building, while Wilson is stopping at the Missouri Athletic Association.

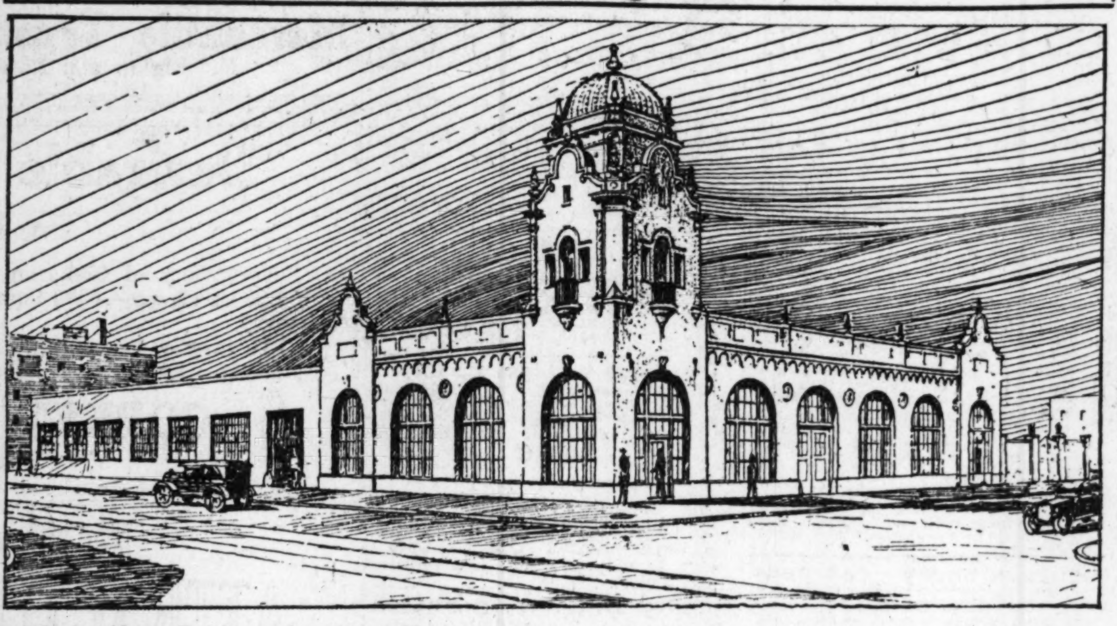
Cyrus Crane Wilmore is working out plans for resale of the Clark tract, of which he recently obtained control in conjunction with Benjamin G. Brinkman, trustee, the two of whom have an ambitious industrial subdivision plan. The price at which the property is offered for resale in the crude is $1250 an acre. The tract, comprising 350 acres, is situated southwest of Southampton. It was purchased recently by Wilmore, in connection with Brinkman, through Cornet & Zeibig from the Clark heirs.

Flow of Capital From Stocks.

As a result of the collapse of values in the stock market and consequent liquidation, a flood of capital, it is believed, will seek outlet in real estate channels, supplemented by a demand for houses and flats, for homes and investment, from dilatory, or rather discriminating, buyers, both as to prices and character of buildings.

There are meager prospects, however, of a lower level of prices, with building virtually suspended as a result of the high cost of building material and construction. Such building as is now being prosecuted will not even provide for the normal growth of the population of the city, which is now on a larger scale than heretofore, according to real estate agents. The adverse situation as to homes available for occupancy promises to become accentuated rather than otherwise, as the only relief from shortage is construction on a large scale.

Automobile Company Leases Site for Service Station



TO provide a Buick service station in the central West End, the Vesper Buick Auto Co. has acquired the southwest corner of Vandeventer avenue and West Pine boulevard, from the trustee of the estate of Camilla S. McManus. The lot has a frontage of 150 feet on West Pine and a depth along Vandeventer of 224 feet. Both parties were represented by David Bailey of Edward L. Bakewell's office.

The station will cover 100x210 feet of the site, and there is also to be a corrugated iron shed on a steel substructure for the protection of automobiles after repairs have been completed. The style of the structure is to be an adaptation of the Spanish Colonial type of architecture. The exterior walls are to be covered with white stucco over brick, and trimmings and finals are to be terra cotta. The tower on the corner will be 65 feet high, the interior to be illuminated with an arc light.

The west part of the structure will be devoted to an oil station, both to be given over for public use and for the use of owners calling for their finished cars.

Plans are being drawn in the office of Preston J. Bradshaw, and superintendence of erection will be conducted by his office. Immediate construction is contemplated.

SYNDICATE ADDS 100-FOOT FRONTAGE TO LEASED GROUND

Enlarged Site at Delmar Boulevard and DeBaliviere Avenue Believed to Be for Hotel.

A syndicate represented by the Frank Obear Real Estate Co. and L. V. Richardson, which recently acquired a 99-year lease of the southeast corner of Delmar boulevard and De Baliviere avenue, 100x148 feet, through Cornet & Zeibig, has taken a 99-year lease of an adjoining 100 feet frontage on the east side of De Baliviere avenue.

The lease in the second instance gives the lessee the privilege of purchasing the property at the rate of $1000 a front front. This will give a site of 148 feet on Delmar by 200 feet on De Baliviere avenue which, it is understood, has been secured for a large hotel structure.

The site is 111 feet west of the Delmonte Theater and hotel, erected by a syndicate headed by F. L. Cornwell and Sam Hamburg Jr.

The negotiations for the corner were conducted through Charles H. Zeibig, and those for the 110 feet on De Baliviere avenue by Daly & McCabe.

GRETHER AND BUSS PLEASED BY CHANGE THAT WINS FACTORY

John Grether & Co. and Charles H. Buss declare themselves satisfied over having secured the passage by the Board of Aldermen of a bill recommended by the City Plan Commission and advised by 59 per cent of the property owners in the district, to change from second residence to industrial the district extending irregularly from Broadway to the city limits on the north side of the Wabash Railroad with an affected district extending for 1000 feet along the south side of the Wabash Railroad for 100 feet north of Sw[illegible]r avenue west of Tracy road and for 1000 feet north of McLaren avenue east of Tracy road to a point near Broadway.

Taylor B. Wyrick, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the board had the bill passed under suspension of the rules, on account of the option expiring Jan. 1 to the Power Truck and Tractor Co. of Detroit, in whose interest the change in zoning was initiated by Grether and Buss, so that the concern could utilize a 12-acre tract suited to its needs in the manufacture of trucks and tractors. It is on the northeast corner of Goodfellow avenue and the Wabash Railroad.

The City Plan Commission cooperated in securing the change in zoning so that the factory could be brought to St. Louis. There was little opposition to the change.

HALF OF SIX BUNGALOWS BEING BUILT FOR KOPLAR SOLD BY HIM

Sam Koplar has effected the sale of three of six bungalows being erected for him on King's highway, opposite the entrance to Tower Grove Park.

Each of the buildings has six rooms and sun parlor and is a duplicate of those erected for him in the 4200 block of Lafayette avenue. The King's highway bungalows are approaching completion.

CHESTNUT ST. HALF-BLOCK SALE AGREEMENTS REACHED

Site Between Tenth and Eleventh Streets Presumed to Be Designed for Ambitious Building Project by Interests Represented by Isaac T. Cook.

Agreements for the purchase of the entire half block having a frontage of 218 feet on the north side of Chestnut street, extending from Tenth to Eleventh streets by a depth of 109 feet, have been concluded by Isaac T. Cook on behalf of interests which, it is understood, have secured the site for ambitious building purposes.

While the prices provided for in the agreements for the site, which comprises five different parcels, have not been disclosed, they will aggregate perhaps $200,000 or more, according to real estate men.

The northwest corner of Tenth and Chestnut streets, 92x109 feet, owned by Josephine Noonan, is the largest and most valuable of the parcels, while the northeast corner of Eleventh and Chestnut, 18x109 feet, is owned by one Laval, a client of Cornet & Zeibig, a former resident of St. Louis, who now lives in South Africa. The inside parcels are owned as follows: James M. Carpenter estate, 40 feet F. R. Rosemann, 40 feet, and V. C. D. Anchald, 28.8 feet.

The Noonan parcel is improved with a comparatively modern two-story building, the first floor of which is occupied as real estate offices, while the second floor is occupied as a justice of the peace court and offices. The other parcels are occupied by two and three-story buildings, several of which were originally residences and which were converted for business purposes.

Mystery in Improvement Project.

Speculation is rife in real estate circles as to the nature of the building projected for this block and the identity of the interests represented in the operation. Cook has not disclosed either. Accordingly, the matter has taken the form of a profound secret, not to say mystery.

It was reported yesterday that the site had been secured for a five-story building for large automobile interests, while the more optimistic, or those who have the future of Chestnut street at heart, are advancing the idea that a pretentious hotel project is about to be carried through. Cook said yesterday that he would disclose his plans as soon as Laval returned the deed to his section of the site, which has been sent to him by Cornet & Zeibig.

It is understood that the entire block, from Chestnut to Pine, and from Tenth to Eleventh streets, was originally sought for this project, but that the promoter was unable to obtain the Pine street frontage except at a prohibitive price. An effort was recently made to obtain control of the block bounded by Eighth, Ninth, Pine and Chestnut streets, presumably by Cook, who controls the southwest corner of Eighth and Pine. Before closing the contracts for the half-block on the north side of Chestnut street, between Tenth and Eleventh, Cook, it is understood, made overtures looking to the purchase of the southwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut, owned by a client of John Dockery & Son.

Chestnut Street Coming Strong.

As a center of automobile traffic, second only to Locust street in importance, Chestnut street is challenging attention from business interests with ambitious building plans.

As one of the foremost promoters of the city it is natural to presume that only a building on a large scale is contemplated by Cook, whose recognition of Chestnut street cannot but have a wholesome effect on that thoroughfare.

RUMSEY ESTATE BUILDINGS ARE LEASED TO BUSINESS CONCERNS

Cornet & Zeibig report having leased 801-07 North Main street, containing about 35,000 square feet of floor space, to the Broderick & Bascom Co. The property is owned by the L. M. Rumsey estate.

Also leased for the L. M. & Moses Rumsey estate, 813-19 North Main street, containing about 30,000 square feet, to the Donovan Iron and Supply Co.

The firm also leased 2209 Pine street for Florence D. Lucas to the Columbia Graphophone Co.

Manchester Road Corner Sold.

The Dougherty Real Estate Co. reports the sale of the southeast corner of Manchester road and Collier avenue, in St. Louis County, being 2¾ acres of ground, improved with a six-room house. This property is located just east of the old Fauna-Flora property and was sold for the account of Mary R. Stevens to Mark Gumberts. Gumberts was represented by the M. J. Murphy Realty Co.

Steffens Buys Home at Clayton.

George V. Steffens has bought the colonial residence at Clayton, formerly the home of William D. Walsh. It has 10 rooms, several baths, and garage for three cars. The grounds are spacious. The Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co. represented both parties.

FRANCISCUS TO ATTEND REALTY MEETING AT ATLANTA, JAN. 11

The midwinter meeting of the officers, regional directors, local board, presidents and executive committeemen of the National Association of Real Estate Boards will be held at Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 11-14. James M. Franciscus will represent the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange and President Hannauer may also attend.

It is expected that 50 new boards, representing as many cities, will apply for membership in the national association. The St. Louis exchange is assisting Columbia, Hannibal, Kirksville, Mexico, Moberly, Poplar Bluff and Jefferson City, where efforts are being made to organize boards.

Marion Fuqua has been appointed chairman of the Chicago Convention Club. He is selecting a committee to assist in obtaining the pledges of 200 to attend the fourteenth annual convention of the national association to be held at Chicago.

Mrs. Lockett Sells Residence.

The Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co. reports having sold the new nine-room residence at 4319 McPherson avenue for Mrs. James Lockett to Blasdel Shapleigh. The seller was represented by the Bush Burns Real Estate Co.

S. W. STRAUS ON BUILDING OUTLOOK

He Declares Labor and Transportation Conditions Are Improving.

Reviewing the building situation, S. W. Straus, president of S. W. Straus & Co. says:

"The closing days of the year find activity in the building situation at a low ebb, and the general housing shortage is no less alarming than it was a year ago.

"The period has witnessed progress toward stabilization, and, with the coming of more seasonable weather in the spring, the long awaited activities may be inaugurated which will in the course of time, it is hoped, restore normal housing conditions.

"Labor and transportation conditions are improving. These are factors of great potential significance in an analysis of building tendencies. With their continued improvement will come a more stabilized market for materials which will exert an encouraging influence upon capital. Previous to the war income from improved property in many localities and instances was too low and it is noted that a more favorable and apparently permanent readjustment of income from improved real estate investments is taking place.

Favorable Signs.

"Thus, while construction is at a low ebb at this time, fundamental conditions are favorable for the resumption of building on a large scale. It should be borne in mind that lasting improvement can be brought about in the housing situation only as these basic conditions are favorable. Unfair agitation and over-drastic legislative restrictions tend to divert capital from building investments to other channels and thus have a harmful effect on the housing situation. The law of supply and demand is the final determining factor in the situation and every rightful influence, therefore, that will encourage more building, should be exerted.

"Particular impetus should be given to home building and home ownership, which constitutes one of the most substantial exemplifications of thrift. With the present manifestations of underlying unrest in Europe, added importance is attached to the sentiment toward widespread home ownership in this country, and as this fact becomes more generally recognized there is increased likelihood that one of the outstanding features of the ensuing year will be a large amount of home construction.

High Interest Rates.

"The well-defined sentiment against a too high interest rate for first mortgages on improved real estate, which now is making itself felt, will prove a very helpful factor. As is the case in all other lines of industry, efforts to attract capital at exorbitant rates of interest must be viewed with distrust. Abnormally high interest rates paid by any corporation necessarily tends not only to weaken the financial structure, but to encourage practices of profiteering. Conditions of this kind would if continued exert a harmful influence on the building industry.

"While adverse tendencies may manifest themselves temporarily here and there, the general situation is becoming stabilized, and this will become more pronounced as all interests show a greater willingness to be fair and just in their practices, and as the spirit of harmony grows and the principles of thrift and efficiency are more generally applied."

REPORTS CLOSING 14 REALTY DEALS IN THE LAST MONTH

Tony Hurleman, with offices at 3118 South Grand avenue, reports closing 14 sales last month, some of these transactions consisted of a country home in Shrewsbury with two acres of ground, a two-acre tract on the Denny road, in Kirkwood, a bungalow in Southampton, residence at 6925 Hancock avenue, Lindenwood, single flat at 4058 Shenandoah avenue, double flat at 2706 South Eighteenth street, single flat at 5011 Louisiana avenue and a cottage at 6617 Elmer avenue.

Dress Company Leases Quarters.

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. reports having leased the fifth floor of the building at the southwest corner of Eighth street and Lucas avenue to the Ideal Dress Co. now at the northwest corner of the same thoroughfare. The lease was made for the O. J. Lewis Mercantile Co.

HOUSE PICTURED AS CLASSIC IS SOLD FOR ABOUT $25,000

J. I. Epstein reports having sold 6930 Waterman avenue for Fannie Mohr to Dr. Alex. Horowitz, for about $25,000. This is one of two houses which, because of their classic appearance and distinctive architecture, were photographed for use in the Christmas number of the House and Garden Magazine.

Heath Again at His Office.

Chauncey P. Heath, president of the Heath Real Estate Co., is again at headquarters after an operation for appendicitis. He was confined at St. Luke's Hospital for two weeks.

MADISON COUNTY IS WET GOODS 'HOT SPOT'

Runs Nearly Even With 38 Other Counties in Prohibition Enforcement District.

Madison County, Ill., the southwest corner of which is across the Mississippi River from North St. Louis, has proven a "hot spot" for the Federal prohibition enforcement officers. It is one of 39 counties in a district which has its headquarters in Springfield, and the records of the United States District Court in Springfield show that Madison County makes nearly as much trouble for the enforcement officers as the 38 other counties combined.

Since Jan. 16 last, 180 persons in the district have been convicted or have pleaded guilty of violations of the Volstead law, and paid fines amounting to $33,500. Of this sum. Madison County has contributed $14,925. About 600 arrests have been made in the district.

The city of Madison, in Madison County, has had more cases of conviction and pleas of guilty thus far than any other municipality in the district. It has furnished 23 of the persons who have paid fines, and Granite City is second with 15, both these places being ahead of Springfield, the State Capital, which has had but 13. Mount Olive, a mining town in Macoupin County, had 14. Livingston, Alton and Collinsville, all in Madison County, had eight convictions each, and Venice, also in Madison County, had seven. The cities of Quincy, Decatur and Carlinville, in other parts of the district, had only five each. Other towns in the district had three or less.

Marshall Dallman of the court at Springfield declared yesterday, according to a dispatch, that if Madison County cases did not stop piling up, the court would have to remain in session the year around. A large number of cases are to come before the January grand jury.

WASHINGTON AV. REALTY IN NOTABLE DEMAND

Residence and Business Property on Widened Section of Thoroughfare Reported Sold.

Considerable activity is developing in the vicinity of the widened section of Washington avenue, as indicated by sales reported by real estate agents, reflecting the wholesome effect of that project.

Albert T. Terry & Co., in connection with R. Vernon Clark of East St. Louis, announce the sale of 80 feet of ground on the south side improved with a residence known as 2912 Washington avenue, formerly the Leete home, from J. C. Spencer of White Hall, Ill., to a client of Goldwasser & Dubinsky.

The John S. Blake & Bro. Realty Co. reports the sale of a business building at 3130 Washington avenue, a one-story garage, covering the entire lot 49x140 feet, under lease to the Kardell Motor Car Co. The property was sold for F. Scalzo to Frank Dallavalle.

SIMMONS, HIDDEN, BROOKINGS ON PAN-AMERICAN COMMITTEES

St. Louisans to Direct Study of Commercial and Economic Problems in Southern Countries.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Secretary Houston announced tonight the personnel of the 20 permanent American group committees appointed on recommendation of the first and second Pan-American financial conferences, to study financial and economic problems in connection with the southern countries to which they are assigned. Each committee consists of 12 members and will work in co-operation with the Secretary of Commerce and the Pan-American Union, and collaborate with the inter-American high commission and the permanent committee on communication.

Committee heads are: Argentina, Lewis E. Pierson, New York; Bolivia, Joseph P. Grace, New York; Brazil, Oscar T. Crosby, Warrenton, Va.; Chile, Paul M. Warburg, New York; Colombia, Wallace D. Simmons, St. Louis; Costa Rica, Walter Parker, New Orleans; Cuba, Franklin Q. Brown, New York; Dominican Republic, Charles J. Rhoades, Philadelphia; Ecuador, E. M. Erb, Pittsburg; Guatemala, John Clausen, Seattle; Haiti, Edward Hidden, St. Louis; Honduras, John W. Thomas, Chicago; Mexico, Robert S. Brookings, St. Louis; Nicaragua, W. L. Saunders, New York; Panama, James Brown, New York; Paraguay, Joseph H. Bagley, Washington; Peru, John H. Fahey, Boston; Salvador, Theodore Wold, Minneapolis; Uruguay, Harry A. Wheeler, Chicago; Venezuela, Robert H. Patchin, New York.

New England Society Banquet.

At the annual banquet of the New England Society of St. Louis, at the Buckingham Hotel, Tuesday evening. Gov. Brough of Arkansas will speak on "America's Conquest of the World," and former United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois will have for his subject "Our Country and Its Tomorrow."

C. OF C. CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL WEDNESDAY

Acts From Most of Theaters Obtained—Ann Pennington of "Scandals of 1920" on Program.

The annual Christmas festival of the Chamber of Commerce will take place at the organization's noon luncheon, Wednesday, at Hotel Statler. Elaborate preparations are being made for the affair. This is the fifth such festival that has been held.

Heads of all the city's civic organizations will attend. Mayor Kiel will be present and officials and members of the Chamber of Commerce will be out in force. A feature of the entertainment will be the "Carnival of the Toys."

The Statler ballroom will be decorated with Christmas greens and holly. A giant Christmas tree will occupy one end of the room while smaller trees will be placed in each window. The shades will be drawn and a night effect given the affair by clusters of electric lights that will be strung over the heads of the diners. Pretty girls in costume of various nations will distribute favors, noise-makers and confetti.

A feature of the entertainment program will be Ann Pennington, of the "Scandals of 1920" company who is cast for the part of Alice in Wonderland in a surprise skit in which Mayor Kiel and President Carter of the Chamber of Commerce are also cast for parts.

An act from most of the theaters has been obtained. The program includes a quartet from "Buddies;" the headline attraction at the Orpheum; Dave Harries, syncopation expert from the Rialto; Monti and Parti from the Grand Opera House and Gillano and Marguerite from Loew's Garrick. Gene Rodemich's orchestra will play jazzful melodies.

Workhouse Guard Honored.

L. F. Baldwin, a guard at the city workhouse, was presented with a monogramed watchfob and Odd Fellows' charm by fellow guards last Thursday on the occasion of the first anniversary of the eight-hour day for the guards and employes. Baldwin is credited with the success of the efforts for shortening the work day. Fourteen guards attended the presentation exercises.

CORONER CONDEMNED FOR AN APPOINTMENT

Officials of League of Women Voters File Protest in Dr. Weaver Case.

The Board of Presidents of the League of Women Voters of St. Louis has issued a statement condemning Coroner Richter for his action in appointing Dr. Darrington Weaver, a negro, as one of his autopsy physicians. The reason for the League's protest is that Dr. Weaver was convicted, in the Federal Court, of violating the Volstead prohibition enforcement act, and was fined $400. The alleged violation was in writing a prescription for liquor without making the examination required by the law.

The Board of Presidents of the League, consisting of Mrs. Anna M. Faris, Mrs. H. E. Sprague and Mrs. E. T. Senseney, has written to the State Board of Health, asking whether a conviction for violating the Volstead act would not be proper ground for revocation of a physician's State license. In this letter, the women condemn, as "an affront to the citizens of St. Louis, the deliberate appointment to public office of a man who has used his State license as a cloak for lawbreaking."

The Executive Committee of the St. Louis Medical Forum, with a membership of 37 negro physicians, has issued a statement declaring that it never indorsed Dr. Weaver for the appointment, and would not have done so if requested to. "We do not consider," the statement says, "that a man who has been convicted of violating a Federal law is the proper man to be appointed to this position."

House Votes on Clayton Act Clause.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The House voted today to suspend until Jan. 1, 1922, the section of the Clayton anti-trust act prohibiting railroads from having financial interest in concerns furnishing them supplies and requiring the purchase of supplies from the lowest bidder. Chairman Esch of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, explained that these sections of the Clayton act were in conflict with certain sections of the transportation act and that the suspension had been voted pending the amending of the former.

IT PROVES CONclusively that man is a powerful, concentrated body of magnetic-electric energy when he passes out of his statue of flesh; a vegitable "electric-skyrocket," darting from point to point at 288,000 miles per second. That he must necessarily travel at the speed of electricity to be of any use out in the universe.

Also that he retains all of his millions of memory records and automatic abilities and as a consequence is this many million times superior to and more positive in reality than the lifeless, inanimate clay from which he emanated.

Get this book of super-knowledge and education for yourself and children. It will make them immune from immorality and infidelity to the ultimate culmination into $50,000 men and women.

We must have 3000 $3.50 checks for the publishing company this week. I am advancing the advertising money. You advance for what you will receive until we can get this powerful book of elevating education started.

Many copies will be given free to poor boys and girls.

You read the details in last Sunday's paper under ad. "What Becomes of Us When We Die?" Hundreds of inquiries are coming in, but few checks. We cannot multiply the book without money. We find it impossible to get financial backing to print in advance a book with a moral influence. It is up to the mothers and fathers.

A. W. Farrell, 3628 Washington bl., sole distributor for "Admonitions of a Young Man to Himself." Licensed dealer 10 years. You can make checks payable to me or Christian Board of Publication. They can finish first 500 copies in a week.

HOLDUP MAN SLAIN IN CHICAGO WAS HERE DAY BEFORE

Thomas F. Heavey and Companion Departed Early Last Wednesday, Detective Making Search Is Told.

Thomas F. Heavey, former sailor, killed in a pistol fight with Patrolman Charles Conlon, who was also killed when the policeman surprised a holdup man in a drug store in the loop district of Chicago at midnight Thursday, was in St. Louis from Dec. 10 to the early morning of Dec. 15, rooming at 4052 Delmar boulevard, it was learned yesterday by Detective Sergt. John Roach, who investigated supposed St. Louis connections with Heavey and his companions.

At 7:30 a. m. last Wednesday Heavey and a companion, known here as William White, left the Delmar boulevard address in a taxicab and told Mrs. J. B. Johnson, proprietress of the rooming house they intended taking an early train for Chicago.

Both Heavey and White wore tortoise shell glasses, Detective Roach was told, and on this and other information gathered by the St. Louis detectives a request was sent to the Chicago police last night for photographs of Heavey and his companions. The pictures will be shown to Lyndon W. Press of 3755 Gravois avenue, owner of a service car who was held up on the night of Dec. 14 by three men wearing such glasses and made to accompany the trio in a round of oil filling stations they held up and robbed. The robberies occurred the night before Heavey and his partner fled from the city. The tortoise shell robbers have not been heard from since that night in St. Louis.

A. H. Beinke, 3956A Russell avenue, proprietor of an oil-filling station at Chouteau avenue and Sarah street, and Robert Earlinger, 901 North Taylor avenue, manager of a station at Theresa avenue and Locust street, who were held up, robbed and locked in ante-rooms by the robbers, will also be asked to look at the photographs.

In All Day; Out at Night.

Mrs. Johnson, at the Delmar boulevard address, told Detective Roach yesterday that both Heavey and his companion during their stay at her home remained in their room all day and were out most of the night. They received many telephone messages during the day, she said. When they departed, she said, they appeared in a hurry and took a new wardrobe trunk owned by Heavey in the taxicab with them. They told her if any mail came for them to send it to "general delivery" in Chicago.

Heavey was shot and killed the next night.

In the room occupied by the pair yesterday the detectives found a receipt for the trunk he had when he came here. It showed he had paid $45 for it at a store on Wabash avenue, Chicago, Dec. 6, and had it sent to an address on South Park avenue, in Chicago. Messages from Chicago later said police had raided this place and had recovered $8000 cash and a quantity of watches and other jewelry supposed to have been stolen.

In the room the detectives also found a receipt for a Pullman berth and other papers indicating Heavey and his companion had arrived in St. Louis on Dec. 10. Detectives also learned that Heavey and two others had been in St. Louis on Oct. 11, 12 and 13, at which time they registered at the Pershing Hotel (formerly the Congress), on Market street, and at that time Heavey had pawned his overcoat at a Market street shop for $15. He never reclaimed it and it is there still, they reported.

Tells of Pal Being Killed.

Last week, when Heavey was here he dropped into the hotel, and when asked by a porter his reason for the visit he asked the porter if he had not read about a pistol battle in Chicago in which the chauffeur for the Chief of Police had shot and killed one of several highwaymen. The man killed, he told the porter, was his "pal," and he had fled to St. Louis after the shooting.

Information from Chicago, contained in a letter from Chief Hughes to Chief Hannegan, caused detectives to investigate a statement that Heavey while he had robber several places and had narrowly escaped arrest by hiding in the cellar of a place raided by the police. The information, the message stated, was contained in a letter written by Heavey to Gerald Solomon, a prisoner in Chicago, and which was intercepted by the police.

Heavey in the letter said he had assisted in a $3800 clothing robbery and had sold his share for $320, and stated that he had a "good one" planned for the next Monday. From the dates given in the message, however, the police believe Heavy referred to a robbery committed in Chicago, as none that could be identified as the one referred to was known to the police here.

Robbery Not Known to Police.

Heavey also mentioned having used a Marmon automobile in another robbery which netted 35 suits and 19 overcoats, afterwards abandoning the automobile. Police say they have not had a report of a car of that description having been stolen for months, none abandoned here and no robbery of the kind reported that they could find in the records. These are under investigation still.

As has been told in dispatches, Heavey attempted to hold up the drug store and the girl cashier locked the cash register and refused to open it. A dozen clerks and customers in the place fled, an alarm was given, and Policeman Conlon arrived before Heavey could get through the jam at the door. Several companions said to have been waiting outside in an automobile escaped. In the subsequent pistol fight between Heavey and Conlon, both were killed. Heavey was later identified by a sailor who had been kidnaped in an automobile and robbed of his savings of $480. He was also said to be a St. Louis police character. The police here had never heard of him before under that name, however, and say from the papers found in his room and other facts gleaned here that he must be the product of some other city.

ARGUMENTS HERE TO HOLD UP D & R G SALE

Attorney for Intervening Stockholders Heard by Federal Judges Sanborne and Lewis.

In opposing a motion for confirmation of the recent forcelosure sale of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, Attorney John Lee Webster, representing a committee of intervening stockholders of the road yesterday told United States Circuit Judge Walter H. Sanborn and District Judge Robert D. Lewis, sitting here as the United States District Court of Colorado, that the property was sold for $5,000,000, although it was fairly and reasonably worth $200,000,000.

In connection with this statement Webster reiterated to the court the charge he made in the United States Court of Appeals here last Tuesday, as was published in the Post-Dispatch of that day, that a group of financiers and railroad magnates, including the Gould interests, through interlocking directorates had brought about the foreclosure sale of the Denver & Rio Grande, considered to have been one of the most expensive railroad projects ever launched in the United States.

Wants Confirmation Held Up.

Webster asked that no action be taken regarding the confirmation of the sale until the United States Circuit Court of Appeals had passed on the appeal of the intervening stockholders from the ruling of the District Court of Nebraska, denying them the right to intervene and refusing to enjoin the enforcement of the judgment against the Denver & Rio Grande in favor of the Equitable Trust Co. of New York.

He added that two suits in equity were filed Friday in the United States District Court at Denver against the enforcement of the judgment, and that the purposes of the suits were to have the order of sale vacated, the judgment set aside and to obtain from the Equitable Trust Co., an accounting of all money received by the company on account of the judgment. The equity suits, he said, also were to be made part of the intervention proceeding.

"The property of the Denver & Rio Grande was bid in by John F. Bowie counsel for the Denver & Rio Grande; John B. Marsh and Ralph M. Arkush for the sum of $5,000,000 which sum is so much less than the actual cost of the property as to be shocking to the conscience," said Webster in his argument.

Contention as to Value.

"We contend that the property is fairly and reasonably worth $200,000,000, that prior liens were limited to $121,000,000, leaving the actual value of the property at $79,000,000. The sale and purchase of the company's franchise rights and properties for $5,000,000 was part of a collusive scheme and understanding between certain financial interests by which the franchises and property should be acquired for a nominal sum for the ultimate purpose of having the property transferred to a newly created organization known as the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad Corporation, to be owned and controlled for the profit of a few railroad magnates and financiers to the exclusion of and dissipation of all the property rights of the petitioners and other stockholders similarly situated.

"We also oppose the confirmation on the ground that the Equitable Trust Co.'s judgment was obtained for a collusive purpose, and on the further ground that the special master who handled the sale of the road had no legal authority to sell the company's franchises in Utah and New Mexico."

Denial as to Goulds.

Attorney George Welwood Murray of counsel for the Equitable Trust Co., last Wednesday, in response to Webster's charge, said that no fraud in the recovery of the judgment had been shown, and denied that the Goulds dominated the affairs of the Denver & Rio Grande. He pointed to the fact that the judgment had been obtained on a contract between the Denver & Rio Grande, the Western Pacific Railroad Co., and the Equitable Trust Co., which had been ratified by the unanimous vote of 682,104½ shares present out of a total of 836,785 7-16 shares then outstanding.

The motion for confirmation of the sale was taken under advisement.

STATE CHAPTER OF CATHOLIC ALUMNAE ELECTS OFFICERS

Federation Representing 2200 Members Hears Plans Here for Social Work.

The following officers for 1921 were elected yesterday afternoon by the Missouri Chapter of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae at its annual meeting in the parlors of the Queen's Daughters, 3730 Lindell boulevard: Governor, Mrs. Joseph S. Geisel of Kansas City; vice-governors, Mrs. Eugene Fusz, Miss Catharine Pauck and Miss Jennie Dougherty, all of St. Louis; trustees, Misses Ida Cooper and Hester O'Malley of St. Louis and Miss Oberlin of Kansas City.

There are 18 educational institutions of high school and college grade included in the Missouri chapter and a total of over 2200 alumnae represented. Miss Pauline E. Boislinlere, first vice president of the International Federation, submitted a report showing great progress in the work of the federation in the cause of education, social service and work for the blind. Miss Marie R. Garesche, international chairman of the Bureau of Art, outlined the work of the St. Luke Art Society in St. Louis, which will soon be extended to other cities and which aims to foster the love and study of art among Catholics in general and to encourage a high standard of art in the Catholic schools.

TESTIFIES MRS. CUTTS OFFERED HIM MONEY TO POISON SHEPARD

Farmer Hand Witness for State at Hearing in Death of Georgia "Peach King."

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 18.—Through testimony of former tenants on the Cutts plantation in Wilcox County, the State sought to establish in the preliminary hearing of the Shepard case here today that Mrs. Annie Cutts attempted to employ a 20-year-old farm hand to poison Fred D. Shepard, Georgia "peach king," that he actually was poisoned in her kitchen and that through his death she hoped to get money to pay a $12,000 mortgage on the place. Testimony that poison was found in the viscera of Shepard was given by experts early in the week.

Judge Mathews again held that the testimony was applicable only to Mrs. Cutts and not to the other three defendants, Shepard's widow, now Mrs. Pauline Elmer; her son, Ernest Hopson, and her sister, Mrs. Iona Henry.

The defense sought to show animus of the witnesses against Eldredge Cutts, husband of Mrs. Cutts, and that they had been offered rewards for their testimony. It was brought out that the family had been evicted from the Cutts plantation last spring.

J. A. Turner Sr., head of the tenant family, stated that when Mrs. Cutts revealed the alleged plot to "knock the trucks out from under" Shepard he did not tell anyone about it because he did not believe what she told him. His son, J. A. Turner Jr., testified that Mrs. Cutts offered him "plenty of money" to poison Shepard. Threats by Mrs. Cutts against her own husband were charged by Mrs. J. A. Turner in her testimony.

St. Louisan Robbed in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—Two bandits last night held up Julius Kauffman, giving his residence as St. Louis. They dragged him into the vestibule of a building in the loop and robbed him of $40 and a gold watch.

PITTSBURG STEEL MILLS TO REDUCE WAGES FIRST OF YEAR

Officers of Principal Companies There Say Cut in Rate of Pay Will Be Drastic.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 18.—Executive officers of the principal independent steel companies here, when informed of a wage readjustment in the mills of the Cambria Steel Co. at Johnstown, said that, while the rate of pay had not yet been touched in Pittsburg mills, drastic reductions would be announced for the beginning of the new year.

Wage reductions, affecting 8000 men, were announced in the Wheeling (W. Va.) steel district during the past week.

TROY, N. Y., Dec. 18.—The knit goods manufacturers of Troy, Cohoes and Waterford, this afternoon announced a reduction of wages to take effect Jan. 3. The grounds for the reduction are given as the downward trend of living costs. About 30 mills are affected.

And placed your cold hands upon your dear breast.
In silence you suffered with patience you bore
Till God called you home to suffer no more.

Sadly missed by MOTHER AND FATHER.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

M. M.—Consult the newspaper files at the Public Library for the article.

SUNDAY READER.—There is a Justice by the name you mention. Consult the city directory for the address.

SERGEANT.—Write to the Adjutant-General of the Illinois National Guard, State House, Springfield, Ill., for full information.

HOPEFUL.—Apply to the District Secretary of the United States Civil Service, Charles Hendricks, Old Custom House, for the information you desire.

E. A. V.—The total vote cast in Texas in the presidential election Nov. 2 was 488,706. The Democrats polled 289,688, the Republicans polled 115,640.

PHILO YOUNG.—The list of automobiles manufactured in the United States is too long to publish in this column. Consult the Automobile Trade Association in St. Louis.

SUBSCRIBER OF THE POST-DISPATCH.—You may be able to get into The Altenheim, 5408 South Broadway, or the Little Sisters of the Poor, 2209 Hebert and 3044 South Grand avenue.

MITI.—The following are some words spelt in the simplified way: ad, addrest, anser, ar, askt, bil (d), buro, catalog, det, engin, enuf, fil (d), fixt, giv, hav, insted, liv (d), program, reciet, reciev (d), shal, shipt, tel, telefone (al), tho, thoro (ly, fare, etc.), thru (out), twelv, wil, yu. Further information on this subject may be obtained by addressing the Simplified Spelling Board, 1 Madison avenue, New York City, N. Y.

ASPIRANT.—A scenario is neither a "continued story" nor a synopsis. Some comprise the cast of characters, a short synopsis of the story, then the continuity, which is made up of the brief, running descriptions of the action. In a studio a scenario is known as a continuity, a verbal "map," in reality, which outlines all the action, and includes title and subtitles. If you desire to write a scenario, it would perhaps be better to write a synopsis, and if it has the germ of a story or a whole one it can be made into continuity more easily in the studio, where production assets and limitations are known.

INKY GEORGE.—So-called white inks are, properly speaking, white paints, as a white solution cannot be made. A paint suitable for use as an "ink" may be made by grinding zinc oxide very fine on a slab with a little tragacanth mucilage, and then thinning to a required consistency. The mixture should be shaken or stirred from time to time to keep the pigment from separating. A little oil of cloves or other antiseptic added may prevent decomposition of the mucilage. Another "ink" may be made by adding to a small bottle of water enough washing soda to make a clear white line, then adding enough gum arabic to prevent spreading and making ragged lines.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

R. F. D.—If you are sued you had better file an answer in court.

X. Y. Z.—You are violating the law and are subject to prosecution.

W. I.—You should not keep company with other women unless you get a divorce.

SORRY.—The only thing you can do is to persuade the furniture company to wait for the payments.

THANK YOU.—There is no law against beating a carpet in your yard where there are other tenants.

F. J. S.—The execution was legal and was thoroughly thrashed out before the courts and the Governor.

A. S.—The widow of a retired soldier does not draw a pension after his death unless he was disabled.

INKY GEORGE.—Inquire at the office of the License Collector at the City Hall, for information concerning the licenses.

C. C. PILL.—Because there is nothing in a safe capable of being property in a legal sense, this does not give one a legal right to open that safe without permission of the owner.

MRS. MURRAY.—Chinese women are not allowed to come to the United States to live. A Chinaman can marry a white woman in this country.

F. I. L.—It is not legal to obtain a marriage license under an assumed name and have the right names entered on the marriage certificate.

CONSTANT READER.—Under such circumstances Jones can sue either Smith or Johnson for the money. If Johnson knew the notes belonged to Jones he can be prosecuted criminally.

A. D. S.—You cannot deduct your dentist bill and the cost of your music lessons from your income tax. If you are the head of a family there would be no tax on an income of that amount.

DOUBTFUL.—An engineer's license will be granted to a stranger in the city if he can pass the examination. Apply to the Board of Examiners at the City Hall and take the examination.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

B. H. FERTUNA.—Emphysema is an over distension followed by a shrinking of the air vesicles of the lung. By far the larger number of cases follow a chronic bronchitis, some follow whooping cough. Blowing on wind instruments, glass blowing, as well as occupations calling for heavy lifting and muscular strain are also causes. The outlook as to cure, excepting in acute cases, which heal spontaneously, is unfavorable. The course is always a chronic one and much may be done for the comfort of the patient. No class of cases are so benefited by admission to hospitals as members of the laboring class afflicted with emphysema. It is impossible, so far as we know, to restore destroyed lung tissue. Efforts must be made to avert the conditions which complicate and increase the emphysema. As chronic bronchitis is the most frequent cause, when this exists, every means must be taken for its relief. The general health being often impaired, it is important this should be re-established. Tonics and the very best food is called for. Digestion and proper elimination should receive attention. Attacks of bronchial asthma should be broken by ¼ grain hypodermics of morphine with 1-150 grain of atropine. This usually terminates the attack immediately, if not the dose may be repeated in about six hours. Intermittent compression of the chest, to coincide with natural breathing, is very helpful. This would have to be done, of course, by a nurse or an assistant. An apparatus which provides for the inhalation of compressed air and expiration into rarefied air has been suggested. Unfortunately it is costly and difficult to apply. The disease has no connection with tuberculosis.

IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of our darling grandchild and her sweet mother, Clara A. Harrington. Just one year ago, little sweetheart, the good Lord has taken you from us, and almost four years since your good mother has passed away, but grandma and dady will always think of you.
MR. AND MRS. JOHN GOETZ AND FAMILY.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and father, Gustan Fiebig, who departed this life Dec. 20, 1919:

One sad year has passed away
Since that sad and sorrowful day;
We miss his coming footsteps,
We miss him everywhere.
Home is not what it used to be
Since father is not there.

Sadly missed by WIFE AND SONS.

In loving memory of my dear son, our brother and nephew, Robert Huss, who departed this life one year ago, Dec. 14, 1919, and whose birthday falls on this Sabbath:

One year has passed since that sad day,
One whom we loved was called away;
God called him home, it was His will;
But in our hearts he liveth still.

MOTHER, BROTHERS, RELATIVES AND FRIENDS.

In loving memory of our darling son, Joseph L., beloved son of Alice and Arthur Jackson, who departed this life one year ago, Dec. 21, 1919, aged 15 years and 10 months.

When the evening shades are falling
And our hearts are sad and blue,
Longing and aching, darling Joseph, for you.
You are gone but not forgotten.

Sadly missed by
PARENTS, RELATIVES AND FRIENDS. (c)

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Annie Steinberg, who departed this life two years ago, Dec. 18, 1918.

Silently the shades of evening
Gather round our lonely door;
Silently they bring before us
The dear face we see no more.
So often do we go to her grave,
Ling'ring there and trying to be brave;
But, oh! 'tis hard to bear,
To go away and leave her there.

Sadly missed by her sister,
LEOISE DUSOLD. (c)

In loving memory of dear mother and grandmother, Nettie Dunwoody, who died Dec. 8, 1919, and dear brother, William Dunwoody, who died Nov. 17, 1915:

In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where flowers gently wave,
Lie the ones we love most dearly
In their silent, lonely graves.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear mother and brother,
'Tis sweet to breathe your names.
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.

Sadly missed by daughter, sister, grandson and nephew.

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Elenora Tyberendt, who departed this life Dec. 17, 1919, one year ago:

When the evening shades are falling
And we are sitting alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing
If she only could come home.
No friend like her on earth will be found.
God called her home; it was His will;
But in our hearts she lingers still.
For all of us she did her best;
May God grant her eternal rest.

Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTERS-IN-LAW.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Mrs. Minnie Kamp, who departed this life two years ago today:

'Twas just two years ago today
Since the hour you passed away.
Time you spent on earth in pain
Can never come to you again.
It was very hard to part with you,
But God knew what was best to do.
You did your part and did it well,
So He took you where the angels dwell,
Where there is no pain and sorrow.

Sadly missed by
CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving remembrance of our dear wife and mother, Mary Stuart, who died Dec. 20, 1919:

The month of December again is here,
To us the saddest of the year,
Because it took from us away
A dear one, just one year ago today.
Her loving heart is now at rest;
God took her home when he thought it best.
When we are done with toils and care
We'll meet our dear mother there.

Sadly missed by HUSBAND AND SON.

In sweet remembrance of my dear wife and sister, Hannah Goedecke (nee Ahrenholz), died Dec. 18, 1918: Dear Hanna, Christmas cheer is coming near, and to me it brings no cheer; in the last few years, though, I know that you are happy with the loved ones over there—father, mother and brothers dear. When evening shadows gather round my door, to my heart there comes grief and sorrow. Oh, how I long for all of you to be here to bring back my Christmas cheer.

Sadly mourned in the home of your dear sister, Kate Schnell; George Schnell and Frank Goedecke, husband. (c)

In loving memory of my dear and only child, Sergt. William Henry Ahrens, Company I, 354th Infantry, Eighty-ninth Division. It was two years ago, yesterday, the 18th of December, 1920, when the sad message came to us that you, my only son, had made the supreme sacrifice on Nov. 1, 1918, in France:

Dearest William,
Two years have passed; my heart still sore;
As time goes on, I miss you more.
If I had seen you at the last
And held your dying hand,
And heard the last sigh from your heart,
I would not feel so bad.
We did not know the pains you had;
We did not see you die;
We only knew you had to go across the sea,
And never said good-bye.
My heart is filled with sadness
For the smile from your face I see no more.
Roses may fade and wither, leaves may fade and die;
If others forget you, never shall I.

Sadly missed by mother and father,
MR. AND MRS. KIESSLING.

"DON'T let anyone tell you" that the "crash" in clothing prices haven't arrived. We are "slashing" prices 20 per cent to 50 per cent here. Something tells us "someone" is going to get a "good lacing" in the clothing "game." We are the "pinch-hitters" on the "Trail of the lonesome bank roll." "The crash in high prices have came." You can't pull that $65, $75 and $100 stuff and "get across with it" at all. "We are with you" for 10 years have led the way fighting for low prices, assisting thousands to "help keep up that prosperous appearance," which "means everything today," by dressing them up at little or no cost. In cloth and wool suits, 20 to 40 per cent savings on our drummers' samples, suits and overcoats, $14.98, $19.98, $24.98, $27.98, $29.98. Mackinaw coat, $9.98, $11.98, $12.98, $14.98. "We claim $5 profit is all we need on any suit." We have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. "We're out of the high-rent district." "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you." These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you money. All we ask you is to "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." "Buy more, pay less." Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. We again announce our "Trade-In Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "Abrams," "The Place to Buy Clothes," 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau. (c)

PRICES cut 50 per cent on all merchandise, plumbing, hardware, paints and electric fixtures; 5-ft. white enamel guaranteed bathtub, $30; sink, back drainboard and end, all in one piece, regular price $70, reduced to $40; vitreous china closet outfits complete, $30; high tank closet outfits, $25; 40-gallon riveted boilers, $18. We have a beautiful line of silver candle fixtures, table and boudoir lamps at 50 per cent reductions. See us and convince yourself. Kopman Bros. Hardware, 2014 Franklin. Please remember we are in the center of the block. Central 761. Bomont 2640. (c)

BRING us your "small change." We are "whispering words" of "comfort" to the "low bankroll guy." You might be a regular fellow in your "own home town," but it don't mean anything here if you go around looking down and out; look the "city part"; if this "means anything to your young life," where you can "doll up" and look prosperous at "little or no cost to you," "play our way today." We are working on all our "six cylinders for you now." Everyone in life must have some "incentive," some "goal to reach," something to look "forward" for, to go ahead, to rise, to be prosperous. You can reach it if you don't go around looking "down and out." For 10 years we have "helped the under dog" to "keep his head above water and looking prosperous" at "all times" we have driven "home" that "saving and prosperous looking habit," to thousands of people, "dressing them up" at little or no cost to them. Buy our uncalled for clothes; "start anew;" we are "calling you." What you save when you spend your dough is your profit. Install the "Abrams System" of clothes buying and save. We have in "store" for you high-class suits; you can afford to wear two or three suits a season for the price of the customary one by purchasing our uncalled-for garments from our cleaning department; garments are tailor-made and from the best manufacturers; $10 to $20. Can you wear 34, 36, 40, 46 to 50 sizes? Also English and plain models. Vests, 50c; pants, $2 to $3.95; coats, $5 to $10; uncalled for Stetson hats, 95c to $1.50. Open Sundays until 8 p. m. Abrams, Cleaners and Dyers, 926 S. Vandeventer, near Chouteau. Mail orders filled. Both phones.

USED CARS
Where Your Judgment Should Prevail.
Why?

¶ For a number of potential reasons, the most prominent as follows:

¶ Used Cars based on present list prices in the entire history of the Automobile industry have never been lower.

¶ The selection now is at its peak.

¶ Within the next sixty days prices will be considerably higher due to the spring demand.

¶ Terms are most attractive at this time due to the slow market.

¶ And, all things considered, it surely is the opportune time to select and buy your Motor Car for next year's use.

SWIMMING POOL PROJECT

Washington U. Man to Complete or Abandon It.

Completion or final abandonment of the swimming pool project at Washington University has been determined upon by the Men's Union of the University, it having hung fire since 1915.

When the pool idea was proposed, five years ago, pledges aggregating $11,000 were obtained. When about $600 had been collected the country went to war and nothing more was done. The proposal is to construct the pool of cement outside of Francis gymnasium, under a temporary cover, but ultimately to extend the gymnasium to embrace it.

ROUP? Read This Letter

LaBelle, Mo., Oct. 28, 1920.
The G. E. Conkey Co., Cleveland, Ohio.
Gentlemen:
I am a constant user of Conkey's Roup Remedy. I could not raise chickens without it. I want a large package of it [illegible]. I do [illegible] I can not [illegible] now [illegible] chickens [illegible] small [illegible] 2½-pound boxes [illegible] me [illegible] I [illegible] not [illegible]
Respectfully,
Mrs. Will Hall.

Conkey's Roup Remedy

It stops it quick. Just put it in the drinking water—chickens doctor themselves.

YOU KNOW THE SYMPTOMS—face swollen, heads pale, whistle or sneeze, the usual catarrhal odor.

Don't wait until it is too late—use it for prevention.

Conkey's Poultry Tonic

Keeps hens healthy. Keeps them laying. It is a Regulator, Laying Tonic, Moulting Powder and Chick Conditioner of the highest type, free from cheap fillers.

Conkey's Poultry Book is valuable. Sent for 50c or free to purchasers.

THE G. E. CONKEY CO. Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by ST. LOUIS SEED CO., 411 Washington Av.

"It Makes Hens Lay"

because it helps put them in condition to lay.

Pratts Poultry Regulator

America's original and favorite poultry tonic and conditioner, preferred by successful poultrymen for nearly 50 years. "Your Money Back If YOU Are Not Satisfied" Dealers Everywhere.

VITAL WIRELESS LOST IN AIR AT JUTLAND

Naval Expert Says This Permitted German Fleet to Regain Shelter of Mine Field.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—Analyses of naval experts in London papers of the battle of Jutland, fought more than four years ago in the North Sea between the British and German fleets, on which the British Admiralty yesterday published a blue book of 600 pages, turn largely on the question of whether the British advantage was pushed home to the utmost and whether the German fleet should have been attacked. Considerable discussion is devoted also to the failure of a vital wireless to reach Jellicoe, as a result of which the German fleet regained the shelter of its mine field.

The blue book contained a dispatch from Vice Admiral Beatty, commander of the British battle cruiser squadron, to the effect that on the night of the battle he did not consider it desirable or proper to close with the enemy's battle fleet during the dark hours for reasons as follows:

"First, our distance from the battle fleet (British); second, the condition of the battle cruisers; third, the enemy being concentrated; fourth, the almost certainty that they would locate the enemy favorably at daylight."

According to Vice Admiral Beatty's dispatches, he then considered it his duty to prevent the enemy from reaching his base. The Vice Admiral expressed great regret that an opportunity was missed in the small hours of the morning for engaging four ships of the Deutschland class, which were mistaken for British light cruisers.

The erroneous nature of the signal attributed to Beatty, "Follow me; we've got them cold," is shown by the dispatches. What Beatty really signaled, says the document, was:

"Urgent. I submit that the van of the battleships should follow the battle cruisers. We can then cut off the whole of the enemy's battle fleet."

The confusion in discerning friend from foe is remarked in many of the officers' reports. As an instance, Rear Admiral Gaunt of the First Battle Squadron says:

"Whatever circumstances may have constrained the battle cruiser fleet to fall back upon the battle fleet in the manner it did, the result was unfortunate. The Fifth Division was unable to fire upon the enemy owing to the battle cruisers being in between; and when they cleared from the battleships it was extremely difficult to ascertain whether the ships coming into view through the mist were friend or foe."

It appears from the Admiralty report that Admirals Jellicoe and Beatty left their bases with definite news that the Germans were coming out.

Beatty's wireless message on the night of the battle was sent at 7:50 o'clock and was received four minutes later by Admiral Jellicoe, with the request that he issue the necessary orders. It previously had been reported that Admiral Beatty's appeal was sent earlier, namely, at about 7:15 o'clock, during the crisis of the battle.

What the naval experts writing in the afternoon newspapers describe as one of the key signals of the battle never reached Jellicoe, according to the Admiralty report. This message was from the destroyer Faulkner at 1:56 o'clock on the morning of June 1, and it probably was lost through wireless interference.

Commander S. M. J. Rundel of the Royal Navy writing in the Evening Standard, in explanation of the situation, says Jellicoe had turned his fleet south in order to intercept Admiral von Scheer, the German commander, when the latter tried to return to his base at daybreak. Jellicoe had anticipated that von Sheer would attempt to cross his rear. This actually happened and the Faulkner wirelessed the fact to Jellicoe.

"Owing, however, to other wireless interruption," continued Commander Rundel, "this one essential report failed to reach its destination. Von Scheer thus reached the shelter of his mine field."

Commander Carlyton Bellaires, prominent naval expert and author of a book on the Jutland battle, writing in the Evening News, concluded as follows: "The war's greatest opportunity was lost" when Admiral Jellicoe failed to annihilate the German fleet.

Analyzing the report, he criticises Admiral Jellicoe for not having collected his fleet at sea before 2 p. m. on the day after it was ordered out by the Admiralty. "Jellicoe proceeded too slowly to the rendezvous, and before the time fixed Beatty sighted the enemy," he concluded.

Regarding Jellicoe's failure to follow the plan of Beatty's famous message for attack, he declared the Admiral's explanation "by no means conclusive. His deployment to port instead of following the ships already in action deprived Beatty's battle cruisers of all support at a crucial period in the battle."

Bellaires also criticised the night handling of the British fleet, saying "Signals throughout the night show no adequate touch was kept between the battleships, cruisers and destroyers. Summing up his opinion, Bellaires said:

"Both the English and German accounts are now confirmed in this particular. We lost at Jutland the greatest opportunity of the war. Both the English and German accounts agree it was the high sea fleet which stood behind the submarine menace, and it was its existence which prevented our entry into the Baltic and clearing up the mine fields. It is, therefore, not too much to say the war might have been very much shortened and the Russian army, which was crippled because of a lack of supplies, would have been successful if Jutland had been a decisive victory."

ARGUMENTS IN SCHOOL FRATERNITY SUIT

Attorneys Declare Board of Education Attempts to Regulate Pupils' Social Life.

Arguments were heard yesterday by Circuit Judge Calhoun on the demurrer to the answer of the Board of Education in the suit of Mr. and Mrs. Waldemar Wright of 5478 Clemens avenue to enjoin the Board from enforcing its regulation against fraternities and sororities in high schools. Attorneys for Mr. and Mrs. Wright declared in the demurrer that the Board had failed to answer the charge that it exceeded its jurisdiction in forbidding pupils to join fraternities or sororities and asked for a judgment.

They declared that the regulation amounts to an effort to regulate the social life of students, usurping the privileges and duties of parents. The case of a State Normal school student who was suspended because she went to a public dance hall was cited. The attorneys stated that in that case the Court of Appeals ruled against the Board on the ground that the school authorities had no authority over her conduct after school hours.

Robert Burkman, attorney for the Board of Education, argued in reply it was the duty of school authorities to prescribe regulations outside of school hours if the welfare of the school was affected. He denied that the Board was attempting to control the social life of pupils.

The demurrer was taken under advisement. Mr. and Mrs. Wright have a son, Roy Thomas Wright, who is a student of Soldan High school and a fraternity member.

IMPROVED RIVER SERVICE WITH REPAIRED BOATS IS EXPECTED

Traffic Bureau of Chamber of Commerce Reports Three Steamers at Cairo Awaiting Cargo.

A report on the character of service now being rendered shippers by the Government River Service, which is the barge line upon the Mississippi River between St. Louis and New Orleans, was issued yesterday by the Traffic Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce to 800 members of the bureau. The report states:

"We are aware that the service rendered by the barge line has been anything but satisfactory, due to the fact that the line had not sufficient power. Such power as was in the line's possession was in disrepair. Recently all towboats have been repaired and are in service. In addition one new boat, the Natchez, has been received. With these bettered facilities, there seems to be no question but that materially improved service between St. Louis and Mississippi Valley points will be rendered.

"At present the steamers Wallace, Scott and Adams are at Cairo awaiting cargo. The steamers Natchez and Nokomis are en route upstream. Less than carload shipments should be delivered to the dock at the foot of North Market street as usual for consolidation and movement by rail to Cairo, which is the northern terminus of the line during the winter. Carloads should be routed via Mississippi Warrior Service."

OIL PROMOTER HELD HERE AFTER CHECK IS RETURNED

Statler Guest Admits, Police Say, Being Under Bond in Oklahoma Case.

Clarence T. Owen, 28 years old, of Bowling Green, Ky., a guest at the Statler Hotel, was arrested by detectives yesterday after a check for $71.53 he had given the hotel management Dec. 15 was returned from the American Trust Co., marked "no account." Owens, detectives said, admitted he had no money in the bank, but said he had expected to put funds in to meet the check.

Two other checks, one for $100 and the other for $200, were found in his pockets when he was arrested, the police said. They were signed "C. T. Owen," as was the check passed at the hotel.

Owen told the detectives he represented an oil company with headquarters in Bowling Green and had come here to form a syndicate of St. Louisans to finance some of the work in developing the oil lands.

Owen admitted, the detectives stated, having been arrested several months ago in connection with an oil deal involving $1500 in Muskogee, Ok., and said he furnished a bond at that time and did not know now what had become of the case. He was held for investigation, pending application for a warrant Monday.

CLAYTON CITY COUNCIL CALLS ELECTION TO EXTEND LIMITS

Residents of County Seat Fear Flank Movement by University City.

The Clayton City Council has voted to call a special election for Jan. 4 on the question of extending the city limits. The proposed extension comprises land to the south and west of Clayton, much of which was in the tract which it was voted in 1916 to annex. The vote then taken was annulled by the action of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, which upheld a decision of Circuit Judge Wurdeman, forbidding Clayton to exercise municipal jurisdiction over the tract in question.

The renewed agitation for annexation is attributed to the action of University City in extending its boundaries in the direction of Clayton. As University City has annexed territory directly north of Clayton, some of the Clayton people fear a flank movement.

BOY, 9, SUFFERED FRACTURED SKULL WHEN HIT BY AUTO

Report of Accident, Which Occurred Thursday, Not Made to Police Until Yesterday.

Irwin Schuster Jr., 9 years old, of 4550 Gibson avenue is in St. John's Hospital in a critical condition with a fractured skull and shoulder and cuts and bruises as the result of being knocked down Thursday night by an automobile driven by Fred Hyke, 43 years old, of 1364 Blackstone avenue, a salesman, the police learned yesterday when Hyke called at the Newstead avenue station and reported the accident. He said he had not made a report before because the father of the boy had told him not to.

Schuster was crossing with another boy from the south to the north side of the street in front of 4551 Chouteau avenue and the automobile was westbound in the street car tracks when, according to the report the auto swerved out of the tracks hitting the boy who had cleared the rails.

MURAL DECORATIONS PLACED

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 18.—Mural decorations for the new State Capitol here are being placed in the halls of the building for the opening of the Legislature. Two of six paintings have been installed and an effort will be made to complete work on the others before the session convenes, according to a statement of the Capitol Decoration Commission.

The scenes now in place in the Senate chamber show Thomas Jefferson making treaties with the Indians and Thomas Hart Benton, a Missourian, in the chamber of the United States Senate. The paintings are the work of Richard I. Miller, a St. Louis artist. Other paintings that will be placed in the capitol as a part of the State's war museum will depict scenes in the Civil War, the Spanish-American War and two scenes in the World War.

Baby Grand
Louis XVI
PRICE $250.00
Made also in Music Master Style

Here is a phonograph built in artistic period designs to match your furniture, graceful and elegant, and with a tone as rich and mellow as a violin.

A few of the attractive designs are shown here in the Baby Grand and Music Master styles. Truly an ornament to the finest homes. The workmanship, materials and finish of these cabinets are of the highest quality, while the price is much lower than other makes of art models.

The Lyre-ola is built on the "violin principle," which gives it the wonderful richness and naturalness of tone. The sound horn or chamber is made of carefully selected and prepared wood and is suspended in the cabinet—a patented Lyre-ola feature. This floating horn moves with the sound waves, vibrating like a violin, instead of obstructing and hardening the tones, as when the horn is fixed rigidly to the sides of the cabinet.

All makes of records are played perfectly on the Lyre-ola, because it uses the finest reproducing mechanism known in phonograph manufacture—the famous Fletcher patent. This reproducer is fitted with a tone filter that eliminates all the usual rasping sound of the needle.

The makers of Lyre-ola fully guarantee their workmanship. So, before you buy your Xmas phonograph, be sure to see and hear the beautiful Lyre-ola, now on display at

BOURJOIS'
JAVA
FACE POWDER

A Clear Complexion Proclaims a Wisely Chosen Face Powder

Bourjois' "Java" has been the favored powder of countless fastidious women for over a half century, for two reasons:

Its bland purity enables Madame to use it profusely to keep her skin soft and free from "shine" every minute of the day. While its caressing adherence forms a velvety shield that protects Madame's skin from the roughening effect of weather.

To keep a youthful glow in the too-pale cheek, Bourjois offers "Ashes of Roses," a French hand-made rouge of unique naturalness.

This Tiny-Tot Cap for Christmas

It was made by hand in the home of a mother and given the same care and affection it would receive were it for her own.

It is hand-knit of heavy, warm, all-wool Zephyr yarn and the design is original with me, so it cannot be duplicated in the stores.

This beautiful cap, in either white, pink or blue, is only $2.40, by mail, charges paid.

It is an ideal Christmas gift for baby and I will ship it to any address with your Christmas card enclosed.

In ordering give age of baby and color of cap desired. If for any reason the cap is not entirely satisfactory your money will be willingly refunded.

The Martha Murray catalog, which shows a number of styles of hand-knitted sacques, caps and booties, will gladly be mailed for the asking.

For CHRISTMAS and for a LIFETIME

This boy has had THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE in his home for a year and he can explain to you interestingly and correctly all the familiar things which he sees around him. His teacher will tell you that when she wants a quick and intelligent answer from her class, this boy always answers first. He understands many subjects of interest in the papers and magazines and in the conservation of his elders. He has made "a long start in the race for knowledge."

Answers Every Question a Child Can Ask

Why do we grow old?
Who made the first electric light?
How did the days get their names?
Why is a river always running?
Why does lightning strike some things and not others?
Where does the wind begin?
Why does the kettle sing?
Where do thoughts come from?
What makes coal burn?
Why has a star five points?
What is it like at the bottom of the sea?
Why are tears salt?

The Book of Knowledge

The Children's Encyclopedia

10,000 Educational Pictures In Five Languages 350 Colored Plates

English French Spanish Italian Portuguese

CURIOSITY—the Great Teacher

CURIOSITY is the beginning of all knowledge. Do you know any subject about which your child has not asked you a dozen questions? Let him ask as many as he likes, and be sure to answer them correctly. That is the parent's most important and most easily neglected duty. If you discourage your child's curiosity you will injure his mind, and the bright boy or girl becomes stupid or indifferent. Through curiosity Columbus discovered America. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is the simplest and most natural method of helping the child to educate himself. IT ANSWERS EVERY QUESTION A CHILD CAN ASK, IN PLAIN AND SIMPLE LANGUAGE. So captivating is this great original work to the mind of a child that he absorbs with little effort the profound truths and great facts of the world of knowledge, while reading its delightful pages and looking at the thousands of striking educational pictures.

THE MOST VALUABLE GIFT

The most valuable and most delightful gift for the children this Christmas is THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE, The Children's Encyclopedia, because it is everything rolled into one great, big, beautiful gift. It appeals with almost equal fascination to every member of the family, with its 10,000 striking educational pictures, many in colors. The 16 Great Departments, Nature, Science, History, Biography, Astronomy, Physiology, Art, Poetry, Literature and Educational Occupations, give the child or adult a working knowledge of the world, the earth, the air, the sea, and the works of men. The whole wonderful world is brought within the reach of the mind of a child. Make this Christmas memorable by adding THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE to the life of the HOME.

YOUR CHILD'S CHANCE

In round numbers, what is your child's chance to become successful? If uneducated, he has one chance out of 150,000; with a common school education, 4 chances; with a high school education, 87 chances; with a college education, 800 chances; WITH THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE in the home, every chance. It is not a luxury, it is an absolute necessity. It is an INVESTMENT in your child's future which will pay dividends as long as he lives. In over 800,000 homes today the children are being educated with THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE. Give your child his chance to compete with them.

THE IDEA IS THIS, JEFF:- EVERYBODY IS FULL OF THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT. AFTER YOU SHAVE AND DRESS UP LIKE A LITTLE BOY YOU'RE TO COME TO MY HOUSE AND SAY YOU'RE ALL ALONE IN THE WORLD. GET THE IDEA?
SURE! OUR AIM IS TO SLIP ONE OVER ON YOUR WIFF.
SHE HATES YOU, BUT THAT CHILDISH MAKE-UP WILL FOOL HER. WHEN SHE HEARS YOUR SAD STORY SHE'LL TAKE YOU IN AND WE CAN PLAY PINOCHLE TO OUR HEARTS CONTENT. COME TO MY HOUSE IN HALF AN HOUR.
SURE!
MY WIFE'S SISTER IS VISITING WITH US, BUT WITH JEFF AROUND I WON'T MIND IT SO MUCH! SHE GETS MY GOAT!
WHAT YOU GOT, CICERO?
IT'S A SWELL DONKEY FROM SANTA CLAUS, POP! LOOK AT IT!
TEE HEE!
ISN'T HE CUTE, SISTER?
DEAR, IT MAKES ME SAD WHEN I THINK OF THE POOR CHILDREN WHO HAVE NO HOMES ON CHRISTMAS. (SNIFF).
PAT PAT
MUTT, YOU HAVE SUCH A TENDER HEART! THERE, THERE!
GID-DAP, HORSIE!
FOLKS, SOMEONE'S KNOCKING
BOO HOO HOO! I'M A POOR LITTLE ORPHAN AND OLD SANTA DIDN'T GIVE ME A THING! I AIN'T GOT A HOME OR ANYTHING! BOO HOO HOO!
POOR CHILD!
DEAR, HIS TALE IS BREAKING MY HEART!
(SNIFF) MISTER MUTT HAS A BIG PLACE IN HIS HEART FOR UNFORTUNATE CHILDREN LIKE YOU! SNIFF!
HE LOOKS LIKE A KIND MAN!
NICE CHILD!
SISTER! THIS POOR ORPHAN CAME TO OUR DOOR! HE'S ALL ALONE IN THE WORLD!
WHAT A DARLING CHILD!
WE'LL KEEP HIM THROUGH THE HOLIDAYS! POOR CHILD!
ISN'T SHE SWEET?
WHAT A SWEET LOOKING CHILD! AND ALL ALONE! I MUST KISS YOU. (SMACK)
TEE HEE!
I'LL ADOPT THE LITTLE DEAR AND GIVE HIM A NICE HOME. (SMACK! SMACK! SMACK!)
FINE!
NIX! PUT ME DOWN AT ONCE OR I'LL CRY.
I'M THROUGH! I AIN'T GONNA HAVE THAT OLD BUZZARD HOLDING ME IN HER LAP!
BUT, JEFF, FOR MY SAKE LISTEN TO REASON
SISTER, YOU MUST HAVE SCARED HIM.

XMAS HINTS FOR STINGY ONES

By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR:

A yr. ago at this time in responses to requests from readers without number like the Harvard football team, I give a list of ecomical xmas suggestions for the wife, husband and etc. that wile they didn't cost much, still and all they was the kind of gifts that nobody wouldn't be glad to get them and not half to force a smile when they thanked you for them or think to themselfs what a cheap bum this guy is.

The watch word was economy then and its even worse than that this yr. and letters has been poreing in to the writer hollering for help, the idear being that wile last yr. most people felt like waisting up to $.50 for each and every present, why this yr. they haven't even got a dime to throw away on same, and what is to be done in regards to same, because if you pass your friends and relations up entirely what a panning they will give you.

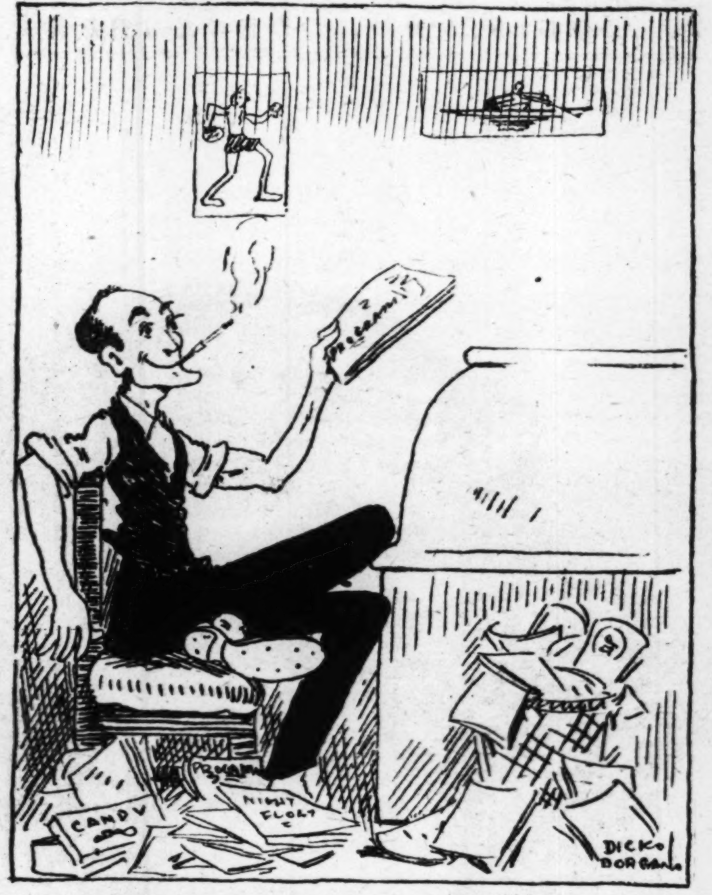
Well friends, the wolf ain't no closer to your door than my door and in fact has all ready begin to eat the door jam and I been laying awake nights for the past mo. wondering how was I going to apease the veracity of my own family and friends and relations witch mounts up into the hundreds especially on the wife's side through no fault of mine, and finely I have hit upon a scheme witch it looks like it would solve the xmas problem without it costing me a nickle only for postage, and a few cts. can be saved even there by sending some of the parcels F. O. B.

This scheme come to me this wk. wile I was going through my desk to look for a rat that hadn't showed up for several meals and the little fellow wasn't there, but I come acrost many another article that the most of them wasn't no more use to me than a towel but when I stopped to think, every one of them was things my friends and relatives couldn't hardly get along without them. So that is how I got the idear, namely why not give away these here articles as xmas presents as it is selfish to keep a hold of them like a dog in the manger when they don't do me no good but would bring xmas cheer into many a home.

Will Pass Idea Along.

That is how the idear come to me and the same scheme will no doubt work for the readers of this letter as no doubt all of them has got a desk or trunk or something where they been parking articles that may of been usefull when they got them, but is now just takeing up rm. that could be used for something you want to keep like for inst. a cork screw. And wile of coarse my readers may be entirely different than me both in regards to the articles they got stowed away as well as the needs of the in-laws and etc. that expects presents, why maybe if I give a outline of the articles I am going to give and a few wds. in regards to the folks who I intend to make happy on reciept of same, maybe my readers will get a better idear of how the scheme works out.

Well for inst. 2 of the articles I found is the souvenir score books of the Yale-Princeton game and the Yale-Harvard game played last mo. Well, the one I bought at Princeton was $.50 and the one I bought at New Haven was $.35 or a grand total of $.85 so they can't nobody say I didn't loosen up for them. Well I have got a brother-in-law at Boston that will probably take in the Yale-Harvard game next yr. and a brother in Hartford witch is only a step from New Haven, you might say, and he is all ready planing to take in the Yale-Princeton fiasco, so I can't think of nothing that would tickle them as much as to each get one of these score books especially as the space in them where you put down Yale's score is just as good as new.



"Wile I was going through my desk to look for a rat that hadn't showed up for several meals . . . I come acrost many another article."

2 of my other brother-in-laws lives in old Chi., one of them on the south side and the other out in Evanston, and here is the way I am going to fix them up. The one that lives in Evanston gets off at Main St. witch is the same station where I use to get off when I lived there in 1917 and amongst my belongings I have ran acrost a C. and N. W. suburb time table from Chi to Main St. and vice versa and they's no reason to believe the schedule should of changed but very little in that length of time, so what is the matter with me giveing my Evanston brother in law this cunning time table as it happens lots of times that a man liveing in the suburbs can't find his own time table and even if he has got one you can't never have too many of them in the house.

Plenty of Brothers-in-law.

My brother-in-law that lives on the south side is a bird that is cuckoo about music shows and its a good bet that he will see the Night Float wile it's in Chi and as luck would have it I saved the programme from this show when I seen it in N. Y. and they tell me it's the same cast you might say, and how many times have you went in late to the theater and the girlish usher tell you they was all out of programmes and you are like a chicken with its tongue out, and this is what is libel to happen to my brother-in-law and wife, but if he has got this programme in his pocket he can give the usher the horse laugh as she deserves. So that is what my brother in law on the south side of Chi is going to find in his old sock xmas morning is this programme.

Another brother-in-law I got lives down in Indiana and often goes up to old Chi to get the air and sometimes when he wants to stay over night, why maybe the people that would put him up has all ready got too darn much Co. and half to send him to a hotel. Well I am going to mail this bird the key to Room 1014 at the Morrison Hotel in Chi and then he can jump right in the elevator and go to his rm. without monking around no fresh clerk's desk or tipping a bell boy to carry his other collar and night gown.

One of my other numerable brother-in-laws is a engineer in Detroit and a golf nut and kind of absent minded and they's no telling when he will find himself on the 1st green and find out he has forgot a score card, so I am going to send this guy a elegant blank score card that I got out to the Engineers golf club here on Long's Island and it will tickle him on acct. of comeing from a Engineers club and it will also give him just as good service as one of his own club's cards as they all got the same No. of holes to mark down the columns wide enough to acomodate 2 figures.

My Indianapolis brother-in-law is just takeing up golf and he is one of these kind of birds that always goes into everything from the bottoms up and no doubt has often wondered what the insides of a golf ball looks like so I am going to send him one that I tried to put a back spin on it with a mashie.

Lack of space prevents me numerating all the articles I am going to give my other brother-in-laws and sister-in-laws and etc. as well as friends that don't boast no relation ship, but it wouldn't be right to leave out those little devils who a man is most interested in at xmas time namely the wife and kiddies. The wife is now in the throws of furnishing the heavily mortgaged home and has became a great collector of curios and I have found just the thing for her in the way of rare old prints, namely a reciepted bill for 102 gals. of gas at 11 cts. per gal witch was handed down by my great grandfather through 6 or 7 generations till it finely got paid.

As for the kiddies, is they anything in the world that brings the smiles to their little mush like candy? And in my desk is 4 pieces out of a box I bought on the train in Cleveland just after the world serious, aged in the wood 2 mos. you might say and will last them all winter.

This will give my readers a idear of how I am going to handle the xmas problem this yr. and they can do the same if they will just go through their trunk or desk and dig out what might be white elephants to them, but blue zebras to their kith and kin.

RING W. LARDNER.

CONCENTRATING .·.

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

I HAD been reading one of those editorials which tell you how to succeed. The way to succeed, the editorial said, was to concentrate. If I could shut all distractions out of my mind, and devote it exclusively to the thing I was doing, I should get it done. If I got everything done I was trying to do, provided they were all good and useful things, I should succeed.

It struck me that there was a good deal in that editorial. It stood to reason that distractions were disturbers of mental traffic.

If somebody had rushed in just as Eli Whitney was groping around for the idea of the cotton gin and told him he had been summoned for jury duty, he probably would have lost the idea, and the average suit of all-wool clothes would still be selling for around three-hundred and fifty dollars.

If when Sir Isaac Newton was still rubbing his head where the falling apple had hit it, the bulldog belonging to the orchard had stepped out and frowned at him, we should still see nothing remarkable in the fact that balloons go up instead of down.

If when James Watt—but I had proved my own point. Concentration was a great thing.

So thereafter I tried to concentrate. But it wasn't half so easy as it sounded. I began to wonder how the man who wrote the editorial had learned to do it. After I had practiced it for a week without getting the swing, I began to wonder if he ever had learned it, and was about to write and ask him, when another of his editorials on the same subject came along.

This one was a sort of sequel to the first one—a second lesson, so to speak. It admitted that concentration wasn't acquired without a struggle, and advised people who hadn't any gift for it to concentrate artificially, which is to say to shut out distractions by doors and bolts for a while, until it began to come natural.

That sounded to me like good common sense. So I went home to try it.

Just at that particular time I was trying to make the amounts on the stubs of my check book agree with the amount the bank said I had checked out of my deposit account. It was hard work, for I am one of those men who can add the same column of figures three times and get a fresh and surprising answer every time. I probably would get still more fresh and surprising answers after subsequent additions, but I never had the patience to add the column more than three times.

It struck me that here was a chance for a test of the concentration theory. If by concentration, however induced, I could make my own figures and those of the bank agree, it would prove that I could concentrate. After that success would be mine with practically no trouble at all.

So, taking my check book, my fountain pen, and a pad of scratch paper I retired to an attic room and began to concentrate.

I was getting along fine when the telephone bell rang.

Thinking, of course, somebody down stairs would answer it, I continued to concentrate. But they didn't answer it. It rang again—three short rings this time.

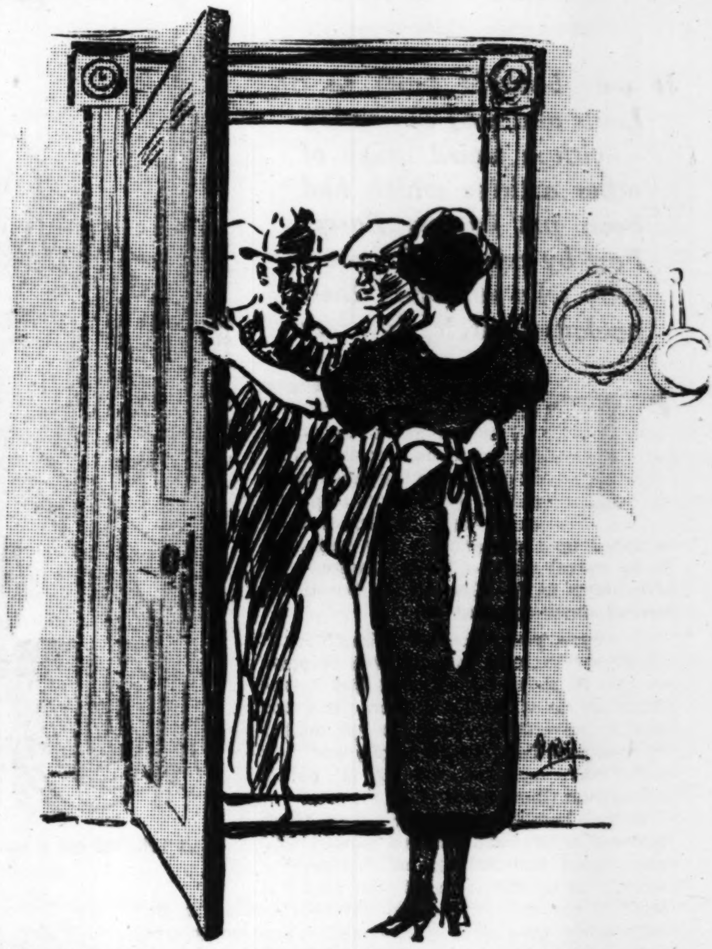
- How Mere Chance, Plus Quick Wits - Twice Ended Flights of Fugitives From Justice

John Doughty, missing secretary of Ambrose J. Small who disappeared a year ago, is identified in Oregon by fellow worker who had read newspaper accounts of the lost millionaire, and three jail breakers from Memphis are recognized by young woman of Winona, Miss., through news items and photos in a daily paper



She heard a rap on the rear door and opened it to face three young men.

ATTENTION paid by two persons to what they read in the daily papers resulted in two important arrests in the last few weeks.

At Oregon City, Oregon, on November 23, Edward Richardson, employe of a paper mill, recognized through newspaper descriptions one of his fellow workers as John Doughty, former treasurer of a chain of Canadian theaters, who was wanted by the Dominion police for questioning in connection with the disappearance more than a year ago of Ambrose J. Small, theatrical magnate, and the simultaneous disappearance of more than $100,000 in bonds.

Ed Richardson, who identified John Doughty of Canada through newspaper descriptions.

Doughty was taken back to Canada, the bonds were recovered and Richardson will receive a large reward.

At Winona, Miss., on November 30, Miss Mary Dodd recognized three young men, from photos published in a Memphis paper, as prisoners who had escaped from the Shelby County jail after a fight in which Jailer George Reeves was killed.

Miss Dodd made no sign when the young men approached her home and asked for water. She gave them a drink, waited until they walked to a nearby railroad yard and boarded a freight train and then informed the Sheriff. Clyde Hamilton, one of the trio, was killed in resisting arrest and the others were captured and sent back to jail.

In both cases it was simply the fact that Richardson and Miss Dodd remembered what they had read that resulted in the arrests. Neither had any individual interest in the matters involved. The instances, following in such quick succession and duplicated by many other cases throughout the country in past years, seem to refute the idea that newspaper readers simply "skim over" the columns of their favorite journals and promptly forget the contents.

In the identification of Doughty by Richardson, especial interest centers in the fact that descriptions of the man had been furnished to the police of both the United States and Canada and that a reward of $15,000 had been offered for his apprehension. Moreover, the case in which he was sought for questioning was mysterious enough to engage international attention.

In spite of this, Doughty apparently attracted no attention when he went to work in Oregon although a certain benevolent and good humored expression was so characteristic of him as to be emphasized in the offers of reward. Richardson alone, after noticing that this feature of geniality was dwelt upon in newspaper descriptions, made a closer scrutiny of his coworker and finally asked a constable to arrest him.

Miss Dodd's identification was on shorter notice. She had read in the Memphis paper of the previous day of the killing of Jailer Reeves and had instinctively noted the description of the men who escaped. Although she did not have the paper at hand when the trio appeared at her door, she recognized them at once but had presence of mind enough to serve them without apparent recognition and to wait until they had headed for the railroad yards before notifying the authorities.

The case for which the Canadian police sought Doughty, to see if he could throw any light on the movements of Ambrose J. Small, a theatrical magnate, has attracted widespread interest.

Small, who owned the Grand Opera House in Toronto and chains of smaller theaters throughout the Dominion, closed a deal last fall by which those theaters became the property of the Transcanada Theaters, Limited, of Montreal. On December 2, 1919, he deposited $1,000,000 of the $1,800,000 he was to receive for his interests in a Toronto bank. He had received some large amounts in bonds at the time and he was known to have large holdings in securities that could easily be converted into cash.

On the day of his disappearance, he and his wife, Mrs. Theresa Small, met at the Grand Opera House and walked to the St. Mary's Home for Infants in which Small was interested. She left him with the understanding he would be home for dinner. So far as is known, Small has never been seen since that time.

Doughty, who for years had been his secretary, was in comfortable financial circumstances and had personal qualities that made him popular among his associates. He was in Small's entire confidence, looked after the latter's business interests and frequently visited Montreal and other cities on theatrical missions.

He remained in Toronto for a fortnight after his employer's disappearance, went to Montreal and stayed for a week, then went back to Toronto and remained with his sisters for a time. On the evening of December 29 he told his sisters that he was going to look after some business that necessitated his calling upon Mrs. Small and he too disappeared.

For some reason, no appeal to the police had been made in the disappearance of Small until a fortnight after his absence was noted. When Mrs. Small took the matter to them, they immediately started questioning Doughty.

Miss Mary Dodd of Winona, Miss., who recognized three jail breakers from their published descriptions and photos.

Doughty had been in Small's employ for 19 years. He was large and athletic and had been an oarsman of note in his younger years. His friends universally regarded him as cheerful, easy going and of a trustworthy disposition. He had inherited some little money and was thrifty.

The only thing that could possibly interest the police in what they heard of him was the statement that occasionally he spoke sarcastically of the fact that Small only paid him $45 a week despite his years of service. As he was to receive $75 weekly from the concern which took over the Small theaters, he had no grievance over the transfer.

There was nothing to arouse suspicion in his case but when he disappeared following the absence of Small, a warrant was issued for his arrest on a charge of conspiring to kidnap his former employer. Out of the various rewards offered in the case may be mentioned one of $15,000 for the production of Small's body and one of $50,000 for the discovery of Small, arrest of Doughty and clearing up of various other angles in the case.

So widespread was interest in the case that a special act was rushed through the Ontario parliament by the terms of which his widow and a trust company were put in charge of Small's estate.

Small was a man of Irish descent who had worked his way up in 35 years from ticket seller to theater owner. He often said that Sir Henry Irving, 35 years ago, advised him to drop the idea of studying law and turn his attention to the theatrical business. At 55, Small was a dominant figure in the Canadian theatrical world. Although of a reserved disposition, he is said to have been in a sunny frame of mind on the evening of his disappearance when he finally closed his affairs at the Grand Opera house and started home. The last person to see him was a newsboy from whom he bought a paper at 7:15 that night.

Doughty, it was known, had access to Small's safe deposit box and $150,000 in bonds were reported missing from the box after the double disappearance. Since his arrest, Doughty has stated that he concealed $100,000 worth of bonds in the home of one of his sisters.

The disappearance of both men was complete. Small left no trace and a survey of the buildings in the neighborhood is taken by the police to confirm the idea that he could not have passed through any of them—office structures as they were—without being recognized. They can only imagine he was kidnaped by the use of a taxicab or auto but admit that a man of his disposition would not be likely to let

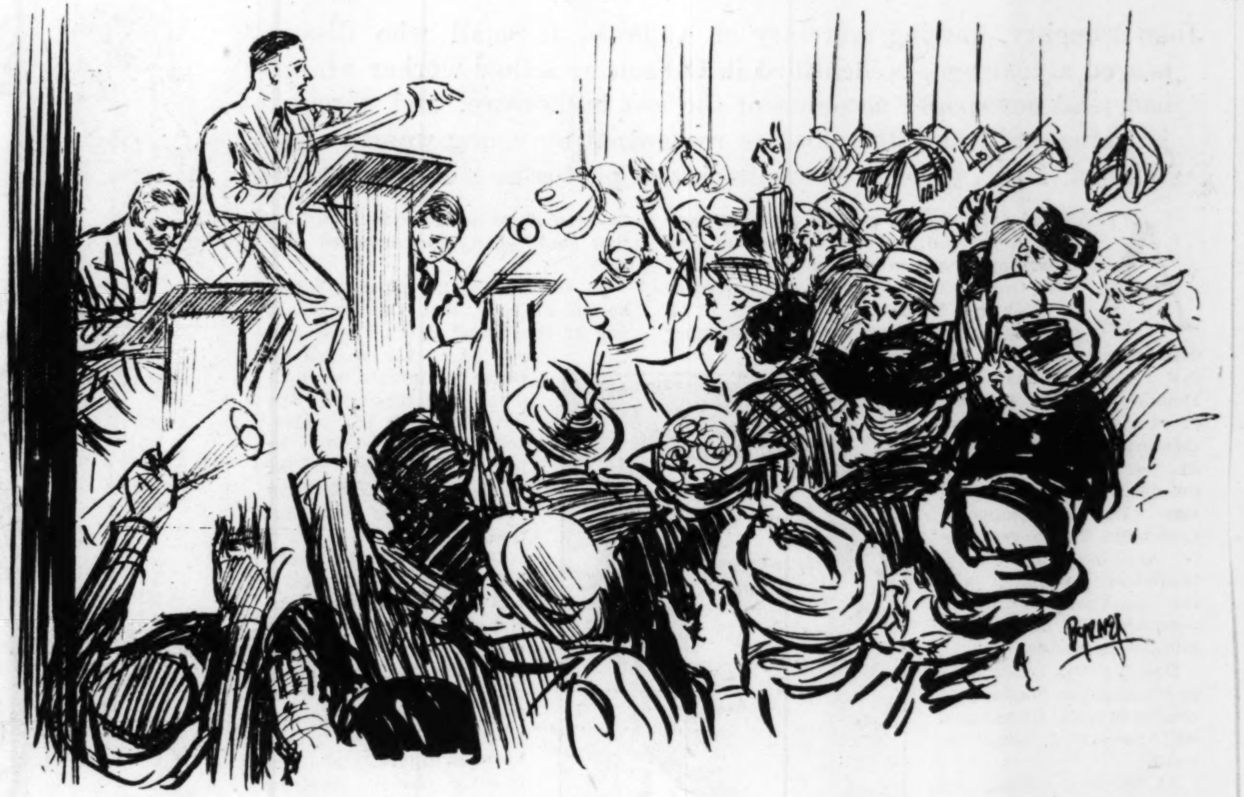
What Really Happened When Your Gift to Uncle George Was Lost in the Mail

It was brought back to St. Louis and sold at auction —with a weird array of other articles which had been put in the Parcel Post by people like yourself, who wrapped their packages carelessly ::



Suspended on pieces of twine from pipes of the sprinkling system are hundreds of bundles of all sizes.

THE mystery of your Uncle George's muffler is solved.

You remember that you bought some nice materials at one of the big department stores, spent hours of pleasant work in making it, then wrapped up the scarf one day and sent it by parcel post to Uncle George, who lives down at Ste. Genevieve. But Uncle George never received it.

Of course, you blamed the "inefficient" postal service, and perhaps even suspected the Bolsheviki of having had something to do with the matter. But the muffler, several months after you mailed it, was sent back to St. Louis, and just a few days ago was sold at a public auction on Chouteau avenue.

It was bought after spirited bidding between several middle-aged women who know good material and skillful needlework, and at this moment that identical scarf is for sale in a small neighborhood store, perhaps quite near your own home. Considering what went into the making of the scarf, it is being offered at quite a bargain. Aren't you glad that you helped somebody to get a good muffler at a low price?

If you are not glad, just remember that what has happened was all your own fault. For on the day you mailed that package, you started downtown in a rush. Grabbing up the new muffler, you hastily wrapped a piece of paper around it, tied it up with the first little piece of string you could find, addressed the bundle and left the rest to the Post Office Department and to Providence.

Both did as much as any reasonable person could expect, but between St. Louis and Ste. Genevieve the carelessly wrapped package opened up, the string went one way, the paper went another way and there was your Uncle George's scarf headed for nowhere in particular except the Division of Dead Letters.

Since the address had been lost, and since Government regulations do not yet recognize the ouija board, the postal employes had to put the muffler aside, with numerous other articles mailed by careless people. Articles which go astray in the parcel post are sold at auction, under Government supervision.

At one of these "Dead Letter" auctions held in St. Louis recently, some $2500 worth of merchandise which had been put in the parcel post by careless persons, and had gone astray, was sold to the highest bidders. It was not the accumulation of years, either, for such sales are being held about every two months. St. Louis now is the auctioning place for all the "Dead Letter" packages which accumulate in Missouri and in Kansas.

The element of gambling or chance is carefully removed from these sales. The person of sporting blood cannot, even if he would, bid gamely for a package of whose contents he is ignorant. Plenty of opportunity is given him before the sale to look at and even handle the articles which are to be sold.

For days before the advertised hour, Post Office employes are busy sorting the miscellaneous things and making them up into small lots for the auction. These range all the way from face powder to encyclopedias, and from women's millinery to farm implements. Toys, jewelry, auto tires, ribbons, daggers, corsets, cards and poker chips, beeswax, razors, rubber hose, cupid dolls, a gold nugget and even a box of war souvenirs which some member of the A. E. F. carried for many a weary mile in France, only to lose them through carelessness in mailing, were just a few of the items at the recent auction in St. Louis.

There were 663 different lots in the printed auction list. An item might consist of one article, like a traveling bag, or it might be a dozen pairs of stockings or a box of books or a suit of clothes. The bids usually start at $1 and go as high as the competitors care to travel. Sometimes rival bidders will get stubborn and end by paying more than the regular market price for some quite ordinary article.

The setting for the "Dead Letter" auctions and the crowd which attends them are entirely different from anything else in St. Louis. How a Dickens and a Cruikshank would have reveled in the dingy picturesqueness of the scene! Here they would have found new types for their immortal gallery of minor characters, at least, odd specimens of humanity to haunt the memory of readers for many a year thereafter.

The auctions are held on the second floor of a Chouteau avenue storage house. Ascending a rough stairway, one enters a large, bare room which at first glance has a curiously festive appearance.

Suspended on pieces of twine from the pipes of the sprinkling system are hundreds of bundles of all sizes, which are some of the "lots" to be bid on later. Some of these bundles contain half a dozen sweaters, others only the same number of handkerchiefs, so the different shapes and sizes are about as numerous as the lots themselves. They are not wrapped in paper, but just held together by the string, and the colors make a brave show.

Singly and in groups, people slowly circulate about the room, inspecting the goods which are to be put on sale. The lots dangling on cords they are quite free to examine as closely as they please, handle and appraise. Some of the more valuable and portable things, like jewelry, near-jewelry, pipes, razors, kodaks, pocket knives and fountain pens, are in a carefully-locked showcase

The crowd mills slowly around the room, and to an undertone of shuffling feet on the rough board floor there is a steady murmur of comment on the quality of the articles for sale. The comment is usually disparaging, and never more so than when a group of several potential buyers has gathered about the same auction lot.

One after another, the buyers point out defects and deficiencies in the articles, and sometimes one of the group will "wonder why such stuff as that is offered for sale." Decidedly, it is a crowd of "bearish" sentiment.

But meanwhile, they have been busy with pencils and printed auction lists, which give the numbers and brief descriptions of the 600 or 700 lots to be offered presently. Notes as to quality have been jotted down opposite items which are desired. Sometimes also the figures which in the cool light of reason they decide on as the maximum which they will offer in the excitement and rivalry of the auction.

For to the majority of the buyers, it is decidedly a business proposition and one which lost its novelty in the long ago. They are there to buy as cheaply as possible so that, presumably, they can later sell as dearly as possible. The largest buyers fall into two classes, the proprietors of small neighborhood stores, and the brokers. The latter usually have no place of business or office except the place where they live, and to which they carry their purchases. Afterward they call upon their "trade" among the small storekeepers, and dispose of the goods which they have secured at the auctions and other tiny job lots. Some of them are said to wring a good living out of these small but multitudinous operations.

The auctioneer finally climbs upon the curious elevated seat on a wheeled platform which he uses, with a clerk on one side and a Post Office inspector on the other, both sitting on similar elevated seats, to keep the record of sales.

The bidding on ordinary lots does not evoke nearly the amount of noise which one expects. Only when some choice lot is "going, going," does the crowd really become excited. The auctioneer names the first figure which is usually "One dollar—a dollar—a dollar—I got to get a quarter—who gives a quarter—a quarter?" and the bidders who stay with him hold their hands or auction lists above their heads, sometimes calling out "Here," to attract the eye of the auctioneer.

And the etiquette of the auction floor does not require successful bidders to give their names before the motley crowd. Initials are enough. As the auctioneer says, when the sale begins, "You don't have to give the same names that you do when you go to jail." So the bundle of half a dozen Turkish bath towels are charged to "P. S.," and the army shirts, "guaranteed second-hand and containing nice, large cooties," are charged to "H. S."

Later on, when these two indefatigable bidders secure other lots, the auctioneer calls out "Pine Street" and "High Sheriff" to the men who are keeping the record of sales. He is very facetious, and the crowd laughs on small provocation.

"Look who's here!" cries the auctioneer, as a stout, middle-aged woman makes the winning bid on a lot of baby's shoes. "I thought you were too old to wear those; but a person can't always tell." The crowd laughs at this banter, and the woman turns rather more pink, but is obviously pleased.

A lot consisting of five girl's dresses, new, is sold to a woman for only $1.80, and the auctioneer says with crushing irony, "Look out; your husband will beat you to death when you take that purchase home." "I've quit him," retorts the woman. "Good!" remarks the auctioneer.

"Lady, you were too slow," explains the auctioneer, when another woman protests after she has seen a bundle of shirts on which she had been bidding awarded to a man bidder. The woman mutters something which cannot be heard by the majority. "Sure he's a friend of mine," replies the auctioneer cheerfully.

The sale of night garments, and plenty of them seem to go astray in the parcel post, gives the chance for a good many humorous asides. Half a dozen pairs of men's pajamas are being bid for with reckless determination by the storekeeper element.

"No, lady," says the auctioneer, singling out a large bidder, "I haven't got time for you to try them on. They're men's clothes, anyway."

Later on, he offers a crochet bedspread, "said to have been made by a woman 91 years old who was

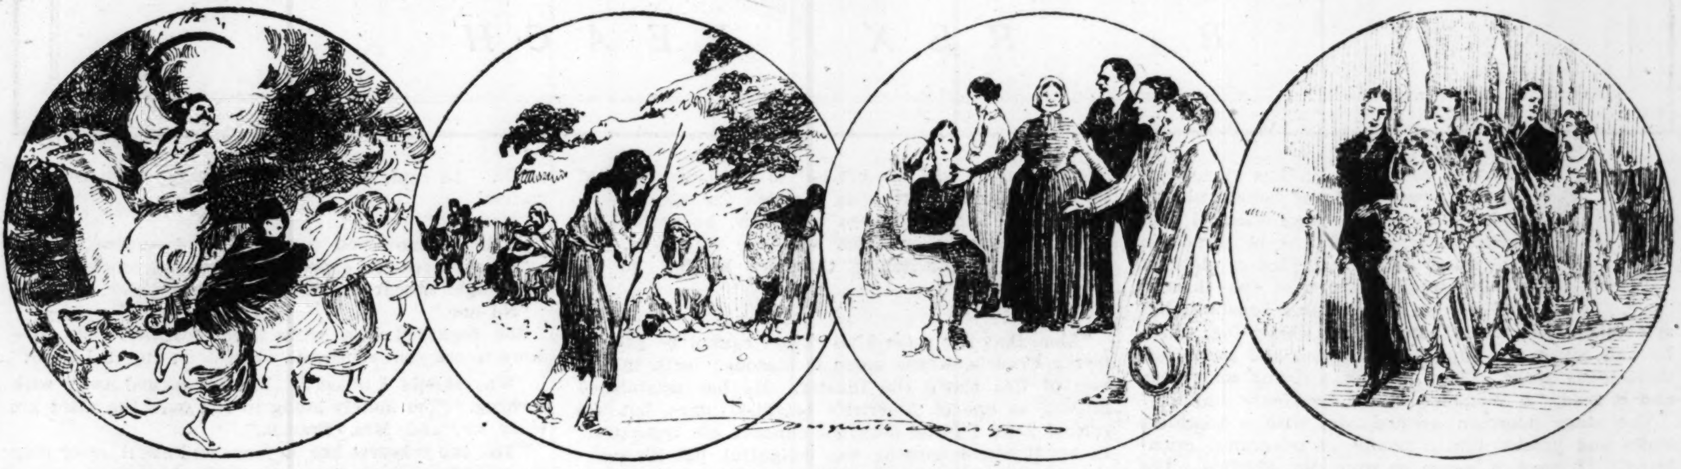
From the Terrors of Turkish Oppression to Bridal Altar in St. Louis—All in Two Months



Harrowing experiences of three young Armenian women in their native land — Young men's courtships "by proxy" through an elderly relative, have been followed by happiness unmarred by the "incompatibility" prevalent in this country

By MARGUERITE MARTYN

A GENTLE reproach of marital discontent wherever to be found in this land of peace and plenty, to the American habit of resorting to the divorce courts on slight pleas of incompatibility, and to too loose regard for the vow, "For better or for worse," is a situation which exists in a double flat menage at 4107-9 McPherson avenue.

Here are three brides who never laid eyes upon their husbands until a few hours before the marriage service was read over them. Here are three bridegrooms who intrusted the selection of their wives to an elderly woman relative. And here, after five weeks of married life, all under one roof and in the midst of numerous other relatives and relatives-in-law, exist three distinct cases of domestic satisfaction and compatibility, which, circumstances indicate, bid fair to outlast the honeymoon.

Possibly if all American couples of whom it may be written—and not through a slip of the pen—"their romance ended in marriage," had been disciplined by the hardships and trials endured by this group of persons, there would be less discontent and more appreciation of the simple blessings of domestic life.

Indeed, these marriages are more like the happy culminations one reads of in the conventional, or, at least, the old-fashioned novel, where the characters are dragged through such trials as the author is capable of imagining, to the happy ending in marriage.

You would not suppose, meeting the three heroines of this tale, rosy-cheeked, rather plump—each of them—well dressed in the mode of the day, luxuriating in their steam-heated apartments, as cheerful, even as gay, as a certain demureness and dignity and shyness and certain memories and fears for dear ones still across the sea, will let them be—were five months ago among a drove of Armenians fleeing before the Turk in one of his deportation orgies.

For nine days and nine nights two of these girls marched over the rugged mountains from Van to reach the American Near East relief stations at Erivan. Quickly they lost such belongings as in haste they had been able to snatch from the burning homes; soon their foot covering was worn through to naked, bleeding soles; and shortly they were having to subsist upon grasses and roots which were the only vegetation along the grim mountain trails.

Tho two other Armenian brides, now in St. Louis.

Not everybody who saw them assisting in the Near East Relief exhibition at a recent Coliseum exposition, robed in their bridal gowns of white satin, with orange blossoms, had time to hear their history. Thoughtless critics who walked by on the other side and were heard to remark, "If they are a sample of Armenians, they hardly look as if they needed help from America," should have seen them only five weeks ago, when they landed at Montreal and later arrived in St. Louis, still in the rags in which they began their 6500-mile journey five months before, still unbathed, still half famished, still hunted-looking from their experience and still fearful of what the future might hold. Happily, it isn't entirely necessary to go through all this suffering to profit by the example in contentment set by these bridal pairs. It is in an ancient code regarding matrimony by which they are governed that they are most worthy of example, and in which the unions bid fair for permanence.

Last summer she was undergoing the hardship of flight from oppressors in Armenia —today she is a happy bride in a St. Louis home.

Said Hagop Chuchian, the spokesman for the family, and who is the one responsible for their all being safe under one roof instead of refugees in peril in Armenia, "Always, in our country, it is the custom for the elders of the family to arrange the marriages. The older people have more wisdom in these matters. The Armenian boy is likely to be satisfied with the wife selected for him, because, before marriage, he never has looked upon any other woman, and the girl is likely to be satisfied with her husband because she never has looked upon any other man.

"If they are not satisfied," and Hagop, speaking very slowly, emphasized this point, "if they are not satisfied after they are married, there is the pledge, 'for better or for worse,' which in honor we are bound to observe. According to the Armenian law there are no divorces, so we are apt to make the most of our bargains, and always look for the best, not the worst, in our choice. But even if there is dissatisfaction," he added, "there is honor, which, to the Armenian, in these matters, is the first consideration." He used the word honor repeatedly in his conversation.

Meanwhile, there sat the matchmaker. She is the aunt of Hagop and his brother, Mihron, and the mother of the cousin, Horshrof Chuchian, who are the three bridegrooms, and was appointed matchmaker as the oldest relative, the parents of Hagop and Mihron having perished from typhus during the war. Mrs. Chuchian sat silent, for she understands no word of English, but in her pride and satisfaction in what she has accomplished, she was all but audible. Her little bright eyes twinkled. There was dignity in her posture as she sat erectly, hands crossed over a wide, sweeping black skirt, head held rather high above the long black basque, which buttons up to her chin.

Manifestly, she is much deferred to as the oldest, though Hagop is the virtual head of the household. It is his industry, his thrift and success in the little shoe-making and repairing shop which adjoins the flats at the rear, but faces on Sarah street, that have provided the funds which enabled one after another of his relatives to come to America. A brother and the cousin joined him in business some time ago, and this last installment of relatives, chaperoned by Mrs. Chuchian, numbered nine, including two daughters, two grandchildren, another son of Mrs. Chuchian, besides the brides. Hagop says he also has sent passage money for another brother, who used the fund to get married on and now writes for more, apropos of which Hagop remarks, "He must think money grows on trees in America."

Well may Mrs. Chuchian beam satisfaction, for it was quite an undertaking that ended in the triple wedding at Christ Church Cathedral late in October and a great feast with 65 guests at the home that night and continued contentment and comfort, comparative luxury, in the new home.

Several months ago her son and nephews wrote commissioning her to select for each of them a wife. There were many stipulations included in the instructions, but they were unnecessary. Mrs. Aragnic Chuchian, (whose Christian name translated means dove or pigeon) knew the dispositions and characters of the boys from their cradles up. She knew better than themselves, it seems, the type of girl that would suit each one, since she disregarded many of the instructions yet succeeded in pleasing each one.

A pretty coquette, rather wilful but affectionate, and small of stature would suit her lively tempered, light-hearted son who also is small of stature. So curly haired, dimple cheeked, roguish Veronique was reserved for him. A practical girl with straight dark hair parted over high, smooth brow and grave eyes, for Hagop the business man. So Giranush was set aside for him. A taller, sturdier, young girl for Mihron who works hard with his hands as a molder in a stamping works. So Zuvart was paired with him.

Doubtless there were several requirements demanded by Mrs. Chuchian on her own account. One of these, she confesses, was that each girl should come of good family. To gather together three distinct types of girls was one problem, for they were not found all in one place but in widely separated sections of a city in which Mrs. Chuchian herself was a stranger.

She had arrived in Erivan whither she had escaped from Van, but more comfortably than some, since her party had with them 6 horses and 7 donkeys. These animals at the end of the journey, however, promptly gave up the ghost and died of a plague. Through the Near East Relief she was located by her young relatives in this country. Through this agency, transportation was sent to her and her family and further passage money for three brides, as yet undiscovered.

The Real and the Make-Believe

By REX BEACH

ON HIS way downtown Phillips stopped at a subway news stand and bought all the morning papers. He acknowledged that he was vastly excited As he turned in at the stage door he thrilled at sight of the big electric sign over the theater. pallid now in the morning sunshine, but symbolizing in frosted letters the thing for which he had toiled and fought, had hoped and despaired, these many years There it hung, a dream come true, and it read, "A Woman's Thrall, by Henry Phillips."

The stage doorman greeted him with a toothless smile and handed him a bundle of telegrams, mumbling: "I knew it would go over, Mr. Phillips. The notices are swell, ain't they?"

"They seem to be."

"I ain't seen their equal since 'The Music Master' opened. We'll run a year."

This differed from the feverish, half-hysterical praise of the evening before. Phillips had made allowance then for the spell of a first-night enthusiasm and had prepared himself for a rude awakening this morning—he had seen too many plays fail, to put much faith in the fulsomeness of first-nighters—but the words of the doorman carried conviction.

Certain printed sentences kept dancing through his memory: "Unknown dramatist of tremendous power," "A love story so pitiless, so true, that it electrifies," "The deep cry of a suffering heart," "Norma Berwynd enters the galaxy of stars."

That last sentence was the most significant, the most wonderful of all. Norma Berwynd a star! Phillips could scarcely credit it; he wondered if she had the faintest notion of how or why her triumph had been effected.

The property man met him, and he, too, was smiling.

"I just came from the office," he began. "Say! they're raving. It's the biggest hit in 10 years."

"Oh, come, now! It's too early for the afternoon papers"——

"The papers be blowed! It's the public that makes a play; the whole town knows about this one already. It's in and over, I tell you; we'll sell out tonight. Believe me, this is a knockout—a regular bull's eye. It won't take no Government bonds to bridge us over the next two weeks."

"Did you get the new props?"

"Sure. The electrician is working on the drop light for the first act; we'll have a better glass crash tonight, and I've got a brand-new dagger. That other knife was all right, but Mr. Francis forgot how to handle it."

"Nevertheless, it's dangerous. We came near having a real tragedy last evening. Don't let's take any more chances."

"It wasn't my fault, on the level," the property man insisted. "Francis always 'goes up' at an opening."

"Thank heaven, the papers didn't notice it."

"Huh! We could afford to kill an actor for notices like them. It would make great advertising and please the critics. Say! I knew this show was a hit."

Under the dim-lit vault of the stage Phillips found the third-act scenery set for the rehearsal he had called, then, having given his instructions to the wardrobe women, he drew a chair up before a bunch light and prepared to read for a second time the morning reviews.

He had attempted to read them at breakfast, but his wife—— The playwright sighted heavily at the memory of that scene. Leontine had been very unjust, as usual. Her temper had run away with her again and had forced him to leave the house with his splendid triumph spoiled, his first taste of victory like ashes in his mouth. He was, in a way, accustomed to these endless, senseless rows, but their increasing frequency was becoming more and more trying, and he was beginning to doubt his ability to stand them much longer. It seemed particularly nasty of Leontine to seize upon this occasion to vent her open dislike of him —their relations were already sufficiently strained. Marriage all at once, assumed a very lopsided aspect to the playwright; he had given so much and received so little.

With an effort he dismissed the subject from his mind and set himself to the more pleasant task of looking at his play through the eyes of the reviewers. They had been very fair, he decided at last. Their only criticism was one which he had known to be inevitable; therefore he felt no resentment.

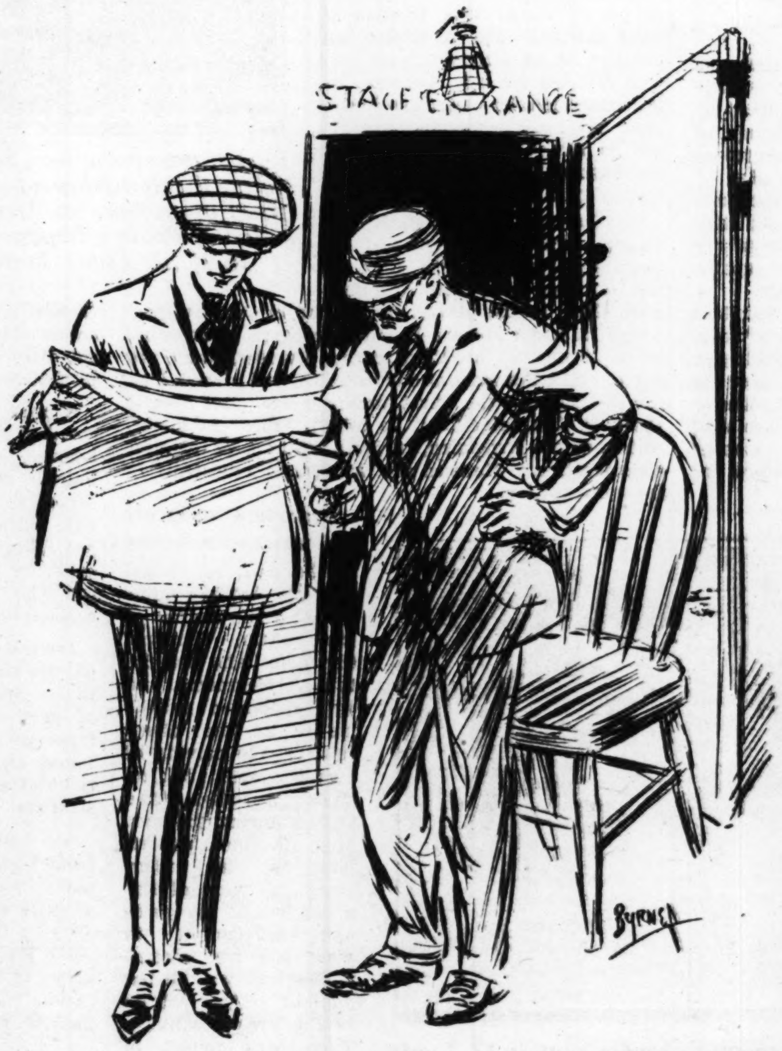
He read:

"Alas, that the same kind things cannot be said of Irving Francis, whose name is blazoned forth in letters of fire above the theater. He has established himself as one of America's brightest stars, but the role of John Danton does not enhance his reputation. In his lighter scenes he was delightful, but his emotional moments did not ring true. In the white-hot climax of the third act, for instance, which is the big scene of the play. he was stiff, unnatural, unconvincing. Either he saw Miss Berwynd taking the honors of stardom away from him and generously submerged his own talent in order to enhance her triumph, or it is but another proof of the statement that husband and wife do not make convincing lovers in the realm of the make-believe. It was surely due to no lack of opportunity on his part"——

So the writer thought Irving Francis had voluntarily allowed his wife to rival him. Phillips smiled at this. Some actors might be capable of such generosity, but hardly Irving Francis. He recalled the man's insistent demands during rehearsals that the 'script be changed to build up his own part and undermine that of his wife; then many heated arguments which had even threatened to prevent the final performance of the piece.

Yes! Norma Berwynd was a star in spite of herself, in spite of her husband. She was no longer merely the wife of Irving Francis, the popular idol. Phillips was glad that she did not know how long it had taken him to effect her independence, nor the price he had paid for it, since, under the circumstances, the truth could help neither of them.

He was aroused from his abstraction by the rustle of a woman's garments, and leaped to his feet with a glad light in his eyes, only to find Leontine, his wife, confronting him.



"I ain't seen their equal since 'The Music Master' opened."

"Oh!" he said; then with an effort: "What is the matter?"

"Nothing."

"I didn't know you were coming downtown."

"Whom were you expecting?" Leontine mocked, with that slight accent which betrayed her Gallic origin.

"No one."

She regarded him with fixed hostility. "I came down to see your rehearsal. You don't object, I hope?"

"Why should I object?" Phillips turned away with a shrug. "I'm merely going to run over the third act with Mr. and Mrs. Francis."

"You can rehearse her 40 years and she'll never play the part."

"The critics don't agree with you; they rave over her. If Francis himself"——

Mrs. Phillips uttered an exclamation of anger. "Oh, of course, she is perfect! You wouldn't give me the part, would you? No. You gave it to her. But it's mine by right; I have the personality."

"I wrote it for her," said the husband, after a pause. "I can't see you in it."

"Naturally," she sneered. "Well, I can, and it's not too late to make the change. I'll replace her. My name will help the piece."

"Leontine!" he exclaimed, in amazement. "What are you talking about? The play is a tremendous success as it is, and Miss Berwynd is a big hit. I'd be crazy to make a change."

"You won't give me the part?"

"Certainly not. You couldn't ask it."

"Doesn't Leontine Murat mean more to the public than Norma Berwynd?" she demanded.

"Until last night, yes. Today—well, no. She has created this role. Besides—you—couldn't play the part."

"And why not, if you please?"

"I don't want to hurt your feelings, Leontine."

"Go on!" she commanded, in a voice roughened by passion.

"In the first place, you're not—young enough." The woman quivered. "In the second place, you've grown heavy. Then, too, your accent"——

She broke out at him furiously. "So! I'm old and fat and foreign. I've lost my beauty. You think so, eh? Well, other men don't. I'll show you what men think of me"——

"This is no time for threats," he interrupted, coldly.

"Bah! I don't threaten." Seizing him by the arm, she swung him about, for she was a large woman and still in the fullest vigor of her womanhood. "Listen! You can't fool me. I know why you wrote this play. I know why you took that girl and made a star of her. I've known the truth all along."

"You have no cause to"——

"Don't lie!" she stormed at him. "I can read you like a book. But I won't stand for it." She flung his arm violently from her and turned away.

"I think you'd better go home," he told her. "You'll have the stage hands talking in a minute."

She laughed disagreeably, ignoring his words. "I watched you write this play! I have eyes, even if Irving Francis is blind. It's time he knew what is going on."

"There is nothing going on," Phillips cried, heatedly; but his wife merely shrugged her splendid shoulders, and, opening her gold vanity case, gave her face a deft going over with a tiny powder puff. After a time the man continued: "I could understand your attitude if you—cared for me, but some years ago you took pains to undeceive me on that point."

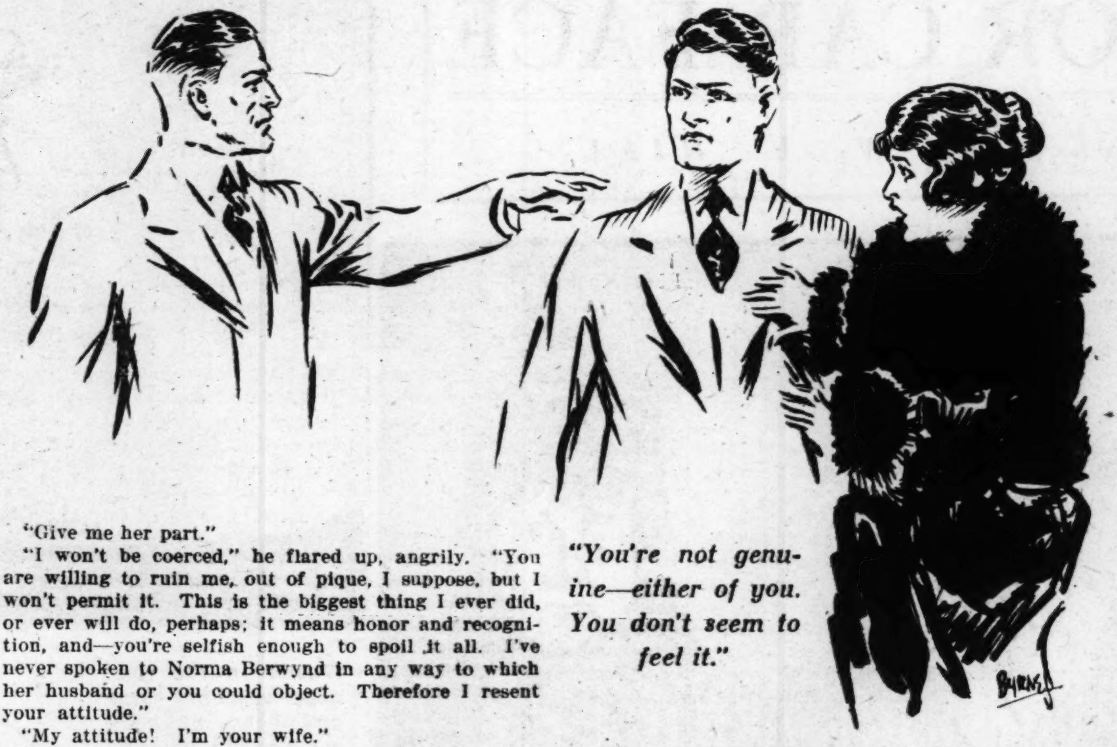
Leontine's lip curled, and she made no answer.

"This play is a fine piece of property; it will bring us a great deal of money; it is the thing for which I have worked years."

"I am going to tell Francis the truth about you and his wife!" she said.

"But there's nothing to tell," the man insisted with an effort to restrain himself. "Besides, you must know the result if you start a thing like that. He'll walk out and take his wife with him. That would ruin"——

The Real and the Make-Believe (Continued)



"You're not genuine—either of you. You don't seem to feel it."

"Give me her part."

"I won't be coerced," he flared up, angrily. "You are willing to ruin me, out of pique, I suppose, but I won't permit it. This is the biggest thing I ever did, or ever will do, perhaps; it means honor and recognition, and—you're selfish enough to spoil it all. I've never spoken to Norma Berwynd in any way to which her husband or you could object. Therefore I resent your attitude."

"My attitude! I'm your wife."

He took a turn across the stage, followed by her eyes. Pausing before her at length, he said, quietly: "I've asked you to go home and now I insist upon it. If you are here when I return I shall dismiss the rehearsal. I refuse to allow our domestic relations to interfere with my business." He strode out to the front of the house and then paced the dark foyer, striving to master his emotions. A moment later he saw his wife leave the stage and assumed that she had obeyed his admonitions and gone home.

The property man appeared with an armful of draperies and mechanical appliances, interrupting his whistling long enough to call out:

"Here's the new hangings, Mr. Phillips, and the Oriental rugs. I've got the dagger, too." He held a gleaming object on high. "Believe me, it's some Davy Crockett."

When Norma Berwynd and her husband arrived Phillips had completely regained his composure, and he greeted them cordially. The woman seemed awed, half-frightened, by her sudden rise to fame. She seemed to be walking in a dream, and a great wonder dwelt in her eyes. As for Francis, he returned the author's greeting curtly, making it plain that he was in no agreeable temper.

"I congratulate you, Phillips," he said. "You and Norma have become famous overnight."

The open resentment in his tone angered the playwright and caused him to wonder if their long-deferred clash was destined to occur this morning. He knew himself to be overwrought and he imagined Francis to be in no better frame of mind; nevertheless, he answered, pacifically:

"If that is so, we owe it to your art."

"Not at all. I see now what I failed to detect in reading and rehearsing the piece, and what you neglected to tell me, namely, that this is a woman's play. There's nothing in it for me. There's nothing in my part."

"Oh, come now! The part is tremendous; you merely haven't got the most out of it as yet. I'll only rehearse you and Mrs. Francis."

"Indeed!" The former speaker opened his mouth for a cutting rejoinder, but changed his mind and stalked away into the shadowy depths of the wings.

"Please make allowances for him," Norma begged, approaching Phillips in order that her words might not be overheard. "I've never seen him so broken up over anything. He is always unstrung after an opening, but he is—terrible, this morning."

There was trouble, timidity and another indefinable expression in the woman's eyes as they followed the vanishing figure of her husband; faint lines appeared at the corners of her mouth, lines which had no place in the face of a happily married woman. She was trembling, moreover, as if she had but recently played some big, emotional role, and Phillips felt the old aching pity for her tugging at his heart. He wondered if those stories about Francis could be true.

"It has been a great strain on all of us," he told her. "But you? How do you feel after all this?" He indicated the pile of morning papers.

"Oh-h! I—I am breathless. I had no idea my part was so immense. Had you?"

"I had. I wrote it that way."

"But why?"

"Perhaps I knew you better than you knew yourself." She searched his face with startled curiosity. "Or better at least than the world knew you. Tell me, there is something wrong? I am afraid he—resents your"——

"Oh, no, no!" she denied hastily, letting her eyes fall, but not before he had seen them fill again with that same expression of pain and bewilderment. "He's—not himself, that's all. I—you—won't irritate him? Please! He has such a temper."

Francis came out of the shadows scowling. "Well, let's get at it," said he.

Phillips agreed: "If you don't mind, we'll start with your entrance. I wish you would try to express more depth of feeling, more tenderness, if you please, Mr. Francis. Remember, John Danton has fought this love of his for many years, undertaking to remain loyal to his wife. He doesn't dream that Diane returns his love, for he has never spoken, never even hinted of his feelings until this instant. Now, however, they are forced into expression. He begins reluctantly, frightened at the thing which makes him speak, then when she responds the dam breaks and his love overrides his will power, his loyalty, his lifelong principles; it sweeps him onward and it takes her with him. The truth appalls them both. They recognize its certain consequences and yet they respond freely, fiercely. You can't overplay the scene, Mr. Francis."

"Certainly I can overplay it," the star declared. "That's the danger. My effects should come from repression."

"I must differ with you. Repressive methods are out of place here. You see, John Danton loses control of himself"——

Francis' voice rose a tone in pitch, and his eyes flashed at this stubborn resistance to his own set ideas.

"Great heavens, Phillips! Don't try to tell me my own business. People don't behave that way in real life."

Seeing that it was useless to argue with the man, Phillips said nothing more, so Francis and his wife assumed their positions and began their lines.

It was a long scene and one demanding great force to sustain. It was this, in fact, which had led to the choice of Irving Francis for the principal role, for he was a man of tremendous physical power. He had great ability, moreover, and yet never, even at rehearsals, had he been able to invest this particular scene with conviction. Phillips had rehearsed him in it time and again, but he seemed strangely incapable of rising to the necessary heights. He was hollow, artificial; his tricks and mannerisms showed through like familiar trade-marks. Strangely enough, the girl also had failed to get the most out of the scene, and this morning both star and leading woman seemed particularly cold and unresponsive. They lacked the spark, the uplifting intensity, which was essential. Therefore, in desperation, Phillips finally tried the expedient of altering their "business," of changing positions, postures and crosses; but they went through the scene for a second time as mechanically as before.

Knowing every line as he did, feeling every heart throb, living and suffering as John Danton was supposed to be living and suffering, Phillips was nearly distracted. To him this was a wanton butchery of his finest work. He interrupted, at last, in a heartsick, hopeless tone which sorely offended the already irritated Francis.

"I'm—afraid it's no use. You don't seem to get it."

"What is it I don't get?" roughly demanded the actor.

"You're not genuine—either of you. You don't seem to feel it."

"Humph! We're married!" said the star, so brutally that his wife flushed painfully. "I tell you I get all it's possible to get out of the scene. You wrote it and you see a lot of imaginary values; but they're not there. I'm no superman—no god! I can't give you more than the part contains."

There was a strained silence, during which the two men faced each other threateningly, and a panic seized the woman.

She managed to say, uncertainly: "Perhaps I—should play up to you, Irving."

"On the contrary, I don't think the fault is yours," Phillips said, stiffly.

Again there was a dramatic silence, in which there was no element of the make-believe. It was the clash of two strong men who disliked each other intensely and whose masks were slipping. Neither they nor the leading woman detected a figure stealing out from the gloom, as if drawn by the magnetism of their anger.

"My fault, as usual," Francis sneered. "Understand this, Phillips, my reputation means something to me, and I won't be forced out of a good engagement by a—well, by you or by any other stage manager."

Phillips saw the same fearful look leap into the woman's eyes, and it checked his heated retort. "I don't mean to find fault with you," he declared, evenly. "I have the greatest respect for your ability as an actor, but"——

The star tossed his massive head in a peculiarly aggravating manner. "Perhaps you think you can play the part better than I?"

"Irving! Please!" breathed his wife.

"Show me how it should be done, if you feel it so strongly."

"Very well. If you will hold the manuscript, Mr. Francis, I'll try to show what I feel the scene lacks. However, I don't think I'll need any prompting. Now, then, we'll begin at John Danton's entrance."

With the mocking smile still upon his lips, Francis took the manuscript and seated himself upon the prompter's table.

It was by no means remarkable that Henry Phillips should know something about acting, for he had long been a stage manager, and in emergencies he had assumed a good many divergent roles. He felt no self-consciousness, therefore.

Nor, as he had said, did he need prompting, for the lines were not the written speeches of another which had been impressed upon his brain by the mechanical process of repetition. They were his own thoughts, expressed in the simplest terms he knew, and they came forth unbidden, hot, eager. He found himself mastered by a fierce exultation; he forgot that he was acting or that the woman opposite him was playing a role of his creation; he began to live his true life for the first time since he had met the wife of Irving Francis. Clothed in the make-believe, the real Henry Phillips spoke freely, feelingly. His very voice changed in timbre, in quality; it became rich, alive; his eyes caressed the woman and stirred her to a new response.

As for Irving Francis, he watched the transformation with astonishment. Grudgingly, resentfully, he acknowledged that this was indeed fine acting. He realized, too, that his blind egotism had served merely to prove the truth of the author's criticism and to emphasize his own shortcomings. The idea enraged him, but the spectacle held him enthralled.

Norma Berwynd was not slow to appreciate the truth. Accustomed thoroughly to every phase of the make-believe world in which she dwelt, she recognized unerringly in the new John Danton's words and actions something entirely real and apart from the theatrical. The conviction that Henry Phillips was not acting came to her with a blinding suddenness, and it threw her into momentary confusion, hence her responses were mechanical. But soon, without effort on her part, this embarrassment fell away and she in turn began to blaze. The certainty that it was Phillips himself who spoke, and not a mere character of his creation, filled her with an exultant recklessness. She forgot her surroundings, her husband's presence, even the fact that the lines she spoke were not of her own making.

Never had the scene been played like this. It grew vital, it took on a tremendous significance. No one could have observed it and remained unresponsive. Francis let fall the manuscript and stared at the actors wonderingly. Since he was an actor, nothing was so real to him, nothing so thrilling, as the make-believe. He realized that this was indeed a magnificent exhibition of the artificial. With parted lips and pulse a-throb he followed the wooing of that imaginary John Danton, in whom he could see no one but himself.

After a time he became conscious of a presence at his side, and heard someone breathing heavily. Turning with a start, he found Leontine Phillips at his "Leave me now. Come again tomorrow. I must think. I must"——

"But you will love me? You will come to me? You"——

"You are a very handsome boy," she said, softly, "and I should like to believe you."

He followed her for a few steps, trouble in his eyes.

"It is not enough. I must have your promise," he said.

She looked at him coldly. "You will have it when I am ready to give it," she said, and his face lightened for a moment, only to darken again.

"I will cut your heart out if you breathe a word of this to anyone," he whispered, hoarsely.

"Is that the way for a lover to speak?" she returned.

"Yes," he said, without hesitation. "It is the way—with me."

"Come to me tomorrow and tell me exactly what my share of the treasure is to be and then I will let you know whether it is to be you—or Manuel Crust, my friend. Oh, you see, I am greedy, and I can love Manuel quite as easily as I can love"——

"I will cut your heart out if you"——

"There, there! It will not be necessary. Come tomorrow."

That same afternoon she went to Percival with the Spaniard's story.

"Well, we'll nip that in the bud," said he, setting his jaw. "The first thing to do is to warn Landover."

"Warn Landover!" cried the Russian. "He is all mix up in it; he is one of ze ring leaders."

"No, he isn't. He's not that kind of a man. He doesn't know a thing about all this. I'll stake my life on it."

"But, Olga," cried Ruth, white-faced and troubled, "Fernandez will kill you. He will. Good heavens, girl, did he not swear to cut your heart out if you"——

"Poof!" cried the other, snapping her fingers. "He will not do zat, my dear. I am not afraid. Do you know what happens to informers in my country? They vanish. No one ever sees them again, and no one ever asks where they have gone. They are here today—tomorrow they are not. It is the same the world over."

"You mean Manuel's men will make way with him? How horrible!"

"Do not waste your sympathy on zat Fernandez. He is no good. You would see what kind of a man he is if this plot should succeed."

"But you will have to give him your answer tomorrow," cried Ruth.

Olga shot a keen glance at Percival's face.

"It is for you to say, Percival, what my answer shall be," said she, after a slight pause. A queer pallor spread over her face.

"For me to say?" he exclaimed.

"Are you not the Governor? If it suits your plans for me to give myself to zat man"——

"My God, Olga! What the devil are you driving at?"

——"to satisfy him until you are prepared to nip zis revolution in the bud, as you say, I shall"——

"Thunderation!" he gasped. "You mean you would sacrifice yourself! Great Scott! What do you think I'm expecting to do? Go to sleep for a month or so? Bless your heart, my dear Olga, if you are even thinking of getting married to Fernandez you'll have to be pretty spry about it. Because I'm going to nip the business in the bud before tomorrow morning."

"Zat is what I thought," said she, the color rushing back to her face.

That evening Percival called a meeting of the "Cabinet," as the Council was now called. They were asked to come to his home instead of to the meeting house. This of itself was surprising. Landover had never set foot inside the "Governor's mansion." While his attitude toward the "Governor's lady" was studiously courteous, he made no effort to resume the intimate and friendly relationship that existed before her marriage to his enemy. Contact with Percival was unavoidable. They met frequently in Cabinet conferences, but avoided each other at all other times.

He came to this hastily called meeting, however, and Percival was the only man present who was not dumfounded. Sheriff Shay, in summoning the members to this secret meeting, had delivered a message that Landover could not well afford to ignore.

Seventeen men were crowded into the little sitting room of the house. Each one of them bore a high-sounding title. There were present, besides Percival, State Treasurer Landover, Chief Justice Malone, Minister of War Platt, Minister of Marine Mott, Minister of Agriculture Pedro Drom, State Clerk Flattner, Surgeon-General Cullen, Lord High Sheriff Shay, and the following members of the Executive Council: Snipe, Block, Jones, Fitts, Knapendyke, Calkins, Ruiz and Alvara. Ruiz was a Chilean merchant and Alvara a Brazilian coffee grower. Calkins was an English cattle buyer.

Percival, with his customary abruptness, announced that there was a plot on foot to destroy the present Government and turn the island over to the mercy of a gang of desperadoes headed by Manuel Crust.

Landover was on his feet in an instant.

"I am in a position, gentlemen, to declare that there is not a word of truth in that statement. It is true, there is a very definite movement on foot to organize a new party to contest the election of many of us who are gathered here tonight. The people want a change. They are dissatisfied. They have a right to vote as they please, to choose their own"——

"We are not here to discuss the election, Mr. Landover," broke in Percival. "Before we go any farther, however, I wish to state that if you are chosen Governor of Trigger Island, you will find no one more willing and ready to serve you than I. But that is beside the question. If you will listen to me, I will tell you exactly what it is that confronts us.

"The election next month is to be the signal for all kinds of hell. You may be elected Governor, Mr. Landover, but you will not be allowed to serve. Now, here is the story that came to me today, and I can vouch for it. I am authorized, in fact, I am commanded, to reveal to you the name of my informant. You may be sure I did my best to prevail upon her to remain unknown, for the present, at least, but she threatened to go forth and shout her story from the housetops if I did not do as she wished."

The conference ended an hour later, and Abel Landover had shown his true colors at last. He stood up, his face drawn and haggard, his eyes ablaze, his voice husky, and addressed the group.

"Gentlemen, I have been wrong. I am grateful to Mr. Percival for his generosity in warning me of the danger into which I was rushing. We have not been friends. He could have left me to my fate. I should not have blamed him. He has played fair, and I have not. I ask you all to bear witness to that humiliating admission. I have argued here tonight against all of you, when down in my heart I had a sickening fear that this damnable story is true. I now believe it to be true. I now see through the whole devilish game.

"I will give you my word of honor as a gentleman and an American, I did not realize the true conditions until tonight. Perhaps I might have found out in time to upset their plans, but that is doubtful.

"These men are smart. They are natural born plotters. They are dark men with dark souls. This fellow Fernandez has fooled me completely. He is a gay, smiling boy, but now that I have heard Mme. Obosky's account of him, I recall many little traits in his make-up that go far to substantiate my new opinion of him. I never quite understood till now why he hated you, Percival. Frankly, I knew that he had it in his heart to kill you. Crust has told me of his difficulty in keeping him from running a knife into you. I thought it was all talk, boyish bravado, but now I know he meant it."

He lifted his head and set his jaw. "Gentlemen, I have a shameful confession to make. Ever since I can remember, my sole thought has been to rule. I did not know what it was to take orders from another man until I came to this island. My whole being has been in revolt. The thought uppermost in my mind for two years has been to re-establish myself as a dominating force.

"To that end, I have played pretty bad politics. I have worked upon the credulity and cupidity of these men, promising them positions of authority if I were chosen by vote to govern the affairs of this island. But I am sure you all will believe me when I say that it was my purpose to administer those affairs honestly, fairly and as capably as I knew how. I was not only deceived by these men, but by myself as well. I have played, like a blundering fool, into their hands.

"My chagrin is beyond words. I can only say to you now that you may count upon my unfailing support in any action you may decide to take. My forbears were honest, loyal, law-abiding Americans. I—I think I may say without fear of contradiction that it is impossible for me to run otherwise than true to form.

"I lied, Percival, to Ruth Clinton about the encounter in my stateroom on the Doraine. Believe me or not, as you see fit, but I think that was the only deliberate lie I have ever told in my life. I have done a great many high-handed things. I have been inconsiderate of others, I have crushed opposition in my own way, I have never allowed myself to acknowledge

"How warm you are, Olga," said Ruth, who sat beside her.

defeat. My hand has been against you since the day you appeared on the decks of the Doraine. It was not in my nature to see good in you. To me you were a good-for-nothing——

"Well, I'm glad to see you smile! That is the devil with you, your confounded smile. I ask you to overlook what I have said, and done—and been, Percival—and shake hands.

"You have nothing to apologize for. There never has been a time in all these months that I have not felt you to be a real man, an honest one, and a gentleman. I think I know an honest man when I see one—indeed, it is my business to read men, and I rarely make a mistake."

As the two men shook hands, Randolph Fitts remarked dryly:

"Seems to me I remember your saying something of the sort the first day you ever laid eyes on A. A., Abel."

"The trouble is," put in Soapy Shay, sarcastically, "you don't know a dishonest one when you see him, Bill."

"Vell, let's get down to business," said Moses Block, nervously. "Ve must go slow and careful like. If ve show our hands too soon, they vill uprise, and—vell, I don't know vat!"

"Mr. Mott, what would you do if you got wind of a plot like this aboard ship?" inquired Percival, his eyes narrowing.

"I would have the whole gang in chains before morning. Then I'd give 'em a taste of the 'cat' at daybreak, and before noon I'd have the ringleaders hanging from the yardarm," said Andrew Mott, succinctly.

"Oh, my gracious!" gulped Mr. Block.

"Now, I'll tell you what would happen up in Copperhead Camp," said Percival, darkly. "They would get a beautiful cowhiding, then be sentenced to wear a ball and chain, day and night, for anywhere from six months to two years, depending largely on the process of regeneration. My experience has been that six months is enough."

"We wouldn't dare do that, A. A.," said Fitts. "You must not forget public sentiment and public pity. I've got a better plan. How far out is that little island off New Gibraltar, Flatt?"

"A quarter of a mile, I should say."

"Well, if they're not satisfied with life and conditions here, let's make 'em a present of a nice little island of their own. That's what I've always advocated as the proper way to treat anarchists. Stick 'em away on an island completely surrounded by sharks and let 'em run it to suit themselves."

"But there are no sharks in these waters," said Flattner. "They'd swim over here some night and slit our throats."

"Not a chance. They hate water too much to have ever learned how to swim. Now, here's the scheme: Round up as many of them as we're dead sure about, row 'em out to the island, dump 'em with enough food and water to last a week, supply them with tents and beds and tools, and let 'em build their own penitentiary. They'll have to do it or freeze next winter. Once a week send food and drink out to them. The water is a hundred fathoms deep between Trigger Island and that little green wart out there on the face of the ocean. It will look like a million miles to them. How does it strike you, gentlemen?"

Off the precipitous western extremity of Trigger Island lies a tiny scrap of tree-covered land. It is perhaps 100 yards wide and thrice as long. An exploring party had visited it shortly after the wreck of the Doraine, but since then no one had set foot upon its shores. Its steep slopes, deeply wooded, viewed from afar, suggested a mountain top sticking up out of the sea. By boat, skirting the coast, it was a good 10 miles distant from the town.

Three men were seized that night and put through a rigid examination. Early the next morning 12 more were taken, Manuel Crust among them. Half of them, in their terror, "squealed." Crust himself was one of these. Almost before the people of the town knew what was afoot the 15 had been tried, convicted and were on their way to the landing, where boats were waiting to take them and their belongings off into exile. As for the conspirators themselves, the blow was so swift, so sudden, that they were dazed. It was like a bolt out of a clear sky.

Judge Malone sent them to "the island" for indeterminate periods. At stated intervals they were to be released, one by one, and restored to citizenship. The shortest term of exile, however, was one year. The releases were to be decided by lot, except in the cases of three men: Crust, Fernandez and a sailor named Clark. They were the ringleaders and they were to remain on "the island" until the time came for them to go aboard the relief ship with all the other citizens of Trigger. At the end of the first year, and once a month thereafter for 12 months, drawings were to be held, and the man whose name was drawn would be released.

"You are prisoners of state," said Judge Malone, in passing sentence. "The state is obliged to feed you, and clothe you, and sustain you if you fall ill, no matter how bitterly it goes against the grain. You will not be obliged to work, or wash, or observe a single law. You may rob each other to your hearts' content, you may murder each other with perfect impunity, you may do just as you like.

"We started out to conduct the affairs of this island along lines laid down by the Golden Rule. I have come to the conclusion that the Golden Rule would be all right if it were not for the human race. I am beginning to believe that the Rule of Iron is the only one for the people of this earth to live under, and that is a pretty hard thing for an Irishman to say.

"You men ought to be lined up against a wall and shot. We do not feel that we have the right to take your lives. It is not in our hearts to destroy you as you would have destroyed us. But you may not dwell among us."

Fernandez, wild with fury, shrieked vengeance upon the head of Olga Obosky. Out of his ravings the unsavory crew gleaned enough to convince them that he was responsible for their present unhappy plight.

"You will pay for this, you snake!" he yelled, foaming at the mouth and shaking his fist at her. "I will drink your heart's blood! Remember what Joe Fernandez says. I will come back here and get you—oh, I will get you!—and when I am through with you your dog of a lover may have what is left. I will cut you to pieces! I swear it—I swear it! Hear my oath! You double-crossed me! You squealed on me! I will come back, and I will drink your heart's blood! I swear it!"

He spat in her direction as he was dragged away with the rest of the gang. Through his glittering, bloodshot eyes he saw the cool, derisive sneer of her red lips. He had failed, however, to note the keen, appraising look with which she searched the faces of his baffled, glowering companions. In that long, tense look she had seen dawning comprehension change to conviction; she had read his doom, so she could, in perfect security, give him that scoffing, heartless smile to take with him on the journey from which he was never to return.

Fifteen men went out to "the island" that afternoon. From that day the authorities provided weekly rations for that number of men. To this day they are ignorant of the fact that there are but 14 mouths to feed.

In the cool of a balmy January evening, following what had been the hottest day the castaways had experienced since coming to Trigger Island, a group of men and women sat upon the Governor's porch. There was no moon, but the sky was speckled with millions of stars.

Olga Obosky, sitting on the squared log that served as a step, leaned back against the awning post, her legs stretched out in luxurious abandon. She was fanning herself, and her breath came rapidly, pantingly. Now and then she patted her moist face with a handkerchief.

"How warm you are, Olga," said Ruth, who sat beside her. "And you must be dreadfully tired."

"I am hot, but I am not tired," replied the other. "I could dance all night, my dear, without tiring. Did you really like the children, Ruth?"

"They were lovely. You have done wonders with them."

"Regular Isadora Duncan stuff," sighed Peter Snipe, drawing lazily at his pipe. "Woodland nymphs, phantom pixies floating on the wind, zephyrs in the guise of fairies, dreams come true—my dear Olga, you are a sorceress. You change clods into moonbeams, you turn human beings into vapors, you cast the mantle of enchantment over the midsummer night, and we see Oberon, Titania and all the rest of them disporting on the breeze. And to think that only this afternoon I saw all of those gawky girls working in the fields, their legs the color of tan bark, with sandals that looked like canal boats, skirts made of hemp, just regular kids. And you transform them tonight into gleaming cloudlets to float upon the ambient atmosphere"——

"For heaven's sake, Pete, stop being an author and talk like a real man," interrupted Fitts. "Can't you say, 'Gee, they was great, Olger'?"

It was "Twelfth Night," and Olga's pupils had given a fairy dance on the green. To conclude the almost mystic entertainment, the great Obosky herself had appeared in one of her marvelous creations, the "Dance of the Caliph's Dream," the sensational, never-to-be-forgotten dance that had been the talk of three continents. There was no spotlight to follow her sinuous, scantily clad figure as it spun and leaped and glided about the dim, starlit green; there was no blare of brass and cymbals, nor the haunting wail of flageolets, only the tinkle of mandolins and Spanish guitars to guide her bewildering feet, and yet she had never been so alluring.

When it was all over, when the charmed circle of faces had vanished into the byways of the night, she came and flung herself down upon the steps of the Governor's mansion. She had wrapped her warm body in a sheath of yellow velvet; the tips of her bare feet were exposed to the grateful night air. Her uplifted eyes shone like stars that looked down into them; her lips were parted in a smile; her flesh quivered with the physical ecstasy that comes only with supreme lassitude

"You never danced so beautifully in your life, Olga," said Careni-Amori. "And after two years, too. I cannot understand. I shall never sing again as I sang two years ago. But you, ah, you dance even better. I take courage from you. Perhaps my voice has not gone to seed as Joseppi's has, poor man. Not that it had very far to go, but still it was second only to Caruso's, and that was something. How can it be that you improve with idleness, while--while we go the other way?"

"I shall never dance like zat again," replied Olga, her eyes clouding.

"You speak as if it were your swan dance," cried Michael Malone.

"Oh, I shall dance forever," she said, "but never again like zat. You would ask why not? I cannot tell you. I do not know. Only can I say I shall never dance like zat again, never."

Ruth turned her head quickly to look at the woman beside her. Olga's face gleamed white in the starlight. Her eyes were still searching the speckled dome, and the smile had left her lips.

"Don't say that, Olga," she whispered, softly. "You will delight great audiences again, you will charm"——

"Possibly," interrupted the other, lowering her voice, turning her eyes upon Ruth, and smiling mysteriously. "Great audiences, yes, but what are they? I appeared tonight before an audience of one. I danced as I never danced before, all for zat audience of one. Your husband, my dear. He one time informs me he has never seen me dance. Well, tonight I dance for him. Now, he can say he have seen Obosky dance. He will never forget zat he have seen Obosky dance."

Ruth laughed, but it was a strained effort. "He was positively enchanted, Olga," she said. Then she added: "But, for goodness sake, don't ever let him know that you did it all for him. He will be so proud and important that"——

"Oh, he knows I danced for him," broke in the Russian, calmly, in a most matter-of-fact tone.

"You—you told him?"

"I did not have to tell him. He know, without being told. La, la, my dear. Do not look so shocked. It is a habit I have. Always I dance for one person in my audience. I pick him out, sometimes it is a she, and zen I try only to please zat one person. I make him feel he is the one I am dancing for, zat he is all alone in the great big hall, all alone with me. Maybe he is in the gallery, looking down; maybe he is in a box, or standing up at the back of the house, no mat-any one persuade him to enter such a vehicle without due cause.

Since the arrest of Doughty, a mysterious "tip" caused the police to start excavations in the cellar of the Grand Opera House in the hope of finding Small's body. The search produced no results. In September, another apparent clue caused Chief of Detectives Mooney of Chicago to express the belief that Small might possibly have been kidnaped and kept in hiding there.

In the meantime, Doughty had gone West—the Canadian police are still keeping secret much of the information they derived from him—and appears to have worked unobtrusively in several minor positions. In fact, there was no better way of eluding suspicion. A police description stating that a man is middle aged, clean shaven, accustomed to dressing in conservative styles of clothing and that he was genial and companionable in manner might apply to fifty men who could be rounded up on every passenger train or in any crowd.

Moreover, Doughty's long years of experience in the theatrical business had given him a fund of self possession and general information that would enable him to throw off suspicion in any assemblage. He could discuss any topic likely to be introduced and had been in the habit of traveling so much that it was hardly possible to trip him upon a statement he might make concerning a stay in any city.

Usually, it is said, the man in hiding is caught through some trifling oversight of his own—through a defect in some little link in the chain of circumstances he has created in his story.

In Doughty's case, after he had taken a position in the paper factory, the weak link in his chain appears to have been showing a trifle too much of his education in his talks. He was able to answer clearly and concisely questions that puzzled his fellows and he could not avoid showing that he had a vast store of knowledge that could not have been acquired in his apparent station in life.

Richardson appears to have been the first to have noticed this, his attention having been attracted by newspaper stories he read. One of them gave a description of Doughty that fitted the man completely. This and his talk of affairs in general gave Richardson a clue.

A hint may have been furnished him through the fact that Doughty is said to have been inclined to utter Socialistic views when in a jocose mood. Humorous remarks of the kind were taken literally by the Canadian police, however, and were appended to their description of the man's tendencies. When a newspaper account containing this fact fell into Richardson's hands, he put the evidence together and asked the constable to arrest Doughty.

So unbelieving was this officer, however, that Richardson had to promise him $1000 before he would make the arrest. This showed his confidence in his identification of the man, based entirely on a newspaper report. Doughty was arrested and taken back to Canada.

Miss Dodd's part in the capture of the jail breakers was due to simple recognition of a picture that had appeared in the papers and to a careful reading of the context. The deed for which the three men were wanted was participation in the forcible jail delivery wherein Jailer Reeves met death.

Six men and a woman are supposed to have furnished arms to a coterie of prisoners in the jail, among whom were men wanted for highway robbery and various crimes of violence. Clyde Hamilton, Edward B. Kelly and Alda F. Shaw were in the jail and Mrs. Frank Shaw, wife of one of them, is supposed to have been instrumental in furnishing her husband with a weapon.

However it was that arms were procured, some of the prisoners in the jail arose successfully, killed Jailer Reeves and scattered. Photographs had been secured of Hamilton, Shaw and Kelly and these were printed in the Memphis papers.

Shaw has since informed the authorities how he and his associates ran to a nearby poolroom after breaking jail, secured an overcoat for one of their number and then hired an automobile to drive them toward the Mississippi line. A young boy was secured to drive them and he became suspicious of a whispered conversation that the trio maintained. He had allowed the men to persuade him to keep driving them southward, but finally claimed his car was out of order and stopped near a small town. His passengers walked to the town, promising to return, but hired another auto instead and continued south.

The boy drove back to another town and gave the alarm. The men were traced to a point near the Mississippi line, where it seemed they had boarded a freight train.

At 10 o'clock the following morning, Miss Mary Dodd, daughter of E. A. Dodd, who lives a short distance from the railroad tracks in Winona, was reading the Memphis paper telling of the jail delivery. She heard a rap on the rear door and opened it to face three young men whom she instantly recognized from their photographs. They were dusty and cinder covered and asked huskily for a drink of water.

Without showing that she recognized them, Miss Dodd brought water for them, nodded in reply to their curt words of thanks, and remained standing by the door as they departed as if she had no suspicions of their identity. As soon as they disappeared toward the railroad tracks, she called up Sheriff R. M. Smith of Montgomery county.

Smith and Marshal J. A. Glenn of Winona immediately ran to the yards where a freight train, containing several empty cars, was taking water. Walking on opposite sides of the train, Smith espied a youth, who proved to be Hamilton, clambering into a box car. He halted him and received a pacific reply. As the Sheriff approached, however, Hamilton drew a revolver and fired at him. Sheriff Smith returned the fire and wounded Hamilton in the abdomen. Marshal Glenn, attracted by the shots, ran between two cars and as Hamilton raised himself on his elbow and fired again at the Sheriff, Glenn shot him through the head, killing him instantly. Shaw and Kelly, who had hidden in another car, surrendered without resistance.

As in Doughty's case, the men's behavior after leaving the jail had been such that it aroused no suspicion. It was only when they started whispering and their boy driver caught some stray words of what they were saying that his suspicions were aroused. Even so, there was no idea what road they had taken when they reached the railroad and it was only prompt recognition by Miss Dodd that resulted in their capture.

These are but two cases out of several in the last year wherein attention paid to newspaper descriptions have resulted in important captures of criminals, so the value of those brief bulletins, which so often appear in the daily press, seems to have been proven in the last twelve months.

How to Recognize Real Mahogany

YOU buy a "mahogany" table, pay a good price for it, and then begin to wonder whether it is made of real mahogany. Red gum can be made to look so much like mahogany and Circassian walnut that it is often sold for one or the other of these woods.

How can you tell the difference between the false and the true? By looking at the cross-grain, says Popular Science. If you can see the pores with the naked eye, then you will know that all is well. If you can't see the pores without the aid of a magnifying glass, then you will know that you are in the presence of red gum.

The Real and the Make-Believe shoulder. She, too, was aroused, but in her sneering visage was that which brought the actor abruptly out of his spell. She had emerged from the shadows noiselessly, and was leaning forward, her strong hands gripping the edge of the table, littered with its many properties.

Mrs. Phillips had played emotional scenes herself, but never with such melodramatic intensity as she now unconsciously displayed. Her whole body shook as with the ague, her dark face was alive with a jealous fury which told Irving Francis the story he had been too dull to suspect.

Leontine turned her face to him. "You fool!" she whispered through livid lips.

Francis was a huge, leonine man; he rose now to his full height, as a cat rises. But the drama drew his gaze in spite of himself; he could not keep his eyes from his wife's face. Leontine plucked at his sleeve and whispered again:

"You fool!"

Something contorted the actor's frame bitterly, and he gasped like a man throttled. Leontine could feel his muscles stiffen.

But the two players were in Elysium. They had reached the climax of the scene; Danton had told his love, as only a great, starved love can tell itself, and with swimming eyes and fluttering lids, with heart pounding beneath her folded hands, Diane swayed toward him and his arms enfolded her. Her body met his, yielded; her face was upturned; her fragrant, half-opened lips were crushed to his in a fierce, impassioned kiss of genuine ecstasy.

Up to this moment the intensity of Francis' rage had held him paralyzed, despite the voice which was whispering so constantly at his ear; but now, when he saw his wife swooning upon the breast of the man who had played his part, he awoke.

Mrs. Phillips' eyes fell upon the working fingers of the man as they rested beside her own. They were opening and closing hungrily. She also saw the naked knife which lay upon the table, and she moved it forward cautiously until the eager fingers twined about it. Then she breathed "Go!" and shoved him forward fiercely.

It was Irving Francis' cry of rage as he rushed upon them which aroused Norma Berwynd from her dream, from her intoxication. She saw him towering at Phillips' back, and with a scream she tried to save the latter.

The husband's blow fell, however; it was delivered with all the savage fury that lay in Irving Francis' body, and his victim was fairly driven to his knees beneath it.

When his eyes cleared he saw Norma Berwynd struggling with her husband, interposing her own slender body in his path. Francis was cursing her foully for her unfaithfulness; his voice was thick and brutal.

"Yes! It's true!" she cried, with hysterical defiance. "I never knew it till now; but it's true! It's true!"

"You've killed him!" Leontine chattered, shrilly, and emerged from the shadows, her dark features ashen, her eyes ringed with white. Mrs. Francis turned from her husband and flung her arms about the recumbent man, calling wildly to him.

The denouement had come with such swiftness that it left all four of them appalled at their actions. Seeing what his brief insanity had led him into, Francis felt his strength evaporate; his face went white, his legs buckled beneath him. He scanned the place wildly in search of means of escape.

"My God! My God!" Leontine was repeating. "Why doesn't somebody come?"

Now that his brain had cleared, and he knew what had smitten him, and why, Phillips was by far the calmest of the four. He saw the knife at his feet and smiled, for no steel could rob him of that gladness which was pulsing through his veins. He was still smiling when he stooped and picked up the weapon. He arose, lifting Norma to her feet; then his hand slid down and sought hers.

"You needn't worry," he said to Francis. "You see—this is the new dagger I got for the end of the act."

He held it out in his open palm for all of them to see, and they noted that it was strangely shortened—that the point of the sliding blade was barely exposed beneath the hilt.

Francis wiped his wet face, then shuddered and cursed weakly with relief, meanwhile groping at the prompter's table for support. "Sold!" A prop knife!" he cried.

"You—you're not really"—— Norma swayed forward with eyes closed.

Leontine laughed.

"By God! I meant it," the star exclaimed uncertainly. "You can't deny"—— He gasped and tugged at his collar.

"I believe there is nothing to deny," the author said, quietly. He looked first at his wife, then at his enemy, and then down at the quivering, white face upturned to his. "There is nothing to deny, is there?" he inquired of Norma.

"Nothing!" she said. "I—I am glad to know the truth, that's all."

Francis glared first at one, then at the other, and as he did so he began to realize the full cost of his action. When it came home to him in terms of dollars and cents, he showed his true character by stammering:

"I—I made a frightful mistake. I'm—not myself; really I'm not. It was your wife's fault." In a panic he ran on, unmindful of Leontine's scorn. "She did it, Mr. Phillips. She gave me the knife. She whispered things—she made me—I—I'm very sorry—Mr. Phillips, and I'll play the part the way you want it. I will, indeed."

Leontine met her husband's look defiantly; hence it was as much to her as to the cringing actor that the playwright said:

"Your salary will go on as usual, under your contract, Mr. Francis—that is, until the management supplies you with a new play; but I'm the real John Danton, and I shall play him tonight and henceforth.

"Then, I'm—discharged? Norma—d'you hear that? We're canceled, Fired!"

"No, Miss Berwynd's name will go up in the lights as the star, if she cares to stay," said Phillips. "Do you wish to remain?" He looked down at the woman and she nodded.

"Yes, oh, yes!" she said. "I must stay. I daren't go back." That hunted look leaped into her eyes again, and Phillips recognized it now as fear, the abject physical terror of the weaker animal. "I want to go—forward—not backward, if there is any way."

"I'll show you the way," he told her, gently. "We'll find it together."

He smiled reassuringly, and with a little gasping sigh she placed her hand in his.

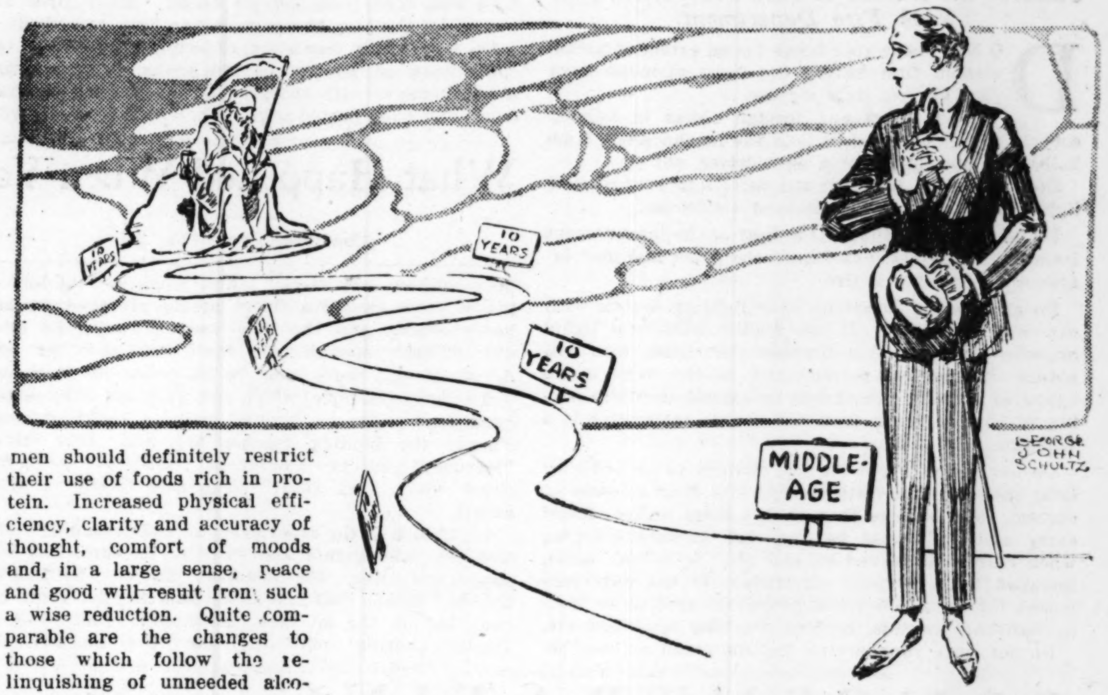
Six More Years of Life for Six Normal Months

How to be young at sixty, even if already old at forty, is the subject discussed by Dr. Robert S. Carroll who states that the simplest and most natural remedies, within the reach of everyone, will effect a physical and mental rehabilitation for those who have partially forfeited youth



HOW six months devoted to "getting fit" can add six years to the active life of the brain worker is a subject treated at length by Dr. Robert S. Carroll of Asheville, N. C., in a work he has just published showing how a person can be old at 40 or young at 60.

In taking 40 years as the age from which to draw examples, the writer calls attention to the number of persons who slip into a groove at that period of life instead of trying to retain the heritages of youth.

That the man or woman who pays proper care to physical and mental well being can be healthier and more active at 60 than the average sedentary worker of the city is at 40, is the writer's contention. Although the matter of warding off old age has been exhaustively discussed by others, the entire simplicity of Dr. Carroll's instructions will appeal to the average reader.

He advocates no elaborate system of special exercises, no question of an analytical study of every dish at a meal. His advice is simply to take what can be termed normal care of the physical body and the intellect and then confidently await results.

In explaining the frame of mind into which many persons drift, he writes:

"With Mr. and Mrs. Everybody, 35 marks the age of mental comfort and satisfaction. College work is over. Opinions have been formed on all vital subjects, formed—and here's the rub—re-expressed and for the majority expression is crystallization. Expressed beliefs are slowly retracted. At 35, occupation has been chosen, home well started and all too surely the doors of the mind begin to close and the evolutionary is henceforth termed 'revolutionary.'

"Spiritually aging at 20, mentally aging at 35—what of the body? It, of the three, is most susceptible to permanently disabling accident."

So he takes up the treatment of the body in detail as the first step toward mental and spiritual rehabilitation.

Three vital faults are set forth as accelerating old age. One is lack of a proper food balance, which causes physical breakdowns and hardening of the arteries; another is the failure to strike a balance between work and rest and the recognition of the absolute need of relaxation; another is the lack of all "cheer life" which assigns laughter and merriment to childhood only. These three faults, as the writer expresses it, respectively, "harden the arteries, dull the mind, chill the soul."

Taking up the body first, the Doctor writes in part:

"Failure of body, the failure we call age, indicates always that the balance between the vital organs and the work thrown upon these organs is breaking. And let us here note a vital truth—the work which most rapidly ages us is not that which duty and progress lay upon us, but the vast, useless labor of our eliminative organs in keeping our systems freed from self-produced poisons; or the increasing struggle of our minds with anxious worries; or the soul's failure to find a blessing faith."

The first essential is oxygen, he says.

"To maintain a healthy, developed body in its comfort of strength is quite simple. The few essentials are an ample supply of oxygen, adequate foods of simple quality, and the absence of externally or internally produced poisons. The cities are crowded with shallow breathers while even in the country far too many flat, hollow chests are evident. Many men and women so rarely fully expand their lungs that their chests are sore after the unwonted effort and they think they have done themselves damage. In America, especially, months are spent in overheated rooms and multitudes dread the breathing of cold air, with the result that pneumonia ominously increases while the vigorous anti-tuberculosis crusade has but mitigated the relentless White Plague. There can be little question that the deficiency of oxygen in the tissues is the most potent single cause of premature old age."

A simple, non-technical explanation follows of the methods by which nutriment is carried to the tissues and of the elements the body has to draw from food. The value of protein in food is treated, but the writer adds:

"After growth is attained, practically all women and 95 per cent of professional, business and clerical men should definitely restrict their use of foods rich in protein. Increased physical efficiency, clarity and accuracy of thought, comfort of moods and, in a large sense, peace and good will result from such a wise reduction. Quite comparable are the changes to those which follow the relinquishing of unneeded alcohol or tobacco."

In referring to the common belief that insanity among rural women is caused by loneliness, he writes:

"Farmers' wives throng our insane asylums—not primarily because of remoteness from neighbors but as the result of the brain damaging effects of a continuous diet which, while giving their husbands strength and vitality and large energy and health—the husbands who labor from dawn to dusk—is a diet too proteid-rich for their much lighter feminine activities."

He describes how excess of sweets tends to acetic acid fermentation and how injurious is allowing over indulgence on the part of children in heavy foods and grease-soaked foods. He adds:

"The value of properly cooked starches as the bulk of the brain workers' diet is as yet unrecognized by the majority. The most healthy man of 50 known to the writer, a professional man of large interests, states that the bulk of his diet is Irish potatoes and as these can be prepared in 200 different ways he never lacks variety, though he prefers them baked. This man's heredity was not good, his start as a boy was poor. He early realized the common damage of unwise eating. In simple, rational food he has found rare strength."

Simplicity of food and the banishment of rich dishes is the first step he advocates. For the toxic and over-nourished, he states two daily meals are advisable, breakfast and evening dinner; for the average sedentary man and woman, two and one-half meals are better, the half meal, representing a light noon luncheon. Muscle workers, he says, require three hearty meals, while the under-nourished, the thin, anemic and weak-digesting kind may be better provided for by five or six luncheons, rather than meals.

Speaking of drinking water with meals, he writes:

"Less food, more water, for most of us. It is only the misinformed who today fear to mix water drinking and eating. Not that fluids should be used to encourage poor chewing or rapid eating, but a glass of cold water for each 50 pounds of body weight may be taken with each meal with benefit. The addition of a thin slice of lemon to each glass of drinking water is peculiarly helpful to those who have a tendency to over-acidity."

He adds that cream is the easiest fat to learn to handle and that those with over-acid stomachs should neutralize this characteristic before using cream. Discontinuance of meats and sweets will almost automatically effect this, he states. The use of raw eggs to encourage weight is described.

Here is his prescription for a breakfast, after light exercise has been taken to get the bodily functions into trim:

"Your weight being average, the following diet suggestions will apply. You have taken one glass of water when you finished exercising. You drink two more at breakfast. You have fresh grapes (including seeds) or baked apple, a sugarless orange, grapefruit or equivalent in the alkali producing foods. Then a generous bowl of oatmeal or other breakfast-food with a quarter pint of good cream and one teaspoonful of sugar. A few dates or half a fig or other fruits may be added to the breakfast food for variety. Follow with a goodly Irish potato, baked, boiled, dressed with white sauce, riced, mashed, steamed—but not fried in any form—one or two thin rashers of bacon, a sliver of mackerel, or, especially in winter, a soft cooked egg, two slices of toast and a cup of mild coffee, moderately sweetened and well creamed. Something is decidedly wrong with the individual's stomach or head who does not comfortably digest this breakfast. One, better two miles' genuine walking, should bring one to his office in perfect condition."

Alcohol is placed entirely under the ban—rather a needless warning, these days—and smoking, except in great moderation, is deprecated. For the average sedentary worker he believes three mild twenty-minute smokes, or even two during hot weather, are sufficient. He advises that, if with this temperance, there is still a nagging craving, it is better to abstain from tobacco altogether.

This is a mere outline of his advice on diet and bodily care. His prescriptions for mild exercise need not be given here as they are simply those used by the army in "setting-up" exercises, tempered to the individual case. He urges faithful application to the exercise, however mild it may be at the outset, and a prompt leaving of the bedclothes at a definite hour. For those who find they cannot sleep until the early morning hours and then wish to lie long in bed, he advises that they go to bed at a normal hour and, even at the cost of one night of comparative sleeplessness, rise early and take the exercise prescribed. The following night or the night thereafter, enough healthy fatigue will have been engendered to assure normal and healthful repose.

This bodily welfare is essential to the mental attitude, he believes, on the principle of a sound mind existing in a healthy body. The needless fretting and tension to which we subject ourselves can then be more easily reduced, he says, when nerves are steadier and healthier. Under the heading of "the ease which destroys," he writes of the persons who, without sufficient matters of importance to occupy them fret, worry and shorten their lives by keeping in a perpetual ferment over trifles. He classifies groups of these persons as "drifters, gamblers, and stewers," and catalogs those of constructive habits as "builders."

It might be remarked that in calling attention to the physical regimen for the day, he suggests using the toothbrush as soon as one has arisen. He says this will be found next in refreshment to the bath. Then comes a brief spell of exercise upon arising, then a bath and then the meal described.

Wholesome sleep is, of course, essential to good health. The habit of taking any drug to induce sleep is strongly condemned as though it may induce a torpor it does not necessarily afford rest.

"There is no drug known," he writes, "sufficiently powerful to force sleep upon sleeplessness which is not more or less definitely a poison to the central nervous system."

He denies that any sleeping potion can be harmless, whether it is bromides, chloral, veronal, trional, medinol, alcoholic liquids or any other hypnotic.

There are harmless methods, however, of improving the circulatory conditions that favor sleep, such as a cup of hot milk or broth, a five-minute warm footbath or a 10-minute bath in neutral water. Habit enters largely into the question of sleep and he says the art of taking cat-naps should be acquired.

"Learn to relax the body, to forget the grind, to let go the anxieties, to think of nothing but the comfort which soft-fingered somnolence brings. The art of falling asleep can be self-taught, and, when once

PLAY SAFE WITH ELECTRIC LIGHT

By WILLIAM F. DOYLE.

Chief of the Bureau of Fire Prevention, New York Fire Department.

DO NOT leave your home for an extended period without first having the fuses removed from your electric light service.

Don't insert any foreign object in a lamp socket; this is designed to hold the incandescent lamp bulb, not your fingers or a screwdriver, etc.

Do not attempt to repair any defects in your electric light equipment. Call a licensed electrician.

Do not use paper shades, the heat of the incandescent lamp bulb will slowly carbonize the paper and may ignite same, causing a fire.

Do not attempt to extend your lighting system with extension cords, etc. If you require additional lights or other outlets, call a licensed electrician, who will obtain the required permits and do the work in an approved manner. To change or extend electrical wiring without a permit from the proper authorities is a violation of the law.

Do not connect your electric flatiron to an ordinary lamp socket. Most flatirons use over four amperes of current; this is more than such a lamp socket should carry and will cause heating and dangerous arcing when current is turned on and off. A special outlet, installed by a licensed electrician, is the only safe means for use of electrical household appliances, such as flatirons, toasters, heaters, washing machines, etc.

Do not leave your electric flatiron stand without being properly protected on incombustible stand, and never leave it when through without removing the plug and cord from service outlet. Many fires are caused by thinking the current has been turned off.

Do not permit insulation of extension cords to become worn or injured. Avoid hooks, nails or other metal supports with sharp edges. Keep cord for flatiron away from heated iron. When electric cords show wear have them replaced before they cause a blowout or fire.

Do not permit your ambitious boy to experiment with your lighting system.

Don't overload or overfuse circuits. When a fuse blows have same replaced by a competent electrician, who will investigate the cause and remedy same and who will know size of allowable fuse to be used.

born without any teeth." And when several lots of pillow cases caused a flurry among storekeepers and housekeepers, and the bids went skyward, he cried out: "That's enough, you could buy new for less. Ai—ai, ai—ai; there must be diamonds set in them."

A talking machine "which cost $150 and is in perfect condition" seems to arouse only a mild interest. Finally the bidding reaches $40, and there sticks. "Murder!" yells the auctioneer. "Only $40 for a machine which cost $150?" The sale finally is made at $41.

It takes a little experience to understand the auctioneers, who mount the rostrum in turn and who sound just alike. For instance, "One fitty-fie, fitty-fie, fitty-fie," means that one dollar and fifty-five cents has been bid on the lot then being sold. And when he starts chanting something like "Four-and-a-HALF! Four-and-a-HALF! Four-and-a-HALF!" the cadence reminds one of the horse's hoof-beats in a theater orchestra. The end of his siren song, and the resulting sale, are often announced by the auctioneer with a triumphant "Wow!"

The best-selling articles at these "Dead Letter" auctions are the items of wearing apparel. Things like shoes, stockings, underwear, neckties and handkerchiefs, also piece goods and army goods, find a ready sale at prices which are often close to the regular market. Men's new suits will bring from $25 to $27, while the second-hand ones fetch prices even higher in proportion, selling usually between $12 and $15 if in any condition at all.

The slow sellers are the "job lots," consisting of miscellaneous articles grouped together for the auction and which are practically junk. They may include anything "from a pin to an anchor," as one employe said. Among the worst sellers are the women's millinery, usually behind the styles, and children's toys.

There was a pause. I sat back and waited. Perhaps Central would give it up and tell whoever was calling that the party didn't answer, or that the line was out of order.

But she didn't. She rang again. She rang for eighteen seconds, which is a very long time. Still nobody answered, although I could hear them moving about down stairs.

Followed a silence. I had long ceased to concentrate by this time, and had begun to wonder if the telephone message might not be important. The more I wondered the more I thought it might be. At last, able to endure the suspense no longer, I slammed down the check book and started down the stairs. When I got to the telephone I found a man there. He was from the telephone company. He was making Central ring the bell to see if it worked all right. I could have told him that, and I wouldn't have needed the aid of concentration to help me work out the answer, either.

I went back up stairs and resumed my labors. There was a weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth below stairs three minutes after I started. The baby had Tommy's football and wouldn't give it up.

I got the football, propitiated the baby with a lump of sugar, warned both children that I was concentrating, and went back up stairs.

I had hardly resumed my addition when there came a knock on the back door. It was a gentle knock at first. Then it became bolder. Nobody answered it. The head of the house must have gone out. Tommy and the baby were probably on the front porch, where they couldn't hear it.

If the knock had continued I could have kept on concentrating perhaps, but it didn't. It stopped. And I began to fear that it was some porch climber who had merely knocked to assure himself that nobody was in the house. Doubtless now he was at work on one of the back porch windows with a jimmy.

I went downstairs and found a lady who wanted to know if we had a vacuum cleaner. I told her we had and went back upstairs.

Once more I got out the pen, and bent over my task. Then a motor car drove up to the front gate, stopped, and the horn began to blow violently. I gathered up the check book and the fountain pen and the paper pad and went down stairs. I have not concentrated since then, and I don't believe I ever shall, unless some day I make a mis-step and am placed in solitary confinement as the result.

"Cure Your Rupture Like I Cured Mine"

Old Sea Captain Cured His Own Rupture After Doctors Said "Operate or Death."

His Remedy and Book Sent Free.

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years; then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally, he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrent operation or die. He did neither! He cured himself instead.

"Fellow Men and Women, You Don't Have To Be Cut Up, and You Don't Have To Be Tortured By Trusses."

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition—and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well, strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method; it's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book, telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. The book and medicine are FREE. They will be sent prepaid to any rupture sufferer who will fill out the below coupon. But send it right away—now—before you put down this paper.

learned, the mishap of waking untimely will be only an incident."

As stated before, he has no sympathy for the "morning sleeper." He favors the principle of early to bed and early to rise and discusses the open fireplace in the home as an aid to reverie and as a soother to the nerves.

The truth in the very simplicity of the doctor's creed is apparent to the reader. The writer holds that improvement in our physical and mental well-being is within the reach of any person, not by any extraordinary effort, but simply by following what is obviously the natural routine adapted to the body.

He believes that the mind can be trained to drop worries and cares at stated intervals and that it automatically develops this tendency as it improves in physical well-being.

Briefly stated, his platform is simply a refusal to drop into the tempting rut of ease and custom when 40 is reached and to seek for the much keener pleasures which lie in maintaining an existence as nature intended it. He quotes cases to prove how vigor and health can be thus extended for many years.

He does not deny that "no person by taking thought can add a cubit to his stature," but he does claim that a little thought and application will add several years to the average life. As medical director of the Highland Hospital at Asheville, N. C., he has had abundant opportunity to observe those who practiced what he has preached.

HOW TO GET RID OF CATARRH

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive Method That Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh. You can get rid of it by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is composed of medicinal herbs, flowers and berries, which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette. The smoke-vapor is inhaled into all the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs. It contains no cubebs or tobacco and may be used by women and children as well as men.

This medicated smoke carries medicine where sprays, douches and ointments cannot possibly reach. Its effect is soothing and healing and is entirely harmless.

If you are a sufferer from catarrh, asthma, catarahal deafness or subject to frequent colds, you should try this Remedy without delay. Send ten cents (coin or stamps) to The Blosser Co., 479 MD., Atlanta, Ga., and you will receive, by return mail, a trial package containing some of this Remedy made into cigarettes, also some of the powder and a neat little pipe.

WEST WIND DRIFT - - ter where he is, I pick him out and so I think of no one else all ze time I dance."

"And, by the same token, he is powerless to think of anyone else. I see. No wonder you charm them out of their boots."

"And all the rest of his life he will remember that I danced for him alone, zat man. As for me—poof! I would not recognize him again if he came to see me a thousand nights in succession. Once I saw a very tiny boy in the stalls. He was with his mother and father. I danced for zat child of 6. When he is a very, very old man he will look back over the years and see me dancing still, always the same whirling, dazzling thing that filled his little eyes and soul with wonder. So! Percival has seen me at my best. He will tell his grandchildren how wonderful Obosky was, and he will think of her to his dying day as something beautiful, not something vile."

"Oh, Olga!"

"You see, my dear," said the other, composedly, "I wanted to make a good impression on zat virtuous husband of yours. Now he will think of me as the artist, not as the woman. It is much better so, is it not?"

"Sometimes you say things that cause me to wonder why I don't hate you, Olga Obosky," cried Ruth under her breath.

Olga laughed softly. "I repeat zat golden rule to myself every night and every morning, Ruthkin," said she somewhat cryptically. Then they were silent.

Conversation on the porch behind them lagged and finally ceased altogether. The soft swish of fans was the only sound to disturb the tranquil stillness.

"Nineteen-twenty," fell dreamily from the lips of Randolph Fitts' wife. "I used to think of 1920 as being so far in the future that I would be an old woman when I came to it. And here it is. I am living in it, and I am not old."

"Presidential year," said Michael Malone, as he struck a match to relight the pipe that had gone out. "Doesn't take them long to slip around, does it? Seems only last week that I voted for Wilson. I wonder if he'll be running again?"

"Sure! And if he can keep us in the war as long as he kept us out of it," said Peter Snipe, "we'll have to elect him again."

"I'd give a lot to know whether we've got the Germans licked or not," mused Fitts. "We've had nearly three years to do it in."

"Depends entirely on the navy," said Platt, Minister of Marine, late of the United States navy.

"What can the navy do if the Germans won't come out?" demanded Landover.

"Why, confound it all! The navy can go in, can't it?"

"The British navy hasn't," was Landover's reply.

"What's the use of speculating about the war?" said Percival, as he threw himself on the grass at Ruth's feet. "Either it's over or it isn't, and here we sit absolutely in the dark. They might as well be fighting on Mars as over in Europe, so far as we are concerned. For God's sake, let's not even think about the war. We'll all go crazy if we do."

"You're right," said Fitts, gloomily.

"In any case," said Malone, "Trigger Island has done all that any self-respecting Government can do. She has declared war on Germany. We have nothing to be ashamed of. Still, I'd feel better if we could fire a few shots at the dirty blackguards."

"The war is over," said Olga, staring up at the stars. "The Germans are beaten. I have said so for many months, have I not?"

"You have," agreed Malone. "But I don't see that you have anything on the Kaiser. He said it was over in 1914."

"Don't argue with him, Olga," said young Mrs. Malone. "He's Irish."

"Like all Irishers, he's longing for something he'll never get," said Fitts, dryly.

"And what is that?" inquired Mrs. Malone.

"Home rule," said Fitts.

Olga Obosky yawned luxuriously. "I am so sleepy. My sandals, Gov. Percivail. I am going home."

He picked up the sandals lying on the grass beside him and held them out to her. She coolly extended one of her feet.

"It cannot bite you. Put zem on for me, your excellency."

He knelt, and, slipping the sandals on one after the other, fastened the straps over her bare insteps.

"So," she sighed. "Thank you. Good-night, Ruthkin. No! I shall go home alone. There is nothing to be afraid of now on zis island, my dears. The ardent Fernandez is playing—what you call it?—pea-knuckles?—he is playing pea-knuckles away off yonder on zat prison island, as he has been playing for nearly a year."

Little she knew of Fernandez!

Ruth and Percival walked around the corner of the porch with her, out of sight of the others.

"It was a perfectly ravishing dance, Olga," said he. "If I live a thousand years I shall never forget how beautiful it was."

"You see?" cried Olga, softly, pressing Ruth's hand. "Was I not right?"

"Men are very queer things," said Ruth, with a curious, sidelong glance at her husband. Then she squeezed his arm tightly and went on with a little thrill in her voice: "Good night, Olga. Thank you for—the lesson."

"What's all this?" inquired Percival.

"Nothing you would be interested in, my friend," said Olga, with a little laugh. She waved her hand airily as she moved swiftly away in the gloom.

They watched her yellow figure fade into the starlit shadows. As they turned to rejoin the others, Ruth said:

"I think you might have told her how beautiful she was, dear." So much for the native perversity of woman, even when she is most content.

He raised her hand to his lips and pressed a kiss upon the soft, warm palm. It was a habit of his, and she never failed to shiver in response to the exquisite thrill. She drew a deep breath and leaned a little closer to him.

"Look up yonder, sweetheart," he whispered. "Do you see the one star in all the heavens that shines the brightest? It is the only one I see when I raise my eyes. The big, full star in the Southern Cross. The others are dim, feeble little things preening themselves in reflected glory. That great, beautiful star at the foot of the cross is all that I can see. It's no use for me to look elsewhere. That star fills my vision. Its splendor fascinates me."

She waited for him to go on. Her eyes were shining. But the analogy was complete. She laid her cheek against his and sighed tremulously. After a moment, they turned their heads and their lips met in a long, passionate kiss.

"I should be content to stay on this dear little island forever, sweetheart," she murmured. "My whole world is here."

He stroked her hair lovingly, and was silent for a long time. Then he smiled his whimsical smile.

"It's all right for you and me, dear, but how about the future President of the United States sleeping up there in his crib?"

She smiled up into his eyes. "It's a nuisance, isn't it?—having to stop and consider that we are parents as well as lovers."

They rejoined the group on the porch.

"I had a horrible dream last night," said Peter Snipe, getting up and stretching himself. "That's why I'm staying up so late tonight. I hate to go to bed."

"What was your dream, Peter?" asked Ruth.

"Do you believe in 'em?"

"Only in day dreams."

"Well, I dreamed our little old ship was finished and had sailed at last and for once our wireless plant up there began to get messages from the sea. I dreamed I was sitting up there with the operator. It was a dark, stormy night. The wireless began to crackle. He jumped up to see what was coming. He was getting messages from our own ship, away out there on the ocean. It was calling for help. 'Sinking fast—sinking fast—sinking fast.' Over and over again, just those two words. Gad, it was so real, so terribly real, that the first thing I did this morning was to walk down to see if the boat was still on the stocks. It was there, a long way from being finished, and—and, by gad, I had hard work to keep from blubbering, I was so relieved."

"It will take more than a dream to knock that ship to pieces," said Percival. "When it's ready for the water there will not be a sturdier craft afloat. Andrew Mott says it'll weather anything outside of the China Sea. Don't look so distressed, ladies, Pete's a novelist. They never do anything but dream horrible dreams. Generally they go so far as to put them into print, and people read 'em and say they are wildly improbable, especially if they have a happy ending. It's always the happy ending that makes them improbable, but popular. Isn't that so, Pete?"

"If we didn't give them a happy ending, they would refuse to recognize us the next time they saw us on a bookseller's counter," said Peter. "Well, I guess I'll be on my way. I've got a busy day tomorrow, setting up the Trigger Island Pioneer, and as I belong to that almost extinct species known as the bachelor, I am forced to be my own alarm clock. Going my way, Abel?"

"Good night, Ruth," said Landover. "Give the Lieutenant Governor a good smack for me, and tell him he is still in my will."

"Umph!" grunted Fitts. "I'd like to know what you've got to leave the little beggar. Your letter of credit?"

"Certainly not," replied Landover. "Something worth while, Fittsy, my boy. I am making it now. It's going to be a hobbyhorse, if I live long enough to finish it. Good night, Perce. 'Night, everybody."

When the last of the company had departed, Ruth and Percival stood for a long time in silence, listening to the far-off thrumming of a Spanish guitar, their tranquil gaze fixed on the murky shadow that marked the line of trees along the shore, her head resting lightly against his shoulder, his arm about her waist.

"What are you thinking of, dear?" she asked at last.

"Peter's dream," he replied. "It has put an idea into my head. The day that ship down there sails out to sea with her courageous little crew, I shall start laying the keel for another one just like her."

Neither spoke for many seconds. Then she said, a deep, solemn note in her voice: "I understand, Perce."

They went into the house. Later they stole tiptoe to the side of the crib where slept the sturdy, sunkissed babe. The two middle fingers of a chubby hand were in his mouth. With one hand Percival shaded the pitch candle he had brought from the kitchen. She leaned over and gently touched the smooth, warm cheek.

"I—I can't believe he is real, Perce," she whispered.

"He isn't," whispered he. "He is something out of a fairy story. Nothing as wonderful as he is can possibly be real."

From Turkish Oppression to Bridal Altar

but whom, it was suggested, she might as well stop and collect and fetch along with her.

Determining just what kinds of girls would fill the bill, discovering the girls, then persuading them to sever all ties and come to far-off America, these were several problems, all of which the energetic looking little old lady solved. She found Zuvart working at the mission school, the other two in refugee camps. All three originally were from the neighborhood of Van but had not known one another until gathered under the wing of Mrs. Chuchian.

Another problem, not the least, probably, was that of determining what were the real qualities, the real accomplishments, the real attractions, physical, mental, spiritual, of girls uprooted from their natural environment, starved, grief stricken, hunted, ragged, dirty, weary unto death from their experiences. Possibly a certain amount of unkemptness had been cultivated in the early stages of the flight as a protection from the covetous eyes of the Turks and may have saved them from the dread fate of the harem.

They must have presented a miserable appearance—according to Hagop's description of them—when they landed. But Mrs. Chuchian's judgment was still to be trusted implicitly. Each prospective bridegroom accepted the bride selected for him and far from developing dissatisfaction—well, although they are unable to express their feeling in our language, and one has not the license of the novelist to write "they lived happy ever after," the complacent glances they cast upon one another, eloquently testify that Mrs. Chuchian's work thus far is well done.

That the Armenians are a demonstrative people, and that it is true, as a well known Armenian citizen of St. Louis is fond of saying, there are more words expressing endearment and more love songs in the Armenian language than any other, is easy to believe when one partakes of their hospitality, the refreshments of sweetmeats and ice cream pressed upon the strange visitor at an early morning hour, and witnesses the unabashed billing and cooing going on in this flat.

To a question as to his objection to an American girl as wife, the practical Hagop responded:

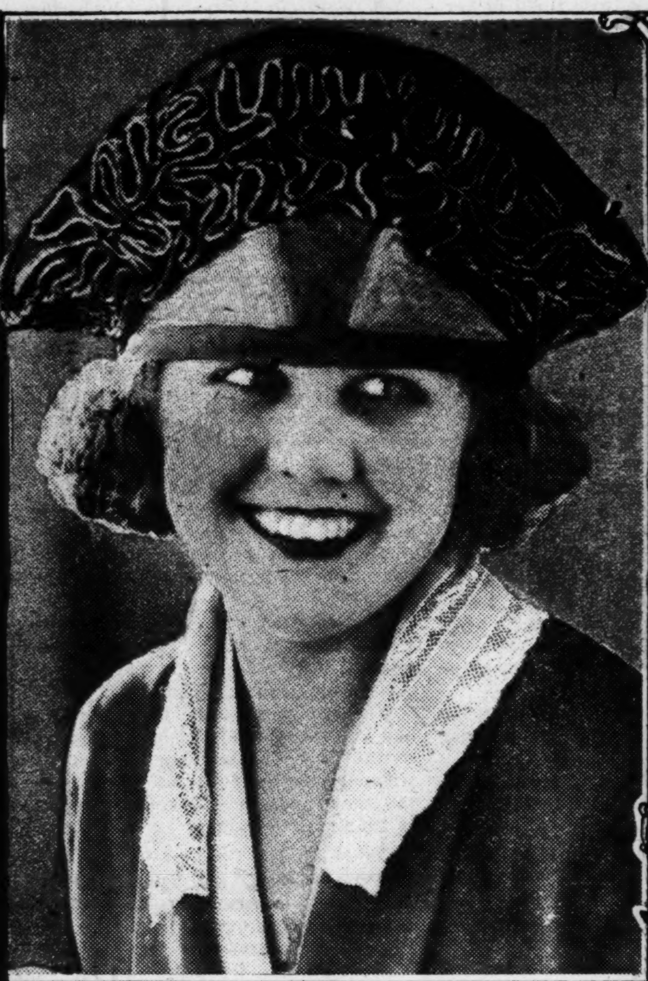
"I would have been glad to find a wife in this country. It would have saved me expense. But I have always my attention on my business. I do not meet any girls except those who come to my shop on business and I do not get fresh with them. If I did look on one and she looked on me, she might be the kind who run away with my money, ruin my business, dishonor my name.

"Oh, I know," he amended quickly, "there are many good wives in America. I see them in my shop. They bring their husband's shoes to be mended. They have many bundles and market baskets. They take good care of their husbands. But how do I know I choose that kind? Better to bring one my aunt selected in my own country."

Paint Screens With Sponge

WIRE screens can be painted more easily and with better results than by the ordinary methods of painting with a brush, if the paint is thinned and applied to the screen with an old sponge.—Popular Mechanics.

HATS FOR WINTER WEAR



This stunning mid-season hat is of satin, braided in a quaint design and trimmed with small, red wings. It is an American creation.
